GENERAL HEAD QUARTERS,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Concord, May 20, 1865. }

TO HIS EXCELLENCY JOSEPH A. GILMORE, Governor and Commander-in-Chief:

SIR:—I have the honor to submit to your Excellency the annual report of the Adjutant General's Department, for the year 1865. I would state that heretofore all annual reports which emanated from this office, have closed with the 20th of May of the year in which they were submitted. This report being entirely different in its scope from any which have been heretofore furnished, embracing so much material which might properly have been embodied in previous reports, and having already attained such voluminous proportions—it has been found impracticable to embody in it the records of New Hampshire troops in the field of a later date than January 1st, 1865. Up to that date all casualties, discharges and other items of public interest which have been reported either to this office or to the War Department, have been noted against the name of every individual soldier. With the continuance of the liberal appropriations granted to this department during the past year, I hope to be able to submit to your successor in office, in a single volume similar in size and style to the two embraced in this report, an accurate and final record of every man who was in the service from New Hampshire at the time when the present report closed.

With the highest respect,

I am your Excellency's obedient servant,

NATT HEAD, Adjutant General.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S REPORT.

GENERAL HEAD QUARTERS STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, }
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
Concord, May 20, 1865. }

TO HIS EXCELLENCY JOSEPH A. GILMORE, Governor and Commander-in-Chief:

GOVERNOR:—In my annual report of last year I stated that when I assumed the duties devolving upon the Adjutant General of the State, in March, 1864, I found that the records of the office were sadly incomplete and that but very little information concerning the history of New Hampshire troops in the field, had been collected. No record whatever, existed of thousands of New Hampshire's bravest sons who had entered the service of the United States, in their country's hour of peril, determined to sustain the National Government, to defend our dear old flag, to maintain the principles of liberty and justice and to perpetuate those free institutions which are dear to the heart of every true American.

Hundreds of New Hampshire's noble men of whose names even there was no record within our State, had yielded up their lives upon the field of battle. Thousands had died from wounds received in action or from disease contracted during many arduous campaigns, after lingering illness far away from home, absent from all friends, with no one near to whom they could look for that heavenly consolation, which a parent, sister or brother only can give. Hundreds, again, had been honorably discharged the service and returned to their homes with bodies maimed and constitutions shattered, and yet the State possessed no record by which justice and honor could be rendered these brave men.

It is with no little satisfaction that I am able to announce that since the first of April, 1864, I have obtained such returns of New Hampshire troops as will make the records in the possession of the State, as complete as those in possession of the War Department. No one, not closely connected with this office, can form an idea of the unremittant, persistent and ceaseless efforts, required and made, in order to obtain the information so necessary to be had and of which the office was entirely destitute.—When one expedient failed to elicit information called for, another was tried, when that failed, still another was invented. Discouragement was not tolerated. Ultimate failure was not recognized as a possibility, knowing it to be my duty to accomplish certain objects, I have left no means untried by which said objects could be accomplished. As the office was small, but few clerks could be accommodated, and as the records of New Hampshire Volunteers had been commenced upon three books only, but few clerks could be engaged upon them at the same time.

The details of the business of the office being closely connected, I found it impracticable to engage two sets of clerks, one for day work, the other for night work, the former for the performance of the legitimate work of the office, the latter for the purpose of obtaining back records and causing the same to be noted upon the books. As one set of clerks, numbering as many as the office would accommodate, could not in office hours perform the amount of work to be discharged, I required that they should labor by night as well as day, when the same was absolutely necessary. To said requirement, cheerful compliance was rendered; and I am pleased to add, that in no instance have clerks in my employ failed to render strict attention to their duties. My principal assistants, three in number, have apparently taken a personal interest in the perfection of the records of New Hampshire soldiery. This can be readily accounted for by the fact that, two of them have themselves been honorably discharged, after a term of three years' service, from the Third New Hampshire Regiment, and the other has seen twenty-eight months' of active service, as officer and soldier, during this gigantic, but now extinct, rebellion.

Sympathizing with our volunteers, and knowing what in justice was due them from the State, they have labored with uncommon zeal to further the rendition of said justice. Nor can those who have had business at my office have failed to mark that gentlemanly and accommodating spirit on their part which is not always found in union with accurate business habits. The result has been that nearly eighteen thousand men have been accounted for, of whom no record previously existed, beyond that of their enlistment in the United States service; and in hundreds of cases even that fact was not a matter of record.

In this connection I have a grateful tribute to pay to our gallant officers in the field. In compliance with my urgent requests made to them in April of last year, they, with hardly an exception, promptly and cheerfully proffered their utmost services.

It will be remembered that during the past year all of the regiments from this State have been engaged in an almost continuous campaign. It was, therefore, no trivial matter for them to furnish back returns for three years. Almost constantly on the move, seldom having tents, and often being forced to leave all regimental papers and records in the rear, for lack of transportation and other causes, they nevertheless set to work with willing hearts and willing hands, and, despite all obstacles and inconveniences, they rendered monthly returns in such copious numbers, that I obtained in eight months, what I had every reason to expect would take twice that length of time. All honor to them for the interest that they have so substantially shown in the welfare and good name of their individual commands. Where all have done so well, it would be invidious to particularize.

On the 25th I issued the following communication to the officers of New Hampshire regiments: .

GENERAL HEAD QUARTERS STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, }
 ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
 Concord, April 25, 1865. }

To the Commissioned Officers of New Hampshire organizations, in the field:

I have the pleasure to inform you that by the valuable and efficient assistance rendered by you respectively, and with the aid of clerical assistance at Washington, D. C., I have been enabled to obtain such monthly returns of your respective organizations as will make the files in this office as complete as those in the possession of the War Department. The value of these returns cannot be estimated by figures. The welfare of our brave soldiers is inseparably connected with them. The payment of bounties, and the awarding of pensions is influenced, and the extension of State aid is based upon them. Other matters of equal importance, such as determining and establishing the heirships of property of deceased officers and men, and all other matters that are influenced by the official information of the death of our brave volunteers, are in many cases governed and decided by the information embraced in them.

The monthly returns thus obtained have enabled me to account for nearly eighteen thousand volunteers; of which, previously, no record existed at these headquarters beyond that of their enlistment into the military service of the United States.

The State records of New Hampshire soldiers up to January 1st, 1865, are as complete as they can now be made.

Monthly returns of a majority of the regiments for the months of January, February and March, 1865, have been received at these headquarters.

The necessity of promptly furnishing these returns, is enjoined upon all commanding officers of New Hampshire Regiments, respectively. Those that have failed to furnish them for the first quarter of the current year, will on the receipt of this communication, forward them at the earliest possible moment.

Blanks for monthly returns, as well as for report of casualties, will always be promptly furnished on receipt of requisition for same.

In conclusion, I would add, that, to the officers who have so kindly and cheerfully rendered me inestimable service in perfecting the records of New Hampshire soldiery, I would offer my most grateful thanks. Would that I could requite them more substantially. The knowledge, however, that they have faithfully discharged the duties devolving upon them, as officers entrusted with the welfare of New Hampshire's most noble sons, must naturally create a satisfaction, sweet and infinitely pleasing.

With high respect,

I am, your obedient servant,

NATT HEAD, Adjutant General.

The ordinary business of the office for the past year (apart from that already indicated) has been very extensive and extremely laborious. The following items will give an idea of what work has been performed :

Number of letters that have been received,	9,500
Number of letters that have been written, including certificates of enlistment issued,	12,000
Number of letters whose importance require that copies should be retained,	4,225
Number of commissions issued to volunteer officers from March 1, 1864, to May 20, 1865,	698

In addition, numberless recruiting commissions and commissions for officers of the State Militia have been issued, orders and circulars published, State aid claims of towns and cities examined, and other multifarious duties attended to.

Appropriations for and expenses of the Adjutant General's Department for the year ending July 21, 1865, have been as follows :

Current Expenses.

Appropriation for salary of Adjutant General,	$1.000 00
Appropriation for Clerk hire,	3.000 00
Total,	<hr/> $4.000 00
Drawn for Adjutant General,	$750 00
Drawn for Clerk hire,	1.957 34
Due for salaries for balance of year :
Adjutant General,	250 00
Clerk hire,	481 00
Total current expenses,	<hr/> $3.438 34
Balance unexpended,	<hr/> $561 66
Appropriations for securing back records.
Amount appropriated,	$10.000 00
Drawn for Clerk hire and other assistance,	$1.632 00
Expenses of Adjutant General to the army and army hospitals,	200 00
Stationery and printing,	465 00
Remaining unpaid (about,)	200 00

Amount appropriated brought over,	$10,000 00
Total expenditures,	$2,497 00
Balance unexpended,	$7,503 00
Total appropriations,	$14,000 00
Total expenditures,	5,935 34
Total balance unexpended,	$8,064 66

In addition there is to be deducted from the amount of $8,064 66 the sum of $188 26, expenses incurred for clerical assistance in the Quartermaster General's Department, but which has been paid from the appropriations of this office, there being no appropriation for the Quartermaster General's Department.

Anticipating that some persons may think that I was unreasonable in calling for the Honorable Legislature to appropriate so large a sum in which to obtain back records when it becomes known that such a small amount has been required, I would state that had not our faithful officers rendered efficient services in furnishing back returns, all the money unexpended would have been required to maintain clerks in Washington. Therefore the State is indebted to its faithful servants in the field, for the amount thus saved.

It is also to be remembered that the expense of printing the voluminous report which was authorized to be prepared is still to be defrayed, and that to this purpose a portion of the unexpended appropriations for this office may properly be devoted.

The above statement is as correct as can possibly be arrived at from the records of this department.

Every citizen of New Hampshire is well acquainted with the fact that the volunteer recruiting service has been under the absolute control of United States authorities, since the establishment of the Provost Marshal's Department in 1863. No State official has ever been authorized to keep a debit and credit account with the several towns and cities of the State, of their relation respectively with the United States, for men called for and men furnished. Many may rightfully think that such business is inseparably connected with this department, but from the following causes, the same has been prevented, viz:

First. The War Department has steadfastly refused to grant authority to the State to assume full charge of its recruitment of volunteers.

Second. Previous to July 21, 1864, the employment of clerical assistance in this department was not authorized by law.

Third. Since July 21, 1864, this department has been restricted to four assistants.

It is not supposable that five persons could discharge the duties connected with the volunteer recruiting service in addition to those that have devolved upon this department during the past year. What respect and admiration would not the presence of five persons thus competent, command? With what wonder and amazement would not they be gazed upon?

For valuable information concerning the volunteer recruiting service, attention is called to exhibits kindly furnished by Major William Silvey, First United States Artillery, Acting Assistant Provost Marshal General of this State, contained in volume II of this report.

On the 15th of April, 1861, the President of the United States issued his proclamation, calling for seventy-five thousand of the militia of the several States of the Union, to put down insurrection and to enforce obedience to the laws of the land. New Hampshire was required to furnish one regiment of infantry, for a period of service of three months. It is well known how promptly this call was filled. In July, 1861, a call for 300,000 three years' men was announced, which was nearly filled, when in July 1862, an additional call was made for 300,000 three years' men.

The total quota under calls of 1861, was nine thousand two hundred and thirty-four. The number furnished was eight thousand eight hundred and eighty-three.

August 4, 1862, a call for three hundred thousand nine months' men was made. The quota reduced to a three years' standard was twelve hundred and sixty-three. The number for which credit was given was one thousand seven hundred and thirty-six, which reduced to a three years' standard, gave an actual credit of four hundred and thirty-four. This call was succeeded October 17, 1863, by a call for three hundred thousand men, but its completion was not however enforced. It soon became evident that the law under which the same was made, without amendment, could not be depended upon to recruit our armies. Upon the reception of this call, the following proclamation was made by His Excellency the Governor:

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

The President of the United States has issued a Proclamation calling upon the Governors of the loyal States, to raise for the service of the United States, before the Fifth day of January next, three hundred thousand volunteers. The quota for New Hampshire under this call will be as follows:

For the First Congressional District,	1,390
For the Second Congressional District,	1,129
For the Third Congressional District,	1,249
Total,	3,768

The quotas of the different towns and wards will be announced as speedily as possible from the Adjutant General's Office.

I would impress upon the loyal citizens of New Hampshire the fact that this call of the President is not unnecessary. The recent draft has furnished very few men to our armies. The term of service of many of our volunteers is about to expire. If we throw into the field a fresh army of three hundred thousand more before the first of January, their term of service will be short, while they will win the same honor and emoluments with those who have borne the burden and heat of the day. The moral effect of such a reinforcement of our armies, following such victories as Gettysburg, Vicksburg and Port Hudson, will be the death-blow of the rebellion. The volunteers who shall be mustered into the service from this State are designed to fill up the ranks of New Hampshire regiments which have already won immortal fame, and, each recruit will be permitted to designate the corps which he wishes to enter. The General Government gives to each fresh recruit $302.00, to each veteran $402.00. In addition to these sums I do hereby (with the advice and consent of the Executive Council) offer a bounty of one hundred dollars to every man who volunteers in response to this call before the Fifth day of January next, and I would recommend to the several cities and towns to take immediate measures for promptly raising their full quota by offering (in accordance with the law enacted July 9, 1862) reasonable town bounties to be paid in addition to the Government and State bounties; or for the purpose of cashing the bounties offered by the General Government so that they shall be paid to each volunteer in full when he is mustered into service.

Let me remind the citizens of New Hampshire that if this call is not met before the Fifth of January, 1864, a draft will then be ordered in this State to meet all deficiencies up to that date. The Conscription Act provides that the first class of those enrolled shall be exhausted before the second is called upon; and every member of the first class may consider himself as elected unless this call for volunteers is promptly met, and there is a strong probability that Congress, immediately on coming together, will strike from the Conscription Act the commutation clause, and cause every able-bodied man who is drafted to be represented in the field.

It is very evident that some who have stayed at home and talked war must, under this call, report themselves for duty. It is evident that those who have depreciated and opposed the recent draft must now show their faith in volunteering by their works. Men of New Hampshire, we CAN meet this call upon us before the First of January, and, God helping us, we WILL do it. Women of New Hampshire, it is your duty to say to the husbands, brothers, sons and friends whom your influence has hindered from responding to the calls of their country: "Go to the rescue or be accounted false to your country and to God." Shall the Granite State, the State of Langdon and Stark, prove recreant in such a crisis as this? God forbid.

Given at the Council Chamber, at Concord, this fourth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-eighth.

JOSEPH A. GILMORE, Governor.

ALLEN TENNY, Secretary of State.

The next call was made February 1st, 1864, for five hundred thousand men, with the condition that there should be credited on it all the men raised by draft in 1863, as well as the volunteers under the previous call of October 17, 1863, for three hundred thousand men, and all other men not before credited.—This call, therefore, absorbed and formed the total of all calls then made subsequent to the calls of 1862. The call of February 1st, 1864, was announced as follows:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, Feb. 1, 1864. }

GENERAL ORDERS, }
No. 35. }

The following is an Order of the President of the United States:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, }
February 1, 1864. }

ORDERED, That a draft for five hundred thousand men, to serve for three years or during the war, be made on the tenth day of March next, for the military service of the United States, crediting and deducting therefrom so many as may have been enlisted or drafted into the service prior to the 1st day of March, and not heretofore credited.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

By order of the Secretary of war :

E. D. TOWNSEND, Assistant Adjutant General.

This call gave rise to the following proclamations :

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

The General Government has determined to put down the rebellion by the Fourth day of July next. By a proclamation of the President of the United States, it is—“ORDERED, That a draft of five hundred thousand men to serve for three years or during the war, be made on the 10th day of March next, for the military service of the United States, crediting and deducting therefrom so many as may have been enlisted or drafted into the service prior to the First day of March, and not heretofore credited.”

New Hampshire having filled her quota under the call for three hundred thousand volunteers, will need to raise only her proportion of two hundred thousand men, in order to meet all demands upon her before the tenth of March. By telegram from the War Department I am informed that this call “is equivalent to a call for two hundred thousand men in addition to the three hundred thousand called for October 17, 1863.” The quota of New Hampshire under this last call has not been officially announced, but will be, in round numbers, an advance of sixty-seven per cent. on the quotas of each town as assigned under the call of October 17th, by circular from the Adjutant General's office, bearing date of November 9th. The whole number of men required of our State to meet the call will not be far from two thousand. A detailed statement of the additional men required from each town will be issued from the Adjutant General's Office as soon as possible.

Meanwhile I would urge upon the people of New Hampshire the importance of taking prompt and decisive measures to meet this new demand upon them. The Government bounties will not be paid after the first of March next, but till that time each fresh recruit will receive from the General Government $300; each man who has seen nine months' service, $400. By the advice and with the consent of the Executive Council, I do hereby declare that the State bounty of $100 to soldiers enlisting in New Hampshire regiments will continue to be paid till March 10, 1864.

In order to meet this new requisition, I am authorized by the War Department to recruit the four companies of New Hampshire Cavalry, which has been recently attached to the First Rhode Island Cavalry, to a full regiment, which shall be known hereafter as the First New Hampshire Cavalry. This affords the sons of New Hampshire an opportunity to enrol their names in a regiment which is to be made up of picked men, and will doubtless be assigned to special service. An accomplished officer of the regular army has already been detailed by the War Department to assist in the organization of this regiment. Re-enlistments under the recent call, from members of New Hampshire regiments which have seen two years service, will be credited to the quota of their respective towns, or any other town which they may prefer within the limits of the same Congressional District. Each man re-enlisting from these old regiments will receive $400, Government bounty, and $100 State bounty, and have the privilege of spending thirty days with his family. Many members of the Second, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth regiments of Infantry, the Sharpshooters and the New Hampshire Battery, have already re-enlisted, and will be credited under this new call, as our quota of three thousand seven hundred and sixty-eight men, under the call of October 17, 1863, was filled at home, without counting these re-enlistments.

The men from New Hampshire can be raised by volunteering, and I am determined that they shall be. By filling up the New Hampshire Cavalry to its maximum, and encouraging the hearty disposition of our glorious veterans to re-enlist, we shall meet all requisitions upon us by the first of March. I am confident that we shall do this. There will never be another draft in the old Granite State.—Her sons will rise in their might, and, like an avalanche from their icy hills, sweep the last traces of armed treason into the Gulf of Mexico before another return of our great national anniversary. Only one more effort and the thing is done.

Given at the Council Chamber in Concord, this first day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-eighth.

JOSEPH A. GILMORE.

By His Excellency the Governor:

ALLEN TENNY, Secretary of State.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

I am informed by telegraph from Washington, on the authority both of the Secretary of War and the Provost Marshal General, that our State will be accredited with all men furnished under the draft of July 3, 1863, while no account will be made of men called for under that draft. As a consequence of this decision, I am happy to say that New Hampshire is in excess of all demands upon her at the present time.

Our deficiency at the beginning of the present official year, was	388
Quota called for October 17, 1863,	3,768
Quota as estimated under call of February 1, 1864,	2,512
Total,	6,668
Men furnished under the draft,	3,012
Men furnished under call of October 17th,	3,768
Re-enlistments from old regiments not reckoned as a part of our quota under call of October 17th,	387
Total,	7,167

In addition to the re-enlistments already reported at the Adjutant General's office a number of men have been mustered as veterans from the Third, Seventh and Eighth Infantry and the N. H. Cavalry, and these are yet to be credited to the State. It is not too much to hope that New Hampshire is at the present time at least 600 men in excess of all demands upon her. It is certain that her quota under every call is full.

While this cheering news relieves us from the necessity of any especial exertion to avoid a draft in the old Granite State, let me appeal to her patriotic citizens to keep the balance on the right side. Other calls may be made upon us, and in meeting them New Hampshire must still head the column. Let us send into the field in the Spring a full Regiment of Cavalry, composed exclusively of the sturdy yeomanry of our own State. As an incentive to continued effort in this direction, I do hereby announce that the State Bounty of $100.00 will continue to be paid, till further notice, to citizens of New Hampshire, who enlist either as fresh recruits or veteran volunteers to the credit of towns in which they have residence. The bounties offered by the General Government of $300.00 for fresh recruits, and $400.00 for veterans will be paid up to March 1, 1864.

Given at the Council Chamber, in Concord, this ninth day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-eighth.

JOSEPH A. GILMORE.

By His Excellency the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Executive Council.

ALLEN TENNY, Secretary of State.

The quota under this call of five hundred thousand men was finally adjusted at six thousand five hundred and seventy-three. The number for which credit was received, was six thousand five hundred and seventy-three.

On the 14th of March, 1864, another call was made for two hundred thousand as follows:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
Washington, March 15, 1864.

GENERAL ORDERS, }
No. 100.

Additional draft of two hundred thousand men. The following is an order by the President of the United States:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, }
Washington, March 14, 1864.

In order to supply the force required to be drafted for the navy, and to provide an adequate reserve force for all contingencies, in addition to the five hundred thousand men called for February 1, 1864, a call is hereby made and a draft ordered for two hundred thousand men, for the military service (army, navy and marine corps) of the United States.

The proportional quotas of the different wards, towns, townships, precincts, or election districts, or counties, will be made known through the Provost Marshal General's Bureau, and account will be taken of the credits and deficiencies on former quotas.

The 15th day of April, 1864, is designated as the time up to which the numbers required from each ward of a city, town, &c., may be raised by voluntary enlistment, and drafts will be made in each ward of a city, town, &c., which shall not have filled the quota assigned to it within the time designated for the number required to fill said quotas. The drafts will commence as soon after the 15th of April as practicable. The Government bounties, as now paid, continue until April 1, 1864, at which time the additional bounties cease. On and after that date, one hundred dollars bounty, only, will be paid, as provided by the act approved July 22, 1861.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

(OFFICIAL.)

E. D. TOWNSEND, Assistant Adjutant General.

On receiving the announcement of the quota of the State under this call for two hundred thousand men, the following proclamation was issued by the Governor:

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

The issue of an order by the President of the United States for an "additional draft of 200,000 men," on the 15th day of April, calls for a statement from the Executive Department of this State in regard to the demands of the General Government for men from New Hampshire.

The call of the President for 500,000 men, issued on the first of February, was intended to cover all existing deficiencies. Under that call the proportion of New Hampshire was 6,573 men. Up to the first of March, as appears by a circular issued by Brigadier General Hinks, our State was credited with 6,864 men, being an excess over all demands upon us of 291. Gen. Hinks explicitly states that his circular "does not include any veteran volunteers re-enlisted in the field," taking account only of recruits mustered within the State. Hence, not only our excess of 291, as reported by Gen. Hinks, but the number of re-enlisted veterans are to be credited under the President's recent call for 200,000 men.

*Our quota, under this call, is	2,626
Excess of volunteers,	291
Re-enlistments in Second Regiment,	100
"    Third    "	264
"    Fourth    "	400
"    Fifth    "	50
"    Sixth    "	185
"    Seventh    "	175
"    Eighth    "	245
"    Battery,	61
"    Sharpshooters,	43
"    Cavalry,	153
	<hr/> 1,967
Deficiency under present call,	659

In this statement of re-enlistments, we give for the 3d, 4th and 7th regiments the estimates of Colonel Stevens, the State Agent for re-enlisting veterans in the Department of the South. In regard to other regiments the statements are official, but later returns would be even more favorable. The facts which are given above show most conclusively that New Hampshire's deficiency under the present call is very slight. This deficiency we must meet by volunteering before the 1st of April. On that day the munificent Government bounties of $400 to veterans and $300 to fresh recruits will cease to be paid. Let us fill to the maximum, before that day, the ranks of our noble FIRST NEW HAMPSHIRE CAVALRY, which now numbers 457 men, and New Hampshire is again in excess of all demands upon her. But I would appeal to the patriotic citizens of our State to give to their Government no stinted or niggardly support. Let each sub-district see that its quota is full, beyond all question, by April 1. Let us unite in reiterating the statement that "There shall never be another draft in the Old Granite State."

Given at the Council Chamber, in Concord, this seventeenth day of March, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-eighth.

JOSEPH A. GILMORE.

By His Excellency the Governor with the advice and consent of the Executive Council.

ALLEN TENNY, Secretary of State.

On the 16th of June, His Excellency the Governor, to stimulate enlistments, in anticipation of another call, and to secure the continuance of the 1st New Hampshire Cavalry as a separate organization, issued another proclamation in the following terms:

PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

By the provisions of an act just passed by the Legislature of New Hampshire, I am empowered to issue my proclamation offering a State Bounty of Three Hundred Dollars to every recruit who may enlist and be mustered into the service of the United States to fill up the ranks of the First Regiment of the New Hampshire Cavalry, until said Regiment shall contain the maximum number required for a Cavalry Regiment. Said bounty to be paid to such recruit as soon as he shall have been mustered into the service and received at any rendezvous of the United States.

I do therefore hereby announce to the people of New Hampshire that said bounty will be immediately paid to all such persons as may volunteer to fill up the ranks of our First New Hampshire Cavalry.

This regiment has already distinguished itself in the field, and is now rendering effective service in connection with the victorious advance of our armies upon Richmond. Its ranks are, however, far from full, and I appeal to the young men of New Hampshire to rise to the emergency which demands a reinforcement of the Army of the Potomac, and avail themselves of this opportunity to enlist in a favorite branch of the service, under New Hampshire officers of experience and tried courage.

Another call will doubtless soon be made upon our State, to be promptly filled either by volunteer enlistments or by an unwelcome and peremptory draft. Every man who avails himself of this liberal bounty and enters the ranks of this favorite regiment, will diminish the quota of New Hampshire under subsequent calls. Let us have a full regiment of cavalry in the field within thirty days.

Given at the Council Chamber in Concord, this sixteenth day of June, in the year of our Lord eighteen hundred and sixty-four, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-eighth.

J. A. GILMORE.

By His Excellency the Governor:

ALLEN TENNY, Secretary of State.

This call was succeeded July 18th, 1864, by a call for five hundred thousand volunteers, announced as follows:

WAR DEPARTMENT, ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
Washington, D. C., July 19, 1864. }

GENERAL ORDERS, }
No. 232. }

A PROCLAMATION BY THE PRESIDENT.

Whereas, by the act approved July 4, 1864, entitled "An act further to regulate and provide for the enrolling and calling out the national forces, and for other purposes," it is provided that the President of the United States may, "at his discretion, at any time hereafter, call for any number of men, as volunteers, for the respective terms of one, two and three years, for military service," and "that in case the quota of, (or) any part thereof, of any town, township, ward of a city, precinct, or election district, or of a county not so subdivided, shall not be filled within the space of fifty days after such call, then the President shall immediately order a draft for one year, to fill such quota, or any part thereof, which may be unfilled." And whereas the new enrollment heretofore issued is so far completed as that the aforementioned act of Congress may now be put in operation, for recruiting and keeping up the strength of the armies in the field, for garrisons, and such military operations as may be required for the purpose of suppressing the rebellion, and restoring the authority of the United States Government in the insurgent States:

Now, therefore I, ABRAHAM LINCOLN, President of the United States, do issue this my call for five hundred thousand volunteers for the military service; provided, nevertheless, that this call shall be reduced by all credits which may be established under section eight of the aforesaid act, on account of persons who have entered the naval service during the present rebellion, and by credits for men furnished to the military service in excess of calls heretofore made.

Volunteers will be accepted under this call for one, two or three years, as they may elect, and will be entitled to the bounty provided by the law for the period of service for which they enlist.

And I hereby proclaim, order and direct that immediately after the fifth day of September, 1864, being fifty days from the date of this call, a draft for troops to serve for one year shall be had in every town, township, ward of a city, precinct or election district, or county not so subdivided, to fill the quota which shall be assigned to it under this call, or any part thereof which may be unfilled by volunteers on the said fifth day of September, 1864.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this eighteenth day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-ninth.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

By the President:

WILLIAM H. SEWARD, Secretary of State.

By order of the Secretary of War:

E. D. TOWNSEND, Assistant Adjutant General.

The quota under this call was five thousand nine hundred and twenty-five. No time was lost on the part of the people of the State in making every possible exertion to fill this call in the time specified.

To facilitate the raising of volunteers the following Act was passed by Legislature and announced by the Governor to the people of the State:

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

The President of the United States having issued his Proclamation calling for 500,000 men, of which number our quota is to be filled by volunteering if we can, by drafting if we must, I desire to call your attention to the following Act, passed by the Legislature of this State on the sixteenth day of July, 1864:

AN ACT TO FACILITATE THE RAISING OF TROOPS.

STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

In the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. The Governor, with the advice and consent of the Council, may appoint State agents, not exceeding ten to recruit in the insurgent States, agreeably to the act of Congress now in force, with power to increase that number to forty, if the experiment prove successful and the interest of the State shall require it. And the men so raised shall be credited to the several cities, towns, sub-districts and places, in proportion to the quota of each city, town, sub-district and place.

SEC. 2. Said State agents shall receive as pay for their services and expenses twenty dollars for each man by them enlisted and mustered into the service of the United States for the term of one year; twenty-five dollars for each man so enlisted and mustered for the term of two years, and forty dollars for each man so enlisted and mustered for the term of three years.

SEC. 3. The Governor with the advice and consent of the Council is authorized and empowered to issue his proclamations, (from time to time,) offering bounties not exceeding one hundred dollars for one year's men two hundred dollars for two years' men, and three hundred dollars for three years' men, and in the same proportion for any other term of service, to each soldier who shall be mustered into the service of the United States to fill the quota of this State during the present war, whether such soldier shall have voluntarily enlisted, or volunteered as a substitute for a drafted or enrolled man, or as a representative substitute for any citizen not enrolled, and not exceeding two hundred dollars to each drafted man for one year who shall be mustered into said service to fill said quota during said war, provided that for all recruits enlisted in the insurgent States under the provisions of this act, the Governor is hereby authorized to pay a bounty not exceeding the sum of five hundred dollars for a three years' man.

SEC. 4. Any city may by vote of its City Council, and any town or place may at any legal meeting thereof duly notified and holden for that purpose, upon or in anticipation of any call of the United States Government, for troops during the present war, raise money and appropriate the same as bounty to each soldier, except those enlisted in or from insurgent States, who shall be mustered into the service of the United States or shall have been mustered into said service since the last call, and prior to the passage of this act, to fill the quota of such city, town or place, whether such soldier shall have voluntarily enlisted, or volunteered as a substitute for a drafted or enrolled man, such bounty in no case to exceed in addition to the State bounty, the sum of one hundred dollars for each one year's man, two hundred dollars for each two years' man, and three hundred dollars for each three years' man, and in the same proportion for any other term of service, and such city, town or place, may make such distinction in the bounties to be paid between volunteers and substitutes of drafted or enrolled men as it may deem expedient; and any city, town or place in the same manner may raise money and appropriate the same as bounty to each man drafted for one year therefrom who shall be mustered into the service of the United States as part of the quota of such city, town or place, in addition to the State bounty, a sum not exceeding two hundred dollars.

SEC. 5. The Governor and Council, and the various towns and places may make such regulations as they may deem expedient in relation to the time and manner of payment of the bounties authorized by this act, provided, however, that in no case shall any of said bounties be paid to any soldier, or his order, until he shall have been duly mustered into the military service of the United States.

SEC. 6. No city, town, place or agent shall pay, or offer to any drafted man, volunteer or substitute, any greater sum than that in this act authorized, under a penalty not less than one hundred dollars, or more than five hundred dollars for each offence, which may be recovered by indictment, one half to the use of the prosecutor.

SEC. 7. All cities, towns and places shall be credited on their respective quotas for all men by them furnished or furnished by any inhabitant of such city, town or place, and mustered into the service of the United States in excess of all former quotas, and prior to the passage of this act, and upon such excess being duly certified by the Assistant Provost Marshal General for the State, to the State authorities, the same State bounty as provided in this act for volunteers, shall be paid for the men so furnished to the city, town, place or persons entitled thereto, provided however, that such bounty shall in no case exceed the sum actually paid for such men, and that any State bounty heretofore paid to the men constituting such excess shall be duly allowed and deducted.

SEC. 8. Whenever there shall be any call by the General Government for soldiers from this State, for its service, each city, town and place shall be called upon for its quota in proportion to the number its enrolled men bears to the enrolled men of the State, and shall be credited with any excess or charged with any deficiency of the men by it furnished up to the time of said call.

SEC. 9. The Governor is authorized to draw his warrants upon the treasury for so much money as may be necessary to pay the bounties and agents' pay provided for by this act, said bounties to be paid to the cities, towns or places, and to the drafted man, volunteer, substitute, or their assigns.

SEC. 10. This act shall take effect upon its passage; all authority heretofore given to the Governor and Council to offer bounties, and to the various cities, towns and places, to raise and appropriate money for bounties, and all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed.

WILLIAM E. CHANDLER,

CHARLES H. BELL,

Approved July 16, 1864.

JOSEPH A. GILMORE, Governor.

In consideration of the provisions of this act and the exigences of the public service, I, JOSEPH A. GILMORE, Governor of the State of New Hampshire, with the advice and consent of the honorable Council, do hereby proclaim that the State will pay to each soldier who shall be mustered into the service of the United States to fill the quota of this State, during the present war, whether such soldier shall have voluntarily enlisted, or volunteered as a substitute for a drafted or enrolled man, or as a representative substitute for any citizen not enrolled, and to all recruits enlisted in the insurgent States, under the provisions of said act, the highest sums authorized by the provisions of the third section of said act to be paid as bounties to said soldiers respectively, whether volunteers, drafted men, substitutes for drafted or enrolled men, representative substitutes for citizens not enrolled, or recruits enlisted in the insurgent States, whenever any soldier of either class above designated shall be duly mustered into the military service of the United States to fill the quota of this State from time to time required.

And I do further proclaim and give notice that I shall in all other respects maintain the requirements and carry out all other provisions of said act in so far as the same shall be found to be in accordance with the laws of the United States, doing all in my power to promptly meet this requisition of the General Government with as little hardship as possible to the people of this State.

I would appeal to the patriotic citizens of New Hampshire to rally to the support of that noble army which, for the first time in the history of the rebellion, seriously threatens the rebel capital. And I would suggest to the authorities of our towns and cities the propriety of their immediately offering the highest bounties authorized by section four of the above act, thus making the aggregate of our State and town bounties $200 for one year's service, $400 for two, and $600 for three in addition to the bounties offered by the General Government.

Given at the Council Chamber, in Concord, this twenty-first day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-ninth.

JOSEPH A. GILMORE.

By His Excellency, the Governor, with advice of Council:

ALLEN TENNY, Secretary of State.

The following proclamations were also issued during the extra session of the Legislature upon the modification of the "act to facilitate the raising of troops," passed at the June session:

PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

An act entitled "An act to facilitate the raising of troops" having this day become a law, I would call the attention of the people of New Hampshire to its provisions, and assure them that I shall do my utmost to put it immediately in effective operation.

In accordance with the provisions of this act, I shall commission any agents which a town or city may designate to recruit for said sub-districts in the insurgent States, and afford them every facility in my power for the prosecution of their duties.

And I do hereby authorize any agents appointed to recruit for the quota of the entire State or any sub-district therein, to offer and pay, on behalf of the State, a bounty not exceeding $150 for one year's men, $300 for two years' men, and $500 to three years' men to each recruit who may be secured in the insurgent States, so soon as he shall have been duly mustered into the service of the United States.

I further announce that a bounty of $100 for volunteers or substitutes who enlist for one year, $200 for volunteers or substitutes who enlist for two years, and $300 for volunteers or substitutes who enlist for three years, will be paid by the State of New Hampshire.

I call upon the towns and cities of the State to offer the largest bounties authorized by the military bill just passed, and do all in their power to stimulate recruiting in this and other States for the quota of New Hampshire.

Given at the Council Chamber this nineteenth day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-ninth.

JOSEPH A. GILMORE, Governor.

By His Excellency the Governor :

ALLEN TENNY, Secretary of State.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

Whereas, the General Government has authorized the raising of five detached companies of Heavy Artillery in this State, and the Legislature of New Hampshire has authorized the payment of Ten Dollars in addition to the prescribed bounties, for each man furnished to these companies, or to any other new organization which may be authorized in this State, by the War Department, I do hereby promise to any recruiting agent or citizen the sum of ten dollars for each man furnished by them and duly mustered to fill these companies or any other new organizations.

And I do hereby establish the recruiting offices for these five companies of Heavy Artillery at Manchester, Concord, Nashua, Dover and Laconia, in this State. And I do hereby notify the people of New Hampshire that I have requested of the War Department the privilege of raising one more company of Heavy Artillery, for which the recruiting office shall be opened at Lancaster in this State.

Capt. James O. Chandler of Manchester, is authorized to recruit in that city for the third company of Detached Heavy Artillery from the State of New Hampshire. Other appointments will be made and announced from the Adjutant General's office.

I would suggest to the people of New Hampshire that this favor, unexpectedly, but not without frequent solicitation, granted by the War Department, affords a rare opportunity for our citizens to enlist in support of their government, and appeal to them to use their influence to fill these companies to their maximum before the 5th of September next.

Given at the Council Chamber this nineteenth day of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-ninth.

JOSEPH A. GILMORE, Governor.

By His Excellency the Governor :

ALLEN TENNY, Secretary of State.

In this connection, the following general order and circular was issued from this office :

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
Concord, Aug. 24, 1864. }

GENERAL ORDERS, }
No. 1. }

Authority having been received from the War Department to raise six companies of Heavy Artillery, the following is hereby promulgated :

The Third Company Heavy Artillery will be raised at Manchester and vicinity, for which Capt. James O. Chandler is appointed Chief Recruiting Officer, with Head Quarters at Manchester.

The Fourth Company Heavy Artillery will be raised at Dover and vicinity, for which George W. Colbath, is appointed Chief Recruiting Officer, with Head Quarters at Dover.

The Fifth Company Heavy Artillery will be raised at Concord and vicinity, for which Robert S. Davis, is appointed Chief Recruiting Officer, with Head Quarters at Concord.

The Sixth Company Heavy Artillery will be raised at Nashua and vicinity, for which Edward Parker is appointed Chief Recruiting Officer, with Head Quarters at Nashua.

The Seventh Company Heavy Artillery will be raised at Laconia and vicinity, for which William N. Blair is appointed Chief Recruiting Officer, with Head Quarters at Laconia.

The Eighth Company Heavy Artillery will be raised at Lancaster and vicinity, and at Newport and vicinity, for which E. R. Kent and Truman L. Heath have been appointed General Recruiting Officers, the former with Head Quarters at Lancaster, and the latter with Head Quarters at Newport.

All persons assisting in recruiting said companies will report for orders and instructions to the Chief and General Recruiting Officers of same.

Recruiting Officers will be governed by the following Regulations :

1. Enlistments will not be for a period less than one year.
2. They will not allow any man to be deceived or inveigled into service by false representations, but will in person explain the nature of the service, the length of the term, the pay, clothing, rations, and other allowances, to which a soldier is entitled by law, to every man, before he signs the enlistment.
3. The conditions of the enlistment will be such as are prescribed by the army regulations. You will enlist no man whose age shall exceed forty-five years, or be less than eighteen years, and none but able-bodied men,—being precise in your inquiries in this respect.

Recruits must at least be five feet three inches in height; but the regulations in respect to age and height does not extend to musicians.

4. Enlistments must in all cases be made in duplicate. Copies will be delivered to the mustering officer by whom the company is mustered.

5. Enlistments must be filled up in a fair and legible hand. The real name of the volunteer must be ascertained and correctly spelled; and the christian name must not be abbreviated.

6. At the time of enlistment, the volunteer must be carefully examined by a surgeon appointed for that purpose, who will govern himself by the instructions embraced in Circular No. 1, War Department, Provost Marshal General's Office, dated Washington, D. C., Jan. 5, 1864, copies of which will be furnished.

After the volunteer has signed the enlistment papers, the oath will be administered to him according to the form in the enlistment paper, by a justice of the peace, who will sign the proper certificate upon the enlistment paper.

7. All volunteers, will be forwarded by squads or companies to the Superintendent of Volunteer Recruiting Service of the State, at Concord, for muster into service, but it is preferred that they be forwarded by companies.

On being mustered they will be ordered to Camp Gilmore, Concord, there to remain until the organization of the companies is complete.

8. No subsistence or pay will be allowed until after muster into service.

Date of enlistment, date of muster, and date of commencement of service, will take effect from the actual date of muster into service.

The volunteer has the choice of enlisting and remaining at home until the minimum number is raised to enable his company to be mustered in—drawing no pay or subsistence meanwhile—or be promptly forwarded to the Superintendent of Recruiting Service at Concord, for muster into service, and on being mustered, ordered into camp.

9. Transportation will be furnished, if forwarded by companies, on application to the Adjutant General.

10. Reasonable expense incurred, such as rent of office and advertising—in not more than two papers for each company—will be paid.

For such expenses incurred, you will take a duplicate receipt as a voucher for every payment made.

Blanks will be hereafter furnished to you, upon which to make up your accounts of expenditures in form, for payment by the United States Mustering and Disbursing Officer.

11. In all the vouchers, items, with the dates and cost of same must be stated.

12. No conditional enlistments must be received.

13. All necessary blanks will be furnished to the Chief and General Recruiting Officers by the Adjutant General.

14. Bounties will be paid by the United States as follows:

For volunteers who enlist for one year,	$100.00
For volunteers who enlist for two years,	200.00
For volunteers who enlist for three years,	300.00

The first installment of bounty will be paid by the Mustering and Disbursing Officer when the volunteer is mustered in, as follows:

To volunteers for one year,	$33.33
To volunteers for two years,	66.66
To volunteers for three years,	100.00

15. Bounties will be paid by the State of New Hampshire as follows :

For volunteers who enlist for one year,	$100.00
For volunteers who enlist for two years,	200.00
For volunteers who enlist for three years,	300.00

16. These companies must be organized and mustered into service by the 5th of September, 1864, so that towns and cities may receive credit for enlistments before the draft commences.

On failing to be mustered by that time, they will be consolidated or assigned to organizations now in the field.

17. It is enjoined upon all, that the utmost effort possible will be made to fill the companies of this desirable branch of the service, to the maximum number by the time specified ; thereby giving New Hampshire the credit of having eight companies of Heavy Artillery in the service and aiding in filling her quota under the present call for five hundred thousand volunteers.

By order of the Governor :

NATT HEAD, Adjutant General.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE, }
Concord, N. H., Aug. 24, 1864. }

To the Selectmen of the several Towns and Wards in the State :

GENTLEMEN :—Permit me to call your attention to a mode by which your quotas can probably be filled before the draft, and at a much less expense than by sending substitutes at the present enormous prices.

The Eighteenth Regiment of Infantry, Colonel Charles H. Bell, of Exeter, and six Companies of Heavy Artillery, are now being raised in this State for one year's service. Towns are allowed by the new military law to pay to persons who have for three months been inhabitants thereof, and who enlist as part of their quotas, any sum they may see fit to vote as bounty. So if a town should vote $300 as bounty to each volunteer inhabitant, &c., that sum added to the State and United States bounties, of $100 each, would give the volunteer $500 bounty, or $100 more than a drafted man can possibly receive ; and the town will in this way save $300 to $400 on each man from what it would have to pay for substitutes. Thus a town putting in twenty men would save from $6000 to $8000.

It is understood that the draft cannot be postponed beyond the 5th of September, as that day was fixed by act of Congress. At the rate at which men are put in at the several Provost Marshals' offices, a draft for at least one half the quota of the State will have to be made on the 5th of September. The young men, a very large part of them, know that if drafted they must go at the present price of substitutes, and it is believed that large numbers of them will be ready to enlist for one year and avoid the draft. They will get a large bounty, generally ; will not be put into old regiments with substitutes, &c., and they will prefer to volunteer.

It certainly seems for the interest of towns that their officers should make every effort in their power to fill their quotas at this reduced expense by encouraging voluntary enlistments of their inhabitants into the new organizations. And the sooner it is done the better. Nineteen hundred and fifty men will fill the new organizations to the maximum, and a considerable number have already been raised. From present indications there is no certainty that another week will not see them full.

So much as to the matter of saving expense to towns. But I should feel that I had not discharged my duty if I failed to call your attention to the incalculable benefit which the enlistment of our own inhabitants will render to the country.— One regiment of such men is more desirable than a brigade of substitutes. Our State may well be proud when she sends to the front the hardy sons of her soil, who have borne the old flag gallantly on scores of battle-fields, and have never once done discredit to the memory and home of John Stark.

Yours, respectfully,

NATT HEAD, Adjutant General.

After the call of July 19th, 1864, had been fully met, His Excellency the Governor, issued the following proclamation, appealing to the people of New Hampshire not to intermit their efforts to recruit our gallant army :

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

While it is my privilege to announce to the people of New Hampshire that the quota of our State under all calls is now substantially filled, I would urge upon our citizens the necessity of laboring with unremitting diligence till the Eighteenth Regiment of Infantry and Twelfth Company of Heavy Artillery are filled to the maximum. To complete these organizations we now require about six hundred men, and we are allowed by the War Department thirty days in which to fill the ranks and complete the organization of these bodies. Prompt, energetic and experienced officers have been designated to the command of the regiment and company, and the Executive will spare no pains to fill them with New Hampshire men. The Honorable Council have voted unanimously to continue the payment of State bounty of $100, $200 and $300 to one, two and three years' men, and instructed me to impress upon the towns the importance of similar action. Will not our local authorities anticipate the wants of the Government, and, even though no call is made, no draft is pending, send to the assistance of our noble brethren in the field the few men required to complete those organizations which have been so auspiciously begun? Believing that it is no time to measure and weigh our obligations to our country, and that the people of New Hampshire have no disposition to do so, I have promised the War Department that the Eighteenth Regiment shall be filled in thirty days.

Given at the Council Chamber, in Concord, this thirteenth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-ninth.

By His Excellency the Governor :

ALLEN TENNY, Secretary of State.

The last call for troops was made December 19th, 1864, as follows :

WAR DEPARTMENT,
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Washington, Dec. 21, 1864. }

GENERAL ORDERS, }
No. 302. }

By the President of the United States of America. A Proclamation, calling for three hundred thousand volunteers :

Whereas by the act, approved July 4, 1864, entitled "An act further to regulate and provide for the enrolling and calling out the national forces, and for other purposes," it is provided that the President of the United States may, "at his discretion, at any time hereafter, call for any number of men, as volunteers, for the respective terms of one, two and three years, for military service," and "that in case the quota or any part thereof, of any town, township, ward of a city, precinct or election district, or of any county not so subdivided, shall not be filled within the space of fifty days after such call, then the President shall immediately order a draft for one year to fill such quota or any part thereof, which may be unfilled ;"

And whereas, by the credits allowed in accordance with the act of Congress on the call for five hundred thousand men, made July 18th, 1864, the number of men to be obtained under that call was reduced to two hundred and eighty thousand ; and whereas the operations of the enemy in certain States have rendered it impracticable to procure from them their full quotas of troops under said call ; and whereas, from the foregoing causes, but two hundred and forty-thousand men have been put into the army, navy, and marine corps, under the said call of July 18, 1864, leaving a deficiency on that call of two hundred and sixty thousand ;

Now, therefore, I, Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States of America, in order to supply the aforesaid deficiency, and to provide for casualties in the military and naval service of the United States, do issue this my call for three hundred thousand (300,000) volunteers, to serve for one, two or three years. The quotas of the States, districts, and sub-districts, under this call, will be assigned by the War Department, through the Bureau of the Provost Marshal General of the United States ; and, "in case the quota, or any part thereof, of any town, township, ward of a city, precinct or election district, or of any county not so subdivided, shall not be filled " before the fifteenth day of February, eighteen hundred and sixty-five, then a draft shall be made to fill such quota or any part thereof, under this call, which may be unfilled on said fifteenth day of February, 1865.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this nineteenth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-ninth.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

By the President :

WILLIAM H. SEWARD, Secretary of State.

By order of the Secretary of War :

E. D. TOWNSEND, Assistant Adjutant General.

The quota under this call was two thousand seventy-two, but was afterwards reduced, by order of the President, to eight hundred and four men. Previous to this call there was an excess due the State of thirteen hundred and twenty-five, giving a surplus over the call of five hundred and twenty-one men.

The number of men credited under the last call up to April 30, 1865, when volunteering ceased, was twelve hundred and ninety-three, which added to the surplus of previous calls, (five hundred and twenty-one) gives the surplus over all calls, April 30, 1865, of eighteen hundred and fourteen men. This last call for troops gave rise to the two proclamations which follow:

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

After Saturday next, the seventh day of January, the bounties heretofore paid to substitutes by the State of New Hampshire will, by unanimous vote of the Governor and Council, cease to be paid. In making this announcement I am well aware that the action which has been taken in the premises by the Governor and Council, may not at once commend itself to the favorable judgment of the people of the State. Such action, however, is imperatively demanded by the facts which have been officially reported by members of the State Government, who have lately made a personal inspection of the condition of nearly every New Hampshire organization now in the service. It appears from such report, that neither the General Government nor any of the States (with the exception of New Hampshire and Connecticut) have for some time past been paying bounties to substitutes. It appears, also, that hundreds of men who have been duly mustered and forwarded to our regiments have never been received; and that hundreds more have deserted to the enemy on the first opportunity. The State has, therefore, paid thousands of dollars for men who (while they nominally fill our quotas, and while they excuse from military service men who are able to bear arms, and from their professions of loyalty ought to be willing to do so,) are rendering no help to our country in her hour of peril, but on the contrary giving aid and comfort to her enemies. Such men are disgracing the State which they represent, and making the names of some of our best and bravest regiments a by-word and a reproach in the loyal armies of our country.

Having learned these facts from unmistakable evidence, I cannot feel that it will be right—that it will be any thing less than a betrayal of the trusts committed to them—for the State authorities to longer acquiesce and assist in sending this class of men to nominally recruit, but really disgrace her noble regiments which have won such glorious distinction on every field. The honor of the State demands a change in this respect; and (at whatever sacrifice of personal popularity, at the price even of a humiliating confession of previous ignorance and delinquency), the change shall be made. The public treasure shall not be squandered with no adequate and substantial return.

The citizens of New Hampshire will, of course, still have the opportunity to send substitutes to represent them in the rebel ranks. The withdrawal of the State bounties will doubtless cause such a decline in the market value of bounty-jumpers and gallows-birds, that they can be procured by individuals as cheaply as ever. No substantial injury is therefore inflicted upon those persons who feel that they must be represented by proxy in the army, by the action of the Governor and Council which is this day announced. But I appeal to such persons to send no man to the front, for whose loyalty and good conduct they are not willing to be personally responsible—that they may be in fact, as well as in name, represented in the final overthrow of the rebel hosts.

In making this announcement, I wish it distinctly to be understood that I shall spare no pains, efforts or expense to promptly fill every quota which is assigned to the State of New Hampshire, and shield our people from an indiscriminating and unwelcome draft. Bounties of $100, $200 and $300 will still continue to be paid by the State to volunteers for one, two and three years in the military, naval or marine service of the United States. Bounties of $150, $300 and $500 will still be paid to recruits, who may be accredited to the quota of New Hampshire within the limits of insurgent States; and the Governor and Council confidently expect to secure from this source, at a comparatively slight expense, more men (and those too, thoroughly loyal, and in many cases veteran soldiers) than the substitute brokers of New Hampshire are prepared to furnish. Every facility consistent with the existing law, will be given to sub-districts desiring to recruit in insurgent States.

In conclusion, let me appeal to the people of New Hampshire to offer such bounties to their own citizens as may fill the decimated ranks of our old and tried regiments, with such men as we sent in the Eighteenth Infantry and the Heavy Artillery. The recent call for troops demands of our State but a few hundred men; but other demands may be made of us in order to give the death blow to that gigantic rebellion, which already totters toward its grave. To such demands, let us make a substantial and hearty response. Let our young men respond in person. Let our wealthy citizens, who are not subject to enrollment, esteem it a privilege to have their names borne in the ranks of our victorious armies, by tried and trusty representative recruits.

Given at the Council Chamber at Concord, this fourth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-ninth.

JOSEPH A. GILMORE, Governor.

ALLEN TENNY, Secretary of State.

A PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

It is only at this late day that I am enabled to lay before the people of New Hampshire a statement of the quota which they will be required to furnish under the President's call of December 19th, 1864, for three hundred thousand men.—That quota is two thousand and seventy-two men, after the deduction of all credits to which our State is entitled, up to the commencement of the current year. These men will, it is supposed, be demanded of those towns which responded to the call of July, 1864, by furnishing one year's men. The quotas of the various sub-districts will be speedily announced by the district Provost Marshals, so that the authorities of towns and cities may be informed what number of men they are required to furnish in order to escape the pending draft.

Supposing the call of December 19th to be little more than a nominal demand upon our State, the citizens of New Hampshire have relaxed their efforts to secure men, and find themselves unexpectedly called on to furnish two thousand volunteers within the brief space of a fortnight. The task is a difficult one, but it can and must be accomplished. Let every loyal citizen put his shoulder to the wheel, and let us escape the disgrace of having history record the fact, that the war for the Union closed with a draft in New Hampshire. One more effort and the work which we have set ourselves to accomplish will be done, and well done. The glorious victories of Sherman and Thomas and Terry, encourage the hope that we have heard, and are now to answer the last call. The bounties paid by the State, under the present call, will be those specified in my proclamation of January 4th, a copy of which is hereunto annexed.

Given at the Council Chamber, at Concord, this twenty-seventh day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five, and of the Independence of the United States the eighty-ninth.

On the 5th of May, Capt. Israel B. To His Excellency Joseph A. Gilmore, Governor of New Hampshire:

I have the honor, by direction of Major-General John A. Dix, commanding the Department, to request that you will have detailed, in pursuance with instructions received from the President of the United States, two companies of militia to relieve the two companies now at Fort Constitution, Portsmouth harbor, whose term of service will expire on the 6th of July, 1864. The term of service will be for ninety days. Capt. Silvey, A. A. P. M. G., and chief mustering officer, will have the musters made.

I am, sir, very respectfully,

your obedient servant,

D. T. VAN BUREN, Colonel & A. A. G.

On the reception of the above orders, the commanding officers of the two companies at the Fort, were consulted as to whether or no their respective companies would not like to reënlist. Their answers being of a most favorable character, no other organizations were called out. Time however passed rapidly away, their term of service had expired and yet they were not certain whether or no they would reënlist. Too long delay occurring, the following orders were promulgated July 21st:

GENERAL HEAD QUARTERS, STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, }
Adjutant General's Office, Concord, July 21, 1864. }

SPECIAL ORDERS, }
No. 17. }

In compliance with orders received from Major-General John A. Dix, commanding Department of the East, dated New York City, June 30th, 1864, it is hereby ordered,

I. That the company at Manchester known as the Martin Guards, commanded by Capt. George C. Houghton, prepare at once to be mustered into the United States service for a period of ninety days, to relieve the National Guards, commanded by Capt. James O. Chandler, now on duty at Fort Constitution, Portsmouth harbor, whose term of service has expired.

At least the minimum number of enlisted men (eighty,) must be present on parole for muster.

The captains of said companies will report to this office when their companies are ready for muster, which must be at the earliest practicable moment. When ready, these companies will be mustered in their respective locations, Manchester and Fort Constitution, by a United States mustering officer, and orders will be given for the immediate transportation of the Martin Guards to Fort Constitution.

IV. Capt. James O. Chandler, commanding National Guards, will, on being mustered out of service, proceed with those members of his company, as do not desire to re-enlist, to their homes in Manchester. Application will be made on the proper United States authority for transportation.

By order of the Governor,

NATT HEAD, Adjutant General.

Capt. Littlefield was further instructed to have his company recruited by a certain date. It becoming evident that such would not be the case, he was directed to have his company ready for muster, July 28th. He failing to comply with these last instructions, the following orders were announced :

GENERAL HEAD QUARTERS, STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE, }
Adjutant General's Office, Concord, July 30, 1864. }

At least the minimum number of enlisted men (eighty;) must be present on parade for muster.

On being mustered into the United States service, orders will be given for immediate transportation to Fort Constitution, Portsmouth harbor.

By order of the Governor,

NATT HEAD, Adjutant General.

Capt. George C. Houghton, commanding Martin Guards, paraded his company, comprising eighty enlisted men and three officers, for muster into service, July 25th, (four days after being ordered), and were mustered into service the same day, at Manchester, by Capt. W. M. Graham, 1st United States Artillery, mustering officer, for a period of service of ninety days.

Capt. Joel H. Tarbell, commanding Lafayette Artillery Company, paraded his company, consisting of the minimum number of enlisted men and three officers, for muster into United States service, August 1st, and was mustered into service same day, at Lyndeborough, for a period of ninety days' service, by Capt. service at Dover, N. H., July 28th. The Lafayette Artillery Company was mustered out of service Sept. 23d, 1864, at Fort Constitution, and were on the same day transported to their homes. Capt. Complete records of the above companies may be found in volume II., indexed by their respective names as State militia organizations.

VISIT TO THE ARMY.

During the Winter of 1864, I found it necessary to make a personal inspection of the condition of our New Hampshire regiments, and satisfy myself in regard to what was required on the part of the State to fit them for efficient participation in the approaching Spring campaign. The fact that no visit had been paid to our soldiers in the field by any State official since the war began rendered this visit doubly necessary; and in my opinion it is only to be regretted that this office was not at an early day brought into closer personal relations to the officers and men of our gallant regiments.

The Hon. Leonard Chase of the Executive Council, Colonel Hutchins of the Governor's Staff, and Mr. J. H. Gilmore, clerk to the Governor and Council, accompanied me throughout my entire trip. The Governor, himself, the State Treasurer and Warden of the State Prison, visited Washington at the same time on business arising from their several official positions.

A Sabbath was spent by the party on its way to Washington in New York, and was devoted by me to a thorough inspection of the New England Rooms, under the efficient superintendence of Col. Frank E. Howe. Few of our citizens have any just conception of the magnitude and the beneficent influence of this noble charity. Soldiers from all sections of the country have been freely welcomed by it to lodging, food, clothing and medical attendance. New Hampshire men who have passed through New York on their way to and from their regiments have spoken in terms of uniform praise of its tender and thoughtful care. The Adjutant General feels grateful for an opportunity to personally inspect the workings of the New England Rooms while in the full tide of successful operation, and speaking an earnest word of commendation for him who in their supervision has won the enviable name of "The Soldiers' Friend."

At Philadelphia a sufficient stop was made to enable me, under the guidance of our gentlemanly and accomplished State Agent, Col. Robert R. Corson, to visit and minutely inspect some of the larger buildings which have been thrown open for the reception of our sick and wounded soldiers in and around this city of hospitals. Among those which excited especial interest was the Mower Hospital at Chestnut Hill, in charge of Surgeon J. H. Hopkinson, which at the time of our visit had two thousand two hundred and thirty-nine patients under treatment, and the Satterlee Hospital (still larger) at West Philadelphia in charge of Dr. I. I. Hayes, of arctic fame. In both the hospitals mentioned, and others which we visited, we found many New Hampshire men whose immediate transfer to the Manchester Hospital was one of the principal objects of Governor Gilmore's visit to Washington. Everywhere the officials were courteous and attentive, explaining complicated machinery and thorough system of these noble institutions with evident interest in the welfare of those committed to their charge. The pleasantest feature in the visit was the hearty gratitude evinced by those citizens of our State whom sickness and wounds had shut up from the busy scenes of camp or the tender associations of home, that they were visited and cared for by the authorities of their native State. We rejoiced to find these noble sufferers everywhere tenderly cared for, fed and clothed.

For several days after my arrival in Washington I was in constant communication with the War Department in adjusting certain important matters connected with my office, and making arrangements to supply the defective records of the office from the fuller returns on file in the department at Washington. Time was found however to visit those forts in the defences around Washington which were garrisoned by the 1st New Hampshire Heavy Artillery, and receive the generous hospitality of Colonel Long. A thorough inspection was also made of the home-like arrangements for the comfort of our men at Col. Mason's New Hampshire Rooms on Seventh Street, which were under the immediate charge of Miss Miranda Swain, a lady who has done much for the comfort of our sick and wounded soldiers.

On the 19th of December, I left Washington in the steamer Daniel Webster for City Point, where I arrived on the day following. Taking the cars almost immediately on what was formerly the Petersburg and City Point Railroad the party were soon set down at Hancock's Station near the Headquarters of the 2d Brigade 2d Division of the 9th Army Corps, and cordially welcomed by Gen. Griffin, Col. Bixby and other old acquaintances.

I spent with Gen. Griffin three days, being detained at his very agreeable quarters longer than I had intended, by heavy rains.

On the afternoon of the 21st, I made a visit to the Sixth, Ninth and Eleventh Regiments with which some of my party were quartered during my entire stay on the left. I found Col. Harriman, Col. Titus, Lt. Col. Cogswell, Lt. Col. Bixby and their subordinates in excellent health and spirits. All however were clamorous for reënforcements, and justly complaining of the character of the men whom we had lately sent to their regiments. Indeed this complaint was very general among the officers of all our regiments and supported by statistics which should startle the people of New Hampshire. One or two examples will illustrate the nature of the evidence which was laid before us on this subject. During the twelve months preceding my visit three hundred and twenty-eight substitutes had been sent to the Ninth New Hampshire. Of this number only one hundred and forty were ever received. The remainder, one hundred and eighty-eight in number, helped materially to fill our quota, but were not of the least possible service in the field. They cost the State, at a low estimate, one hundred thousand dollars. Since the organization of the Eleventh Regiment, six hundred and fifty-two men had been sent to it; of this number not more than two hundred could be satisfactorily accounted for. The Fifth New Hampshire, (than which no regiment has a more honorable record,) had been recently moved back from the front because its men could not be trusted on picket. Thirty of them deserted in one night. Several had been hung for desertion to the enemy, others were awaiting trial at the time of my visit.

It was such facts as these (for the first time realized when their baneful influence was seen,) which upon being reported to His Excellency the Governor, and the Honorable Council, on my return, induced them to immediately withdraw the large bounties which were then being paid to substitutes; and thus rid the State of the disgrace of sending to the front a class of men who had sullied the fair fame of our regiments in the opinion of every General officer with whom I conversed.

On the 22d of December, while the fitful climate of Virginia reminded us of the "stern and rock-bound coast" with which the day is associated, we made a brief inspection of the works before Petersburg, visiting in turn Forts Hays, Davis, Sedgwick, Rice and Morton, and gaining some faint idea of life in the forts and trenches.

At the latter post we got our first view of Petersburg, and a glance at "the crater" where our brave boys suffered so severely. Returning from it to our comfortable quarters, we traversed a sunny field, over which the officers who escorted our party had seen the storm of battle fiercely raging. In a sheltered nook, under the shade of a clump of pines, we found the graves of several of the Sixth New Hampshire—each one carefully distinguished by a rude head-board bearing the name and rank of the honored dead, and, now and then, the square and compass to indicate that he was buried by "brethren of the mystic tie."

On the afternoon of the same day, we took the cars on the military railroad and paid a flying visit to the extreme left of the line. We were left at Warren's Station to the resources of our own locomotive powers. Two miles and a half of hard walking from the "Yellow Tavern," where our boys had a hard fight for the Weldon Road, brought us to the quarters of the New Hampshire Battery. There we were mounted and it was but a short ride to Fort Welch, near which the Fifth New Hampshire Regiment was encamped. At the camp of this veteran regiment we were very hospitably entertained by Col. Crafts, and had an opportunity to visit the picket line near the Pegram House where Roger A. Pryor had been recently captured by Capt. Dudley, of the Eleventh. Just at dusk the Fifth Regiment was drawn up in line and I had the honor of entrusting to its care a magnificent stand of colors which was appropriately received by Col. Crafts.

On the same evening we returned to our comfortable quarters with the Ninth Corps, and on the 23d, an ambulance was brought round and we started for Gen. Wilcox's Headquarters, where we were the guests of Major Robert A. Hutchins, of Concord. On the way we made a brief call at the Russell House, the headquarters of Surgeon Webster, of Manchester, now in charge of the Ninth Corps Hospital. Here we were shown through some of the wards and cookeries, and got a faint idea of what a field-hospital is. Here too (as indeed everywhere that we made a halt) the localities in which our brave boys had made their most desperate charges or most stubborn resistance, were pointed out. This region is one vast battle-field. Whether our quarters were in the midst of the tangled and swampy forest, or on the broad and trampled plain, or on the swelling hill-top, we were assured by substantial evidence that the ground had all been fought over. The shattered trunks of the standing trees, the slashed timber, the crumbling rifle-pits, the scattered graves are evidence of that. At the time of our visit there was a lull in the storm of battle; but every morning some poor fellow was brought in from the fort just in our front, or the picket-line beyond it, who had fought his last fight.

At General Wilcox's Headquarters clustering around a deserted rebel mansion known as the "Friend House," situated on a hill-top in full view of Petersburg and effective range of the rebel batteries, we mounted and rode along the lines visiting Fort Steadman (which was even then threatened by the fierce and for a moment successful assault which has since been made upon it,) and other points of interest along the Appomattox. During the night, under the escort of Major Hutchins, I made my way out to the picket line and the farthest vidette posts, seeing a great deal which was of interest and returning impressed with new and more just ideas of the dangers and hardships of a soldier's life.

On the 24th of December, we took an ambulance and started across the country for the Army of the James, crossing the Appomattox on a pontoon bridge at Broadway Landing, and leaving Point of Rocks, where Miss Dame was ministering so efficiently to the wants of our sick and wounded New Hampshire boys, on our left.

On reaching General Ferrero's Headquarters I found that the Eighteenth Regiment which we had expected to find in his command had returned to City Point. The day was therefore devoted to an inspection of our advanced posts near Dutch Gap and the Howlett House Battery, and towards night-fall we were indebted to the generous hospitality of Gen. Ferrero for an ambulance to Bermuda Hundred and a special boat thence to City Point.

Immediately on returning to City Point I did myself the honor of calling on Lieutenant General Grant, who received me with marked courtesy and placed at my disposal his private boat to facilitate my visit to New Hampshire Regiments which I had not yet seen. Later in the day I called on General Benham, in command of the Engineer Corps, to which the Eighteenth was temporarily attached, who was pleased to claim the title of "a son-in-law of New Hampshire," and spoke in the highest terms of the officers and men from our State who were under his command. Availing ourselves of an ambulance proffered by him, we rode out to the headquarters of Lieut. Col. Clough, where we were received with that hospitality which is characteristic of New Hampshire soldiers. A beautiful State flag was presented to the regiment by Mr. J. H. Gilmore and accepted by Colonel Clough in appropriate but informal speeches.

The next morning, with horses furnished from the Eighteenth Regiment and accompanied by its lamented Major, we embarked on board the Monohansett, and steamed up the James. Past Bermuda Hundred, with its storerooms and shipping, still on up the crookedest of all crooked rivers, past Haxall's, Malvern Hill and Deep Bottom—by Jones' Landing, on the left, and Varuna Landing on the right—through two pontoon bridges, and we reached Aiken's Bluff, where a couple of gunboats, a huge double-turreted Monitor and the little Stromboli were stationed ready as the event proved, to run away on the first approach of the enemy. Just in front of us, and not a mile away, the shells were bursting harmless over Dutch Gap.

Here we disembarked and started across the country for Laurel Hill, where our regiments were encamped, on ground that their valor had successfully held against the fierce assaults of the enemy. We reached first the camp of the Second Regiment then bearing on its rolls five hundred and twenty-five men, of whom two hundred and seventy-seven were present for duty under the command of Major Cooper. After a brief inspection of the preparation which "the boys" were making for their Christmas festivities we started for the Seventh Regiment, which we found encamped on the Newmarket Road five miles from Richmond. Col. Abbott was then in command of his regiment, which had three hundred and thirty-five men in camp. The Third New Hampshire (in command of Lieut. Col. Randlett,) was encamped near the Seventh, both being embraced in the brigade of General Hawley, and I had the pleasure of witnessing a dress parade by both the regiments. It need hardly be said that the appearance and drill of the men was faultless.

During the day I had the privilege of visiting the Twelfth Regiment, (Lieut. Col. Barker,) the Thirteenth, (Lieut. Col. Smith,) and the Tenth, (Capt. Head.) These regiments were reduced in numbers to an aggregate of only five hundred and eighty-two men present for duty at the time of my visit; but it impressed me with their hardy endurance and unfaltering zeal in the righteous cause which their mere presence before the rebel capital was pressing to a successful issue.

I found that the colors of most of our regiments both in the Army of the James and of the Potomac, were so tattered and worn as to require speedy renewal, and had the pleasure of calling the notice of their commanders to the action of the Legislature of last year, which enabled me to at once provide new State and national flags in exchange for the old ones. Most of the regiments have since made requisitions for new colors, and those which had been so bravely defended through many a fierce assault and so proudly borne in glorious victory, have been restored to the State, to be carefully preserved as mementoes of our great national struggle. I would respectfully recommend that this department be authorized to procure the photographing of these flags in colors, by some skillful artist, in order that their present appearance may be perpetuated and made familiar to our citizens; and would suggest that no pleasanter recognition of the services of our veteran soldiers could possibly be made, than the presentation in the name of the State, of an accurate delineation of the flags beneath which he has fought, to every New Hampshire soldier who holds an honorable discharge.

After paying my respects to the Division Commander of our New Hampshire soldiers in the Army of the James, (Gen Terry, who has since won immortal fame at Wilmington,) I bade a reluctant farewell to Col. Abbott's hospitable quarters and returned through almost impenetrable darkness and over well-nigh impassable roads to my boat. The night was such that it was deemed imprudent to attempt the passage of the pontoon bridges and we remained till early morning in somewhat unpleasant proximity to the bursting shells of the enemy.

The next day we steamed down to the Point, and transferring our baggage immediately to the steamer Dictator, safely arrived in Washington after a tedious passage, embarrassed by fog and ice.

STATE MILITIA.

It is with no little regret that I am forced to remark that the State militia of New Hampshire, in regard to numbers, is hardly worthy of the name. It consists of but six organizations, whose strength is limited by law to fifty enlisted men each, with a captain and two lieutenants. It will, therefore, be seen that, for immediate service, the utmost force that the commander-in-chief of the military and naval forces of New Hampshire can summon at his control for the purpose of preventing invasion and resisting aggression, is the stupendous and irresistible army of three hundred men and eighteen officers. These companies are located as follows: National Guards, of Manchester; Granite State Cadets, of Nashua; Strafford Guards, of Dover; Lafayette Artillery Company, of Lyndeborough; Bedford Light Infantry, of Bedford; Lancaster Rifle Company, of Lancaster. In addition to these organizations, there are two independent battalion organizations, viz: The Governor's Horse Guards, consisting of three companies, with headquarters respectively at Concord, Nashua and Portsmouth; and the Amoskeag Veterans, of Manchester. Neither of these battalions are required by statute to perform active duty in case of invasion or insurrection.

Every exertion possible has been made during the past year to encourage the organizing of new companies of militia. The success thus far has proved very unsatisfactory. One advantage, however, has been derived from ill success: it is the knowledge of the undeniable fact that voluntary enlistments cannot be depended upon to secure a permanent and reliable military force.

November 22d, the following circular was freely distributed throughout the State, viz:

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Concord, N. H., Nov. 22, 1864. }

[CIRCULAR.]

The Constitution of New Hampshire wisely affirms that "A well-regulated militia is the proper, natural and sure defence of a State." The experience of the past few years demonstrates this fact. Different sections of our State have been threatened with invasion, others have been disturbed by internal dissension and open violence. In every instance we have been compelled to appeal to the General Government for protection. Destitute of "a well-regulated militia," we have been powerless to defend our own houses. The armies of the nation, battling for our liberties in the far South, must be weakened to perform a duty which justly devolves on us, and which we might easily perform.

Our citizens have realized this defect in our military system. There is hardly a hamlet in the State in which her loyal sons have not felt the necessity of some body of trained men who might serve as a basis of organization in the hour of sudden and unforeseen danger. But the defect is as yet unremedied. The only organized bodies of militia within our borders are:

The Amoskeag Veterans, of Manchester; the Lafayette Artillery, of Lyndeborough; the Strafford Guards, of Dover; the Granite State Cadets, of Nashua; the Bedford Light Infantry, of Bedford; the Governor's Horse Guards, of Concord; the National Guards, of Manchester; the Martin Guards, of Manchester.

Of these organizations, two (the Veterans and Horse Guards) hold charters direct from the Legislature, and can hardly be classed with propriety as State militia. The other six organizations comprise perhaps three hundred effective men. This is the entire strength which the Governor, as "commander-in-chief of the army and navy" of New Hampshire, has under his control with which to repel such invasion as even now threatens us from across the border, or put down a sudden insurrection within our own limits.

In these circumstances, I would call the attention of the people of the State to the militia law which was enacted at the June session, 1862, and urge upon them the importance of organizing themselves into companies of volunteer militia for the purpose of State defence, under the provisions of that act. This act provides that fifty citizens of any city or town may, upon petition, have leave to organize as a company of volunteer militia, (either infantry, artillery or cavalry,) and recommend suitable persons to be commissioned as officers. The State Government will furnish each company, thus organized, with arms and equipments, as prescribed by the army regulations of the United States, and also pay the sum of fifty dollars per annum towards procuring a suitable armory in which to store the same.

These companies are required by the law to parade on the afternoon of the fourth Tuesday of May, and also on one afternoon immediately preceding the Fall encampment; for each of which day's service they receive one dollar per member. They are also required to attend a three days' encampment in the Fall of each year, for attendance on which they receive one dollar and fifty cents per man for each day's pay and subsistence, and five cents per mile for travelling fees to and from the place of encampment. In the case of a company of Cavalry, or Light Artillery, the same allowance will be made for each horse required to be furnished.

These companies, thus organized, are subject to the orders of His Excellency the Governor, within the boundaries of the State, but he has no authority to order them beyond its limits. In that respect they stand on a perfect equality with the enrolled militia of New Hampshire, and can only be called into the service of the General Government by draft, or by voluntary enlistment.

Believing that our people feel the necessity of a larger and more perfectly organized body of volunteer militia within our borders, I have embodied the general features of the existing law in this circular, and shall be happy to give additional information in person or by letter to any who may think of availing themselves of the provisions of this act. Copies of the entire law will be promptly forwarded on application at this office.

Let me, in conclusion, once more impress upon the people of New Hampshire the necessity of prompt and efficient action in this matter. Let me remind them of the advantages which may accrue to themselves from a judicious liberality in fostering the military spirit among our young men. Not only protection from possible danger, but increased facility in meeting the requisitions of the General Government will result from the organizations of companies of volunteer militia in such important centres as Concord, Claremont, Keene, Lancaster, Portsmouth and Laconia.

The city of Manchester has always been distinguished for its military spirit. It boasts at the present time one chartered company, two companies of uniformed militia, and one volunteer association (the Natt Head Zouaves,) which is inferior in discipline and patriotic spirit to neither of the others. These companies have again and again served as a nucleus around which to gather companies for actual service; and Manchester has promptly filled her quota at an expense which has never exceeded, and seldom reached, $150 per man, while other towns, destitute of military organizations, have been compelled to offer a bounty of $1000. Clearly, the money which was spent in organizing and equipping the volunteer militia of that city was a most profitable investment. A similar investment has saved to some of our sister States millions of dollars. Will not the wealthy and patriotic citizens in other places consider the propriety of lending a helping hand to the young men who would gladly organize and drill. There are such in every town.

There are, in our returned soldiers, men who are competent drill masters and efficient officers. We want no showy uniforms, no fuss and feathers. The State law restricts the costume of new companies who may choose to purchase a uniform, to simple blue—inexpensive and serviceable. But no uniform at all is needed. What we do need is men trained to bear arms, as their fathers did before them in good old Jackson times.

NATT HEAD, Adjutant General.

Numerous replies were received to this circular, evincing a general desire on the part of a large number of the citizens of the State that our militia force should receive more encouragement from the State and be greatly augmented in numbers. Instructions were promptly given, whenever asked for; but there the matter seemed to end. One company only has been fully organized since the promulgation of the preceding circular, viz: the Lancaster Rifle Company, of Lancaster, numbering at the present time forty-three members. One reason of such ill success is the fact that most of our young men had entered the service of the United States, and those that remained had full reasons for thinking that sufficient inducements on the part of the State were not offered to encourage them to enter the State service.

I would here render a just tribute to the existing militia. As organizations, they have been most prompt to respond to summons. The officers have evinced a most praiseworthy interest in rendering instant attention to all matters of correspondence, and promptly transmitting all returns that have been required of them. For such as there is of the militia, no better could be asked for.

The defects of the existing militia law, I will endeavor to explain under the following head, viz:

THE STATE MILITIA LAW.

As previously stated voluntary enlistments cannot be depended upon to secure a reliable militia organization. Then, again, the law is not stringent enough in requiring men to turn out and drill at stated periods. It cannot be expected that men will turn out and drill for a recompense of one dollar per day, unless strictly obliged to do so by law; and in case of failure in so doing, unless excused by the proper authorities on sufficient grounds, a penalty should be provided which in its execution should be instant and effective.

Uniforms should be furnished by the State without expense to privates or non-commissioned officers. The uniform provided by law is the same as that of the United States Army, and it is believed that all that might be required could be purchased at most reasonable rates from the United States Government, there being such immense quantities on hand that must be disposed of in some way.

The system of Vermont, which State is divided into twelve military districts and maintains twelve regiments of infantry, has been found to work admirably, affording in every particular a reliable and disciplined force. And in my opinion our existing law, with a few brief amendments, calculated to overcome the obstacles to voluntary enlistment will in a brief time secure the organization of an effective force, which from reasons of expediency, need not be so large as that of Vermont. In order to secure such a force, place it on an active footing and provide for its discipline, and this, too, without increasing the number of the active militia already authorized, (3000,) or in any material degree the expense attending upon their parade and discipline.

I respectfully suggest the following bill in amendment of the existing law, confident that its concise and brief provisions will secure the desired end:

THE STATE OF NEW HAMPSHIRE.

In the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-five.

An act to amend the existing Militia Law of the State, passed June session, 1862.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives in General Court convened:

SECTION 1. The three thousand active militia now by law authorized shall be distributed, one regiment to each of the several Congressional Districts. The companies shall be of the maximum number of the corresponding arm of the regular service, and shall be raised in military districts as hereinafter provided. His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, shall cause the quota of each town and city, for such regiment, to be apportioned from the existing State enrollment, made as now provided, and shall by proclamation define the time, at or before which such quotas shall be raised by voluntary enlistment, and he shall specify a time when all unfilled quotas shall be completed by draft, to be made under such regulations as he shall prescribe, agreeably to existing laws. He shall then assign company districts from contiguous territory, and shall at once appoint field officers for the several regiments. Companies, when enlisted or drafted, as the case may be, may assemble as he may prescribe. which companies may recommend their officers, who in turn shall be recommended by the regimental officers for commissions.—The uniforms shall be purchased by the State, and distributed by the Quartermaster General.

SEC. 2. Light Batteries or sections thereof, may be raised and attached, as the Commander-in-Chief, with consent of Council, may direct. Cities and towns are hereby authorized to raise and appropriate money to aid in sustaining any military organization existing within their own limits, company and regimental parades, as now provided, are auxiliary to a State encampment. Existing organizations under the law of 1862, are disbanded to conform to the amendments here laid down.

Independent organizations existing before that date, may be continued with the approval of the Commander-in-Chief.

SEC. 3. There shall be a Quartermaster General appointed by His Excellency, holding the rank of Brigadier General, who shall have charge of all the military property and disbursements pertaining thereto, under the constitution. Said Quartermaster General shall give bonds to the acceptance of the Governor and Council, for the faithful discharge of his duties, and his salary shall not exceed the sum of $—, to be determined by the Governor and Council. There shall also be appointed, in like manner, a Surgeon General, with the rank of Brigadier General, whose salary shall be for actual services only, and shall be established by the Governor and Council.

The Adjutant and Quartermaster General, as now commissioned, shall turn over to those officers the functions duly pertaining to them, which they shall thereafter hold and exercise.

SEC. 4. So much of such act of 1862 as conflicts with the provisions of this act, is hereby repealed—and the Adjutant General shall secure an immediate compilation of the law, as amended, for distribution, furnishing therefor all needed blanks.

SEC. 5. This act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

I here subjoin the record of New Hampshire Volunteer Organizations, in their numerical order. I would add that although the historical report of some of the regiments is most meagre and of a very unsatisfactory nature, still it is the best that I have been enabled to obtain in a space of eight months. It is my wish, should I continue in office another year, to submit to your successor a historical report of the operation of each New Hampshire organization every way more complete and satisfactory.

FIRST INFANTRY.

HEAD QUARTERS 1ST REGT., HEAVY ARTILLERY, N. H. V., }
FORT SUMNER, MD., December 24th, 1864. }

BRIG. GENERAL NATT HEAD, Adjt. Gen. of New Hampshire :

GENERAL:—In compliance with your request of date November 25th, 1864, I have the honor to furnish the following sketch as past history of the operations performed by the First Regiment New-Hampshire Volunteer Infantry. You will find it somewhat prolix, which fault I think however, may be admissible in a history of the First Regiment as the regular and common routine of soldiers' duty is most properly mentioned there, besides, gives some slight idea of the country, the manners, and thoughts of the people when this war commenced, as well as the more important feature of explaining our manner of soldiering, in, and execution of, the first campaign.

I trust this sketch will meet your approbation, but am fearful that it will not. Please advise me immediately on its receipt.

I have the honor to be, General,

Very Respectfully,

Your Obedient Servent,

I. McL. BARTON.

Lieut. Colonel First New-Hampshire Heavy Artillery.

HISTORY OF THE FIRST REGIMENT NEW-HAMPSHIRE VOLUNTEER INFANTRY.

It would be worse than useless in a sketch like this to attempt a disquisitionary chapter upon the cause of the fearful rebellion now deluging our country with the blood of men, and tears of women.

We know that it burst upon our fair land like the earthquake's shock, none the less terrible, that its muttering had been heard.

This is knowledge sufficient for our present purpose.

The proclamation of President Lincoln, calling for seventy-five thousand troops, was the official announcement that this startling shock had rent in twain the veil of our Republican Temple.

The summons to our patriotic people, found willing hearts and ready hands to rally to the defence of country, and responsive souls whose earnest loyalty fed the fires upon the menaced altar of Freedom. There were subtle assassins aiming at the heart of the mother, and the stalwart sons rose up with an impatient eagerness to defend her. The smooth forehead of youth became knit with the fixed determination of manhood, and eyes kindled into beauty with thought and purpose in their depths.

New-Hampshire, responsive to citation, instantly became resonant throughout her length and breadth, with the noisy notes of military preparation from her granite steepes, and homes nestled in rock-encircled valleys, her hardy enthusiasts hurried to her Capitol, eager to be led against the traitor armies of their country.

From the number who had thus volunteered, and first arrived at Concord, enough men were taken to constitute a Regiment of Infantry.

The offer of Mason W. Tappan, to lead this regiment, was quickly accepted by Governor Goodwin, and under his management, the regiment was silently, quickly, and efficiently organized, and between the first and fourth day of May, was mustered into the service of the United States as the "First Regiment New-Hampshire Volunteers."

Thus brief is the history of the raising and organization of the first regiment from New-Hampshire. No bounties were offered, no inducements other than those of patriotism were held out; yet the establishing of recruiting offices was merely a necessary form, creditably executed by His Excellency the Governor.

It will be recollected that New-Hampshire, unlike most of her sister States, was possessed of no efficient military organization. She had no military strength except upon paper. In the midst of her profound peace, war and all its appurtenances had been forgotten. Yet this first regiment was perhaps as thoroughly equipped in all respects, as any body of men in the service.

In fact it was so well appointed, as to be able to live within itself and to maintain an independent campaign for weeks. The baggage trains, consisting of twenty-four army wagons, carried the plentiful supplies of the Commissary and Quartermaster's Department, including intrenching tools, etc.; while the medical department was most bountifully furnished with all proper stores, including a most serviceable assortment of implements, calculated for the scientific mutilations of all applicants for surgical treatment.

Although the uniform of the men was of a rebellious grey, and the coats like a "practical joke," were more pointed than elegant, yet they were furnished with great promptness, and were intended to be substantial. In fact the liberality of the State authorities, in providing for the comforts of the men and the encouragement of the officers, is worthy of commendation, and will be remembered with gratitude.

In consideration of the expense for outfit for so short a term of service, every commissioned officer of the regiment, was presented with his uniform and full equipment.

The regiment was retained in its camp of instruction at Concord, until the twenty-fifth of May, when some proficiency in drill having been obtained, our full appointment furnished, and orders to march received, we embarked on a train of thirty-six cars at the Concord depot.

The novelty of the event, together with the anxious and tender solicitude of friends, drew together a vast concourse of people to witness the departure. Such scenes are the introductory pictures of the war panorama.

The masses, packed in the area, swaying to and fro; groups of friends with hearts stirred to quicker beating as they exchanged parting embraces, and gave the farewell kiss; the sob betraying the tender affection of mother and wife, the pale faces and half concealed agitation of sisters and loved ones, the father admonishing his soldier son ever to remember his country and his God, and never to disgrace the name of those ancestors who fought with Stark at Bennington, the deep sympathy welling up from every heart, and betraying itself in the anxious and tearful countenance, all this, mingling in strange contrast with the boisterous shouts and laughter of the soldiers, in their continual efforts to maintain their own cheerfulness, together with the inspiring cheers of the multitude as a final farewell, and the booming of the cannon as a parting salute, are prominent portions of a picture which a pen never can portray, and the vivid reality of which can live only in the memory of its participants.

Similar scenes transpired during our brief halt at Manchester and Nashua, for each city had contributed largely to fill up the marching column. Our progress thence onward seemed one continual ovation. Every house displayed its flag, and in villages and thickly settled districts, the road sides were lined with the inhabitants, men, women, and children, vying with each other in their sentiments of honor, and words and deeds of encouragement. Wherever we passed, the husbandman left the field, and the artisan the work-shop, to express their deep interest and give us words of cheer. Such manifestations of sympathy, are the true stimulants of the soldier, a tonic that engenders patriotism, even in hearts hitherto barren of the love of country.

Upon our arrival at Worcester, Mass., we found that the citizens had prepared for us a most bountiful entertainment. Tables, sufficient to accommodate the whole regiment, and supplied with substantial food, were arranged in Mechanics Hall.

No favor was more opportune or more gratefully remembered by the soldiers during their campaign.

From Worcester we proceeded by the Sound route to New York, where we arrived Sunday morning, and met with a grand reception from the "Sons of New Hampshire," resident in the city. They presented us with an elegant silk stand of colors, gave the regiment a collation at the Arsenal, and the officers a dinner at the Astor House. Of a truth we were proud of our brothers in Gotham and grateful for their generous courtesies.

The funeral procession of the lamented Col. Ellsworth, delayed our passage to the ferry, and we stood in the street while the corpse of the young hero was borne past us, proud that we had joined a cause worthy of the sacrifice of such noble lives. At length the mournful train passed by, and we were again on the road to Washington.

At Philadelphia the "Soldiers Aid Society" (God bless it) gave us a collation we much needed; and we found it a fact established by experience and weakened by no exception, that a healthy supply to the inner man, is a necessary sustainer to the energy, courage and enthusiasm of the soldier.

We arrived at Baltimore about 4 o'clock P. M., on Monday the 27th instant.

This was the great point of interest to all as the scene of the first blood shed in the present struggle.

Disembarking from the cars we waited some two hours in Pratt Street, for the arrival of our baggage trains. Perfect order and quiet prevailed, though the streets were thronged with citizens. Many words of cheer were quietly spoken; water and refreshments were distributed; a few flags were displayed, one large one being suspended across the street; occasionally a lady was seen waving her handkerchief; but with these exceptions, the calm was evidently that of a spirit under the restraint of fear. It was the privilege of our Regimental Band, to play the first national air in the city, subsequent to the murderous assault upon the Massachusetts Sixth. With their Drum-Major Francis H. Pike at their head, — a man especially qualified to be a drum-major — they worked with a will on their brazen pipes, filling the quiet of the "Monumental city" with the stirring notes of "Yankee Doodle," and an emphatic "Hail Columbia."

It was remarked, that the spectators were more generally pleased with the regiment, than any which had before passed, and that the soldiers exhibited unmistakeable traits, characteristic of the State from which they hailed.

At rather a late hour we reached the Camden Station, and were once more on the road to Washington.

Our march through the city had been attended with but little other patriotic demonstrations, than we ourselves had made; and although the walks and streets were literally packed with citizens, and from the crowd around the depot a few faint cheers rose above the noise and confusion of our departure, a stranger might have been easily convinced, that the people of Baltimore were viewing a funeral procession, conveying their dearest friend to the final resting place, rather than observing the march of a single regiment of "Yankee Mudsills."

It was past one o'clock Tuesday morning, May 28th when we reached Washington, tired, and faint with hunger.

We made the best of such accommodations as could be furnished for a few hours rest, and early in the day were brought into line, marched up Pennsylvania Avenue, passing the White House in review before President Lincoln, and on to Kalorama, some two and a half miles from the city. Here we laid out our camps three days from the time we left Concord.

We had scarcely reached here when a special messenger arrived from the President, complimenting Col. Tappan as having the best and most thoroughly appointed regiment that had thus far reached Washington. Immediately, philanthropic ladies and gentlemen, as well as Sanitary committees, visited us, proffering their services and aid for our relief, and seemed very incredulous when told that we wanted nothing. It was in reality a novelty to see a regiment come prepared to take care of itself; so hastily had the troops left their homes, and rushed to the defence of the capitol.

Nothing of marked interest transpired in camp during our stay here, although expectation was kept constantly alive, we having received orders from Head-Quarters, Thursday evening, May 30th to be in readiness to march at a half hour's notice.

We simply had the usual routine of military duty, commencing with "reveille" in the morning, and closing with "taps" at night. The interval between was filled with squad, company and battalion drill, a practical school for officers, the parade and religious services, together with the various roll calls, guard mounting, fatigue duty, &c. This routine has now become too familiar to the public by frequent descriptions, to require special notice.

Our religious services were somewhat marked and interesting, daily bringing a large concourse of spectators, of all classes from Washington.

They consisted of singing by the entire regiment, and of reading the Scriptures and prayer by the chaplain; and on Sundays was added a short address. The eloquence and fervor of the prayers on these occasions, can never be forgotten by the listeners, and the deep solemnity which prevailed, indicated on the part of the soldiers, a very desirable sense of dependence upon a higher power. Not only the perfect decorum of the men, but the frequent military effect upon the spectators, witnessed conclusively the salutary influence of religious services in the army.

One of the most impressive services I ever witnessed, occurred here on the first evening of June, and although it may not be of any particular importance in this history, yet I must be excused for relating it, as it not only illustrates the point under consideration, but also indicates the eagerness of the men for the fight, as they firmly believed that the expectations aroused by General Mansfield's order, before mentioned, were about to be realized. Rumors had been continually received through the day, to the effect, that the rebels were advancing on Washington.

All eyes had been turned towards Arlington Heights, and all hearts were inwardly hoping, that rebel temerity would lead them to attack us, when of a sudden, as we were forming for parade and religious services, a heavy boom of artillery broke upon our ears. "Boom," "boom," "boom," spoke the brazen mouths from Arlington, and some thought they caught the indistinct rattle of musketry in the distance. An unofficial messenger rode into camp, and informed head-quarters, that an engagement was in progress, and from conversation overheard at General Head-Quarters, he judged that we were to be called out.

After the parade, the Colonel communicated the information to the men. At this point, General Mansfield, — the gallant, patriotic, scarred old hero, — with a portion of his Staff, rode up to the Colonel. This was a sure evidence to the men that work was before them. Fight gleamed in every eye. It cost a struggle to suppress their enthusiasm during the religious services, but their ardor found a partial vent through the chaplain, who catching the enthusiasm prayed with a fervor that surpassed himself. In his earnest supplication for his country, he seemed to wrestle with the Almighty; beseeching him to throw the shield of his mighty arm around its defenders, and should they be brought to battle "to send their missiles of death straight on their errand, and God Almighty have mercy on the souls of the slain."

When the prayer was ended, the regiment as one man joined in singing a hymn arranged to one of our national airs.

From the picturesque heights of Kalorama, swelled up the grand pæan of that little host.

There was beauty on grove, stream, and verdant lawn; there was splendor in the magnificent sunset; but nobler and more grand than nature, was the sight of that zealous band, resting on their arms, as they praised God in song, and with patriotic earnestness prayed Him to preserve their country, and aid them in defending its glorious banner; and as the "boom," "boom," "boom" from Arlington broke in upon them, each voice rang clearer and louder in the swelling anthem, that through the amber air of sunset, rose grandly up to heaven.

The effect was mutual upon spectators and regiment, and the scene was worthy of perpetual preservation.

When that parade was dismissed, the men were prepared for "holy battle;" — a preparation which is hoped they retained to the first anniversary of that occasion, when the expectations of this day were realized by many, who, when in the ranks of the noble Fifth, fought and bled, and nobly died, "down in the dark valley of death" at Fair Oaks.

The alarm proved groundless, — simply an artillery practice, — and the excitement subsided to its usual level.

Such scenes, together with the frequent beating of the long roll, rousing us from our slumbers, and the visits from the heads of the different Departments at Washington, were among the principal things which alleviated the monotony of camp life. The men began to crave novelty and activity; and like most soldiers with the same longings, they were soon gratified to their satisfaction at least.

Saturday June 8th we received orders to march on the following Monday at 7 o'clock A. M.

At the appointed time we were on the road, and were soon joined by other troops who were brigaded with us under the command of Col. Charles P. Stone. Our brigade consisted of the 1st N. H., 9th N. Y., and 17th Penn. Infantry Regiments and Captain Magruder's Battery of Artillery.

We knew not our destination, and it was not necessary that we should. We had only to follow our guide; a very easy and pleasant order, but its execution in this instance, was not especially attended with any beatific sensation; — our guide being mounted on a splendid stallion of the Vermont Morgan stock, and the regiment on foot, performing its first march, each man with a fifty pound knapsack, a few days' rations, a canteen of water, full accoutrements, with forty rounds of ball cartridge, and a Springfield musket. The sun was not a vigorous promoter of pedestrian movements, — the mercury standing 100 degrees in the woods, and that grand centre of our solar system, pouring down such a torrent of heat, upon the flint stone and quartz that paved the road, that it became almost intolerable, and the load on the men was most excessive. They had just commenced soldiering, and supposed that it was a military necessity for every one of them to assimilate as nearly as possible in their load to a pack pedler. It was not in human nature to endure it. Many fell in the road as if struck with death, and were borne insensible to the wagons. Others fainting with heat and exhaustion, were for a time allowed to ride the horses of the field and staff officers; — Col. Tappan himself frequently dismounting, and lifting a private to his saddle.

A halt at noon of about two hours, in a fine grove of oak and chestnut, was very agreeable. Having eaten our rations, and being refreshed by our rest, we resumed our march and reached Rockville about nine o'clock in the evening; — a distance of nineteen miles from our encampment. We camped in the Montgomery County Fair Grounds. But few tents were pitched that night, for many of the men as soon as they were within the enclosure, and "broke ranks," sunk on the damp grass, and lay there until morning. It was a severe initiation to marching service, but which the men bore with a fortitude worthy of great credit.

While in this encampment, christened "Camp Lincoln," we made the intimate acquaintance of the N. Y. 9th, the manner of which is worthy of note. At noon, their rest being shorter than ours, they passed us, at which our men were a little piqued, considering it a breach of etiquette.

They now occupied the north acclivity of the Fair Grounds; we the south. At the dress parade the following day, the 9th came out first, and we looked on in mute curiosity. We followed with a grand parade, every man evidently determined to do better than "any man o' York." It was unquestionably the best parade in the history of the regiment. The 9th collected at the fence of the parade ground, on the south and gave us many compliments and frequent cheers.

The parade over, our regiment rushed en masse to the fence on the north side of the grounds, and commenced a most vociferous cheering of the 9th. They returned the compliment, and for ten minutes the two were pitted against each other, in the vigorous exercise of their vocal organs, when suddenly the 9th vaulted the fence and rushed into the area. Our regiment accepted the challenge, and instantly not less than fifteen hundred men, a moment before total strangers, were shaking hands, embracing each other, rolling on the grass together, shaking the earth with their stamping, and literally filling the air with their caps. It was one grand, wild, joyous tumult. Could the valiant Manchegon have seen it, he surely would have exclaimed as at Inn-Castle, "Mark how the discord of Agromantes' camp is transfered hither amongst us." It was a scene of sinking of all prejudice in the cordial greetings of kindred spirits, not often witnessed. This was the commencement and foundation of that intimate friendship, which ever after prevailed between the two regiments, attracting the attention of all who saw them in their intercourse.

The people of Rockville were struck with the utmost consternation at our visit. They "reckoned" "beauty and booty" was our sole errand, while we in return thought if such was our errand we had most surely come to the wrong place. Slaves were missing and the camps were searched to find them, but in vain; — slave owners under the then existing orders, being allowed free access to the various camps for that purpose. The first impression of the people was soon dissipated by the orderly behavior of the men.

One solitary union flag, indicated that secession was the prevailing sentiment. This waved in the yard of Rev. L. S. Russell, rector of the Episcopal church, and son of Major Russell of Boston, of revolutionary notoriety. There were a few other union families, and many that professed union sentiments only for the occasion.

Friday 14th at 3 o'clock, we were ordered to march in the direction of Poolsville. Reports were current from Washington, that Harper's Ferry was evacuated by the enemy, and that he was liable to sweep down upon the straggling regiments and small brigades stationed as guards along the river. No little solicitude was felt, as the march before us was apparently a perilous one. The utmost cheerfulness however prevailed. We arrived at Darnestown, a distance of nine miles about 9 o'clock in the evening, where we bivouacked for the night, and in the morning, Saturday 15th, at an early hour resumed our march, and arrived at Poolsville about noon, another distance of nine miles.

It was now apparent that the object of the expedition was mainly to guard the river against the rebels who might contemplate crossing; and perhaps, if circumstances justified, we might cross and march upon Leesburg, Va., about five miles inland from Conrad's Ferry.

Being informed that a large force of the enemy were at Leesburg, Col. Tappan by order of Col. Stone, detailed Company

"A," as a picket, and sent them about 12 o'clock under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Whipple to the Ferry.

Sunday morning, companies "A," "G," "I," "C" and "E," under command of Major Stevens proceeded to the Ferry by orders of Colonel Stone.

It may be well to observe that there was some difference of opinion, about Colonel Stone's plan of sending so many men to the Ferry, Colonel Tappan thinking that a simple picket would be less liable to invite an attack; that not being the object in view.

The tents were left behind, as they might serve as targets for the enemy. Monday morning, June 17th Colonel Whipple was ordered to the Ferry, to take command of the division of the regiment stationed there. He had arrived within a mile, when the enemy opened on us with rifles, and in about half an hour commenced firing with 6 lb. cannon, three in number, and continued at intervals for an hour, while we had nothing with which to return their fire, but Springfield muskets.

In the evening they opened again with cannon and rifles, and thus continued from time to time through the remainder of the day, and the day following.

On Monday evening the first day of the fight, Colonel Stone, at the request of Colonel Whipple, ordered Captain Gardner of the Pennsylvania Riflemen and twenty of his company, to the Ferry, who joined in the fight, firing simultaneously with our boys into the smoke of the enemy, the only present indication of their exact position. Here the firing on both sides ceased.

The enemy acknowledged the loss of one captain and two privates killed, and about twelve wounded.

No casualties occurred on our side.

As soon as it was ascertained that the firing was in the direction of the Ferry, Colonel Tappan, with the other half of the regiment, started for the scene of action.

He was soon, however, overtaken by a messenger from Col. Stone, with orders for him to return and guard the camp from an anticipated attack from another direction.

An incident occurred here worthy to be recorded to the memory of the actress. Mrs. Doctor Brace was sitting by the chaplain's tent door, when the firing was first heard. Mounting her horse, she rode home and wrote the following note to the captain of a company of infantry, belonging in Poolsville:

The captain was union, but most of his men were secesh.

"Captain Fletcher: Do you fight under the 'Stars and Stripes?' If so,—up and be doing; Virginia is firing upon Maryland. Shall we stand idly by and let northern men protect our homes and firesides?" It speaks for itself.

This perhaps is a fair sample of the spirit of the true union women which we met.

Their boldness and decision would shame very many of the professed union men at the north.

One more incident illustrates their courage and independence.

A Miss Susan Dawson, of Dawsonville, a young lady of nineteen years, whose widowed mother's house, was ever a soldier's home, was one day on a visit to her uncle's at Poolsville. Her uncle being absent, a "Secesh" came to the door, and demanded a stand of arms that her uncle had in his possession.

Her aunt being a timid woman, Susan bravely stood in the door and refused to give them up. He first attempted to intimidate by insolence and threat; but finding her fearless he asked to see the arms, when she replied, "The arms belong to the State of Maryland, and in due time will be returned to the State authorities. You can neither have them, nor see them; and the sooner you are off the better." He skedaddled.

We remained in camp at Poolsville twenty-one days, the time being spent by most of the regiment in very hard work, we having some fifteen miles of the river to guard night and day, aside from much guard and picket duty in other directions.

For days at a time we had not less than twenty miles of sentinels, so near to each other, that the discharge of a musket would in a few minutes alarm every man in the regiment.

The labor was most of the time exhaustive, but generally borne with cheerfulness. While in camp, fun and frolic was the order of the day. Never was there a set of men together, whose ingenuity was more prolific of expedients to kill time, and lighten the burden of duty. The regiment acquired and retained, throughout this division of the army, a reputation for great fearlessness and daring, and passed everywhere by the sobriquet of the "New Hampshire Wild Cats," by no means an inappropriate title.

It was not unfrequent that they would propose and secure interviews with the rebel pickets midway of the river, by swimming or fording, — drink each others' health, and return to duty. One H. N. Prescott of Bristol, swam across the river, unmoored a boat, pushing it before him till he thought it safe to get into it.

He was scarcely seated, when a rebel ball passed between his arm and side, glanced upon the side of the boat, spent itself in the bow and rolled back to his feet. Whereupon he rolled over into the water, and pushed the boat across, swimming behind.

Such incidents and others peculiarly exciting at the time, with occasional alarms, and startling reports afforded a pleasing variety to the scenes and duties of this most protracted encampment of the campaign. The camp at the Ferry was christened "Camp Tappan;" this at Poolsville, "Camp Stone."

Wednesday, July 3d we broke camp, and marched eight miles to the mouth of the Monocacy, a branch of the Potomac.

Across the mouth of the river is the aqueduct of the Chesapeake and Ohio canal; a magnificent structure of granite masonry, resting upon seven arches, its entire length being about one hundred and seventy-five paces.

Our camp — "Camp Goodwin," — was on a swell of land commanding a view of the mouth of the Monocacy and the opposite shore of the Potomac. We had scarcely arrived here, before many of the boys were in the river, and engaged in friendly conversation with the rebel pickets, a temerity for which two of them paid dearly. A teamster named Emerson, and the cook of Company B., were taken prisoners and retained in the hands of the enemy until the fall of 1862. Here we passed the "Fourth." Friday morning the fifth, the half of the regiment stationed at Conrad's Ferry, five miles below, marched to Monocacy, arriving just in season to join the advance before marching to Point of Rocks. This was a march of only six miles on the tow-path of the canal, between which, and the river, was a narrow belt of wood, many of the trees of great size and of all varieties. There were Oak, Black Locusts, Weeping-Willows, and of the smaller variety, Pawpaw, Thorny Prickly Ash, with many natural bowers of grape and woodbine. This was a little oasis in the severe marching duty that had fell to our lot, half of the regiment having marched twelve miles, and Captain Kelley's company sixteen; while a detail of ten men from each company at Monacacy, acting as guard for the wagon trains, marched eighteen miles.

At half past ten o'clock, we arrived in good order at Point of Rocks, — a little, dirty, secesh village.

The proprietor of the St. Charles Hotel, on the previous day, had refused Colonel Stone entertainment, whereupon he marched up a company of men, took military possession, and run the hotel on his own hook. Here we saw the cars for the first time since leaving Washington.

Saturday, July 6th a detachment under Colonel Tappan set out by cars for Sandy Hook, and in the night orders were received to make ready to leave camp ("Camp Berry,") to send all baggage that could be spared to Frederick, to leave our tents behind in charge of a guard, and to prepare for rapid movement.

Sunday the 7th, at noon, the reserve were brought up by cars to Sandy Hook, twelve miles, opposite Harper's Ferry.

It was Colonel Stone's design to cross over here and take possession of Harper's Ferry, being convinced of the very apparent fact, that it was in all respects the most desirable base for co-operation with General Patterson.

A brief glance at movements in the "Department of Pennsylvania" and vicinity, previous to this date will give the reader a fair idea of the state of affairs.

On the eighth of June the troops to a considerable number around Washington, received orders to march up the Potomac, to Chambersburg and Greencastle to reinforce General Patterson, who had projected an attack upon Johnston, then strongly posted at Harper's Ferry.

The troops marched on the tenth; and Patterson had nearly completed his preparations for the attack when Johnston quietly evacuated Harper's Ferry, intelligence of which movement reached Patterson on Friday the 14th instant. On Saturday his army was put in motion towards Martinsburg, and arrived at the Ford at Williamsport that night. On this day General Scott informed Patterson that McDowell was to attack at Manassas, and that he must cross his army in Virginia, which movement was executed Sunday, and the army camped at Falling Waters, while at the same time the 17th Indiana, Colonel Lew Wallace commanding, was at Hancock needing reinforcements. On the night of this day (16th) another order from General Scott was received, stating that instead of McDowell's attacking Manassas the enemy were threatening Washington, and therefore directed that the artillery, regulars and a portion of volunteers, including Colonel Burnside's Rhode Island regiment, then serving with Patterson to move immediately to Washington for its protection. Thus Patterson was crippled to start with, and his flank demonstration as a necessary sequence was a failure, and Johnston just then retreating, suddenly assumed an offensive attitude along a base including Williamsport, Clear Springs and Hancock, with a base of supplies at Martinsburg and another at Winchester. Patterson having taken up nearly his old position, again crossed the Potomac on the second of July, and driving the enemy at Falling Waters back on Winchester, camped his own army at Martinsburg. Such was the position of the armies in this Department. Such had been Patterson's conduct up to that day.

It is hard to believe that any one under the circumstances could have done better, — of his subsequent movements more hereafter.

The belief was prevalent that a great mistake was committed when Stone was not allowed to cross at Harper's Ferry as he desired and which movement he had commenced to execute, when a messenger came from up the river with orders from General Patterson, to advance to Williamsport and join him in pursuit of Johnston.

His disappointment may be appreciated by the remark attributed to him, that "he wished the messenger's horse had broken his neck, an hour before it reached Sandy Hook." But orders must be obeyed, and at 7 o'clock P. M., we marched again, still keeping the Maryland side of the river. We arrived at Sharpsburg, a distance of twelve miles, at two o'clock on the morning of Sunday the seventh, bivouacked in somebody's mowing field, and at nine o'clock in the morning were again on the move, and arrived at Williamsport, twelve miles from Sharpsburg in the afternoon. We forded the river immediately, and for the first time "trode the sacred soil of Virginia."

Here we joined again the New York 9th, and other regiments, and bivouacked on the banks of the river for the night.

The day had been intensely hot, the thermometer indicating in the shade 103 degrees above.

It was a tedious march, affording us little of the rest, incidental of the Sabbath, quite in contrast with those sacred days in New England, marked with the chime of bells, — the sweet sounds of sanctity and peace.

At four o'clock of the morning of Monday the 8th, we again marched with the entire command of Colonel Stone for Martinsburg, a distance of twelve miles, where we arrived at noon, and joined the command of General Patterson.

Between Williamsport and Martinsburg, Patterson had an engagement with Johnston, called the battle of "Falling Waters."

The name is taken from a rapid stream of pure cold water, so narrow that a man can jump across it.

The prostrate fences, the torn and ruined trees, the riddled and demolished houses, and with the fresh graves by the road side, all indicated the field of action.

A rebel cannon ball crashed through a large house, entering the corner of the roof, and through the aperture was run up the union flag. There seemed to us a special significance in the sight of the dear old banner, placed in the very rents of destruction; and our hearts made prophecy of a time, when every battle gap shall denote a nation risen into larger life, when Right shall tower above Wrong.

When over every hideous rent,
Where cannon balls crashed through,
Shall float the white and crimson bars,
The pennon with its undimmed stars
In their loved field of blue.

The destruction of property here by the rebels, was very great. One can hardly imagine the wild joy of the union people here, when they saw the rebels running before the federal troops, and felt that they had protection.

There were here concentrated, about fifteen thousand troops; and it was the design to march the following day in pursuit of Johnston. Here, perhaps, commenced the marked mysteries of General Patterson's conduct. When the morning came, and all were on tiptoe of expectation, it was decided to postpone the march until further orders. And in this state of suspense we were kept until the 15th, every private knowing perfectly well how much was pending, and how important it was to prevent Johnston from marching from Winchester to reinforce the enemy at Manassas.

It was well for the comfort of the regiment, that we had these few days of rest. Our clothes were badly worn, and many of us foot-sore, and almost shoeless. The short season of quiet was grateful and desirable. What new pants we had, were distributed, but not a pair of shoes could be obtained.

But necessity, here as elsewhere, became the mother of invention.

Leather, thread, awls and hammers were obtained, pegs were made with knives; and soon were extemporized a number of shoe-maker shops in the grove in which we were encamped.

The scene was altogether both novel and attractive; and although the work was done at some disadvantage, yet the old shoes were mended, and all were finally prepared for marching.

A feeling of universal satisfaction arose in the army, when orders were given on Sunday the 14th instant, to march the following day. All hearts were fired with enthusiasm, when at five o'clock, A. M., on the morning of the 15th, we found ourselves on the march, and on the road towards Winchester. Now, at last we were likely to have a desired opportunity of rendering important service to the cause in which we were engaged; the magnitude of which had strengthened us to leave the comforts of home for the privations of the camp, and for the triumph of which, we had left the habitations of peace, to welcome the scenes of peril and destruction.

The army in motion, made a grand display, being composed of about twenty thousand men, representing twenty-seven regiments, with a train of six hundred wagons. Our division advanced by the pike, the other by the cross road. Both divisions were, however, in sight of each other, most of the way.

Colonel Stone's command marched in the following order:—first, Advance Division of the 17th Pennsylvania Infantry, and a company of scouts; second, a company of Cavalry; third, two sections of Perkins' Battery; fourth, 17th Pennsylvania Infantry; fifth, 1st New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry; sixth, one section New York 9th Battery; seventh, 9th New York Infantry.

The rebels were scattered along the road in small companies, but fled on our approach. A few cannon shots were exchanged, but no one was injured. Once we supposed they had made a stand; and the army was drawn up in line-of-battle, and Doubleday's "big guns" were brought to bear upon a grove in which it was thought were masked batteries. It proved a false alarm however. We arrived at Bunker Hill, ten miles from Martinsburg, at two o'clock, P. M., and encamped on the ground just vacated by the rebels, a small force of which retreated from Bunker Hill on our approach.

We were now within fifteen miles of Winchester, and all minds were elated with the expectation of being led in the morning to that place, either to engage the enemy, or intercept and prevent him from reënforcing the army at Manassas. The morning came but no orders, for the army to move forward, were issued.

An apology for a reconnoissance in the direction of Winchester, by two pieces of artillery, a body of cavalry, and part of a regiment of infantry, was all the demonstration of the day.

In the mean time Johnston left Winchester, on the way to reënforce General Beauregard, with the larger part of his army. The evening brought orders to march the next morning. It proved to be orders to "advance upon Charlestown," which it will be perceived was a retreat.

Wednesday the 17th at break of day, we were again on the march, passing through a little dirty village, called Middleway. We arrived at Charlestown about noon, a distance of twelve miles. We marched into the principal street of the village, taking the people by utter surprise.

We were soon made sensible by the insolence of the ladies, and the wry faces of the men, that there was very little union sentiment prevailing.

After an hour's rest we went into camp outside the village.

It now became entirely certain that there was no design of meeting the enemy, and signs of discouragement and demoralization rapidly increased, and continued until General Banks came into command.

The course pursued by General Patterson has been the subject of severe censure and remark, and few loyal men have been disposed to show him much mercy. The mystery is perhaps as great to-day as ever. Whether it originated in cowardice, or treachery, or both, is a matter of diversity of opinion.

It has been said that General Patterson having telegraphed for instructions, and receiving none, did not wish to take the responsibility of attacking, and supposed that Manassas had been taken, and his army was not needed. It is however, certain, that on the twentieth, Johnston, to the knowledge, and without the interference of Patterson marched to Strasburg.

As before stated, it was Colonel Stone's plan, when at Sandy Hook, to cross over with his brigade, and take possession of Harper's Ferry.

From thence, he designed to pass on to Charlestown, take possession of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and take up a position there, while Patterson should move straight down from Martinsburg, through Bunker Hill, on the front of the enemy. Then if the attack should be deemed feasible, while Patterson moved on the front, he should move on the enemy's flank, giving us all possible advantage, and holding the railroad communication. He would prevent Johnston from getting in Patterson's rear, cutting off his supplies, reoccupying Martinsburg, and of course routing our army. But immediately obeying an order decidedly against his own plans, feelings, and wishes, he joined General Patterson, who, not concluding to attack the enemy, moved the whole army to Charlestown and Harper's Ferry, to hold the railroad and cover his own rear; — in short, effected the very movement which Colonel Stone designed to execute with his own brigade. Here was Patterson's great mistake; for if a direct attack upon the enemy would have been imprudent, he ought, at least, by all possible means, to have kept him occupied, thereby preventing his marching to Beauregard's support.

Charlestown was a place of more than ordinary interest to the troops, as the scene of John Brown's trial, imprisonment, and execution.

The court house, the jail, and the site of the gallows, were visited by thousands, and everything that could be gathered in the form of relics, was carried away. Thus is the place forever immortalized by one who stood as "Freedom's foremost acolyte," and whose name will be wreathed evermore into the simple ballads of an enslaved, but we trust to be a ransomed people.

The following incident occurred here, which should in justice to the New Hampshire 1st, be understood; as others have claimed the credit of it. Captain Kelley's company while on picket, Thursday night, captured a horse and carriage with two men. They also arrested two negroes at separate times, who proved to belong to the same master. They both told the same story, as follows:—

Their master was in the secession army. Their overseer living two miles out of the village, was captain of a company of local militia.

On the approach of our army, he disbanded the company, secreted the arms under the floors of the Court House, hid his uniform and went home. A report (of these facts,) was made in the morning to Head-Quarters, and a search was ordered. Lieutenant Nettleton, of company D, being that day Lieutenant of the guard, commenced the search in the attic, but found nothing, when a citizen informed him that he helped bury the arms in the cellar of the Court House; whereupon Lieutenant Nettleton set a squad of the Massachusetts 12th to digging, Captain Barton being present and assisting.

Forty-three stand of arms were found, and were carried away by the Massachusetts 12th, who claimed the credit of the discovery. All the county records, stationery, &c., were also found here, evidently buried in great haste.

The officer of the guard with a squad of men, also surrounded a house, and arrested a rebel lieutenant and his accomplice, securing their arms.

On Saturday the 20th we received the first information of fighting at Manassas. In the night we received orders to cook one day's rations.

Sunday, 21st, the day of the battle of Bull Run, we left our camp — "Camp Whipple" and marched to Harper's Ferry, six miles distant, and pitched our tents on Bolivar Heights, overlooking the village; for here we were furnished with tents, in place of those we left at Point of Rocks; having been nearly destitute, since leaving that place.

By this time, General Patterson was held in the utmost disgust by nearly his whole command, and we hailed with joy the news that he would be superseded by General N. P. Banks, who arrived in the night of Wednesday 24th instant, and assumed command, under which the army soon began to manifest a more cheerful and hopeful spirit.

Friday 26th the regimental train was sent over the river, and we bivouacked in the woods, on the west slope of the Heights. As the term of our enlistment was now drawing to a close, thoughts of home began to crowd upon the mind. Some misunderstanding arose about the time of our discharge, a part of the men insisting that the three months dated from their enlistment.

The Government decided that the time commenced with the day of mustering in, to which all submitted.

Some little time after the expiration of the term of service the regiment left camp at Sandy Hook on their return to New Hampshire; and on their arrival at Concord, was mustered out of service August 12th, 1861, many of the men immediately reënlisting in the new regiments then organizing.

As the subsequent history of the men of this Regiment will be traced in the Report of the Adjutant-General, this history properly closes here. It will be noticed by his report, that but three men died of disease during the campaign.

The casualties were as follows:—

Discharged before leaving the State,	3
Discharged by reason of disability,	13
Discharged by sentence of Court-Martial,	2
Deaths from different causes,	4
Captured by the enemy,	5
Transferred to 2d N. H. Regiment,	1
Deserted,	7
Total	35

Although this sketch may be uninteresting to the general reader, it is thought that it may give some insight into the manner in which our first campaign was executed, and redeem in some measure, our three months regiment from the oblivion in which it has been cast by the splendor of other New Hampshire troops in their achievements upon the field.

The importance of the services rendered by the three months' men are greatly underrated. It can but be admitted that without them the nation was lost. Although the history of this regiment can boast of no "impetuous charges into the deadly breach,"— no fields of slaughter passed through, — no triumphs of the battle field or trophies won, yet the services rendered and the duty performed were arduous in the extreme, and of the most vital importance.

But few of its officers or men remain. Many of them received high promotions in other New Hampshire Regiments, but still more fill the honored graves of the battle fields, or sleep unmarked in the hospital burial-grounds.

The officers of this regiment I have purposely avoided mentioning. Colonel Tappan is too well known throughout the State to require it. Colonel Whipple, Major Stevens, Adjutant Fellows, Captain Bell, and others have been subsequently given the command of regiments, while Surgeon Crosby has since won an enviable reputation while serving in the army of the Potomac, and Abbott, the best of Chaplains, continues to pursue his holy calling.

It is earnestly recommended and urged upon the Adjutant-General of New Hampshire, to publish from the records in his office, a nominal military history of the men of this regiment, which formed the nucleus from which most of our regiments sprung.

What a record it would be of preferment gained, glory won, advancement secured, on many a hard fought field; and what fearful visions it would bring to the mind, of the deadly encounter, — the shock of battle, — the death-struggle of our brave countrymen in their earnest endeavors to save the nation, preserve the union and perpetuate the principles of true liberty.

Glory to the surviving sons of the old First! God rest the souls of those who have yielded up their lives upon the altar of their country, and in mercy alleviate the sorrows of the bereaved.

SECOND REGIMENT, N. H. VOLS., THIRD BRIGADE, }
THIRD DIVISION, TWENTY-FOURTH ARMY CORPS, }
IN THE FIELD, DEC. 20, 1864.

To the Adjutant General of the State of New Hampshire :

GENERAL:—Having indirectly learned that you intend to publish in your Annual Report a brief history of the several regiments from the Old Granite State, I have taken the liberty in an unofficial way of furnishing a few statements which may serve to perpetuate the memory of the veteran Second Regiment.

It is to be regretted that some able historian does not present himself who could embody the history of this regiment in such fitting words as would make it not only a valuable record for future reference, but also a worthy tribute of that honor which is due the brave sons of New Hampshire who have yielded up their lives for their country's cause.

I know that I cannot do the subject justice. I am not a writer. I am nothing more nor less than a plain soldier, fitted only for the position which I occupy, (and perhaps not that,) but as no one steps forward to perform the task, I offer this feeble communication, that partial justice may be done, not only to the officers, but to the rank and file of the Second New Hampshire Volunteers.

The laurels and reputation of this regiment have been too dearly bought to be allowed to sink into oblivion without a passing notice. While we honor, revere and mourn the loss of our brave comrades, whose bones now lie mouldering upon nearly every battle-field in Virginia, still the star of the "Old Second" shines with undiminished lustre, and its banner is supported by brave hearts and strong arms, who are as ready now to offer up their lives for their country as when the fall of Sumter fired the northern heart.

The rolls of the Second since its organization show a list of over three thousand names. Its present aggregate is not far from five hundred and fifty. Besides what it has lost in the casualties of the service, it has furnished many officers and men for every branch of the army and navy.

The roster of officers in more than thirty regiments in the field contain the names of those who were once identified with the rank and file of the Second. Every regiment from New Hampshire, with two exceptions, have been supplied in part with officers from the ranks of the Second. The following list will show the number of commissioned officers that it has furnished for its own and other organizations.

NUMBER OF COMMISSIONED OFFICERS FURNISHED THE ARMY BY THE SECOND.

2 Brigadier Generals,
5 Colonels,
10 Lieutenant Colonels,
11 Majors,
5 Surgeons,
10 Assistant Surgeons,
3 Chaplains,
3 Captains in the Regular Army,
61 Captains in the Volunteers,
1 First Lieutenant in the Regular Army,
90 First Lieutenants in the Volunteers,
71 Second Lieutenants in the Volunteers,
2 Captains and A. Q. Masters.
1 Captain and Commissary of Subsistence,
3 Medical Cadets.

Entering the service at the commencement of the war, this regiment has traveled more than six thousand miles and participated in over twenty battles, and has lost in action upwards of one thousand men.

It has been under the command of McDowell, McClellan, Pope, Sigel, Burnside, Hooker, Meade, Grant and Butler.

The following is the list of the engagements in which it has participated:

First Bull Run, 1861,

Siege of Yorktown, 1862,
Williamsburg, 1862,
Skirmish at Fair Oaks, 1862,
Fair Oaks, 1862,
Savage Station, 1862,
Peach Orchard, 1862,
Glendale, 1862,
First Malvern Hill, 1862,
Second Malvern Hill, 1862,
Bristow Station, 1862,
Second Bull Run, 1862,
Chantilly, 1862,
Fredericksburg, 1862,
Skirmish at Manassas Gap, 1863.
Gettysburg, 1863,
Wapping Heights, 1863,
Swift's Creek, 1864,
Drury's Bluff, 1864,
First Cold Harbor, 1864,
Second Cold Harbor, 1864,
Siege of Petersburg, 1864,
Fair Oaks, October 27, 1864,
Skirmish at Proctor's Creek, 1864,
Skirmish at Chesterfield, 1864,
Skirmish at Darbytown, 1864,
Skirmish at Spring Hill, 1864,

The most sanguinary battles in which it has been engaged are First Bull Run, Williamsburg, Fair Oaks, Second Bull Run, Gettysburg, Cold Harbor, and in the battles in front of Petersburg. In these engagements alone the loss in killed, wounded and missing was more than eight hundred.

On the 29th of August, 1862, at the second battle of Bull Run, the Second made what is often talked about, but seldom witnessed, a bayonet charge. It was a determined and desperate rush of the whole line upon three times their number, and a deadly encounter with the cold steel in which many a rebel soldier yielded his life to that king of weapons. Out of twenty-one officers who went into the fight, ten fell on the field. One hundred and twenty-two non-commissioned officers and privates, heroic fellows as ever faced a foe, went down in that storm of shot which three lines of rebel soldiers rained upon us. The battle of Fair Oaks, on the 25th of June, 1862, which General McClellan called "an affair," was a sad day for Company "B," of the Second. Out of forty-two that went into the battle, twenty-two fell. The whole loss of the regiment on that day was not more than seventy.

At the battle of Gettysburg, July 2, 1863, three hundred and thirty-one officers and men went into the fight. The regiment lost two hundred and five. Out of twenty-three officers, twenty-one were killed and wounded. Our men fought like tigers. The regiment on that day was commanded by Col. Ed. L. Bailey. Brigadier General Graham, under whose eye we fought, conferred a well merited compliment upon the commanding officer of the Second for the cool, gallant and efficient manner in which he manoeuvred and fought his regiment on that occasion.

In the battle of Drury's Bluff, on the 16th of May last, the regiment doubtless inflicted more serious damage on the rebels than in any other fight in which it has been engaged. It was estimated that our regiment alone killed over fifteen hundred rebels and wounded three times that number. The ground was strewn for more than three hundred yards in our front so thick with rebels that it was difficult to move without treading upon the dead. Our loss was small, for we had the advantage of fighting behind breastworks.

Much more could be written of the many other battles and skirmishes in which we have participated, but I fear that I have trespassed too far already. I cannot close however without adverting to one member of the Second New Hampshire Volunteers who should have been remembered long ago, for a more deserving volunteer New Hampshire has never sent into the field.

When I commenced this sketch I intended to abstain entirely from all personalities, for where all have done so well it would, I fear, be invidious to institute comparisons. In this instance I think all will excuse me. I allude to MISS HARRIET P. DAME. I allude to her in this connection, because she is more nearly connected with the Second than with any other regiment, and there is not a military organization from New Hampshire some of whose members have not received her kind care and attention. She is dear to the hearts of all our soldiers; all feel that a more noble, self-sacrificing, patriotic woman does not exist, and her noble devotion to the cause which all profess to love has shone forth more conspicuously while suffering from seeming neglect..

She has followed the army from the commencement of the war until the present time, and she has indeed been an angel of mercy to hundreds of sick and wounded soldiers from our State. Many days and sleepless nights she has stood by the side of our noble, patriotic sons who have gone to their long homes, doing all in her power to alleviate their sufferings, and soothe their sorrows in the dying hour. The fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, wives of New Hampshire can never thank this noble woman enough for the deeds of mercy she has done for their loved ones. At the second battle of Bull Run, while she was on the battlefield, nursing and assisting the wounded, she was taken a prisoner of war and marched to Stonewall Jackson's head-quarters. On the next day she was released and allowed to pass inside our lines.

Major Samuel P. Sayles, who was shot through the leg at Gettysburg, Captain Perkins and Captain Converse, who both lost their arms, say that through her exertions their lives were saved. Many others bear the same testimony. How often the remark has been made by the sick and wounded, "What should we have done but for Miss Dame?" It is not for notoriety that she so untiringly devotes herself to the cause. The poorest and most humble private receives her attention as readily as the officer highest in rank. She always goes where her services are the most needed. Shot and shell strike no terror to her. I remember distinctly that at the battle of Fair Oaks a twelve pound shot passed through her tent, but it did not frighten her to the rear as such things do many of our surgeons.

She is now connected with the hospital of the army of the James, and is as untiring in her efforts to care for the suffering soldier as when she commenced her career of usefulness in the army nearly four years ago. She is honest and faithful — her character and reputation spotless. These few remarks embody but a small portion of the merits of Miss Harriet P. Dame, of Concord, N. H. Her name should be registered in the archives of our State in letters of gold, that it may be handed down to posterity as a fitting embodiment of the patriotic devotion of the women of America, and as a revertment of the cheerful homage of brighter days.

The fair name of the Second, like many other regiments during the past year, has been marred by the frequent desertion of a miserable set of vagabonds sent to us, known as "bounty jumpers." The regiment is now, I think, well nigh rid of these worthless scamps, and although our reputation has been slightly tarnished from this cause, yet I find that wherever we go, and to whatever organization we are assigned, that we meet with a cordial welcome, and every general is ever ready and pleased to have the Second in his command.

We are now in the Third Brigade, Third Division, Twenty-Fourth Army Corps. The brigade is commanded by Brevet Brigadier General Guy V. Henry, formerly colonel of the Fortieth Mass. Vols., and considered one of the best officers in the service. He has made the brigade what it is, and it is acknowledged to be the best in the army of the James.

At a review of the brigade a few days since, it was unanimously acknowledged that the Second New Hampshire Volunteers made the best appearance of any regiment in the brigade; and we feel that we are not excelled by any regiment in the army. I think the record of the Second shows that we march well, fight well and vote well. If we have done well in the past, it is only an earnest of what we will endeavor to do in the future.

Whatever name or fame the regiment may possess, it is indebted almost wholly to the untiring zeal and effort of Colonel, now General, GILMAN MARSTON.

New Hampshire can ever look back with pride to the wise selection that was made by the Governor and Council of New Hampshire in placing the Second under so able a commander. He gave us our first lessons in the field in the face of the enemy. He has proved himself brave untiring and vigilant. He has been three times wounded at the head of his command, and is distinguished for gallantry in the field and for signal ability in the National Councils. He was removed from us a long time ago by a well merited promotion to Brigadier General. Yet he has ever watched the fortunes of the Second with an eagle eye, and he is dear to the heart of every member of the regiment.

In October last, when he took command of the First Division, Eighteenth Army Corps, his old brigade met him, and placing their hats upon their bayonets, gave him three times three cheers. It was a touching and fitting compliment to their gallant chief-tain.

Let his enemies say what they please, no man has ever surpassed him in bravery and adaptation to the position to which he has filled. He is devoid of ambition, incapable of envy, and New Hampshire may well be proud of her noble defender.

I will add in conclusion that the magnanimous acts of kindness, generosity and watchful care bestowed upon the regiment by the present chief magistrate of the State and his able chief of staff are appreciated, both by officers and men.

I have the honor to be,

Very Respectfully,

Your Obedient Servant,

J. D. COOPER,

Major, Second New Hampshire Volunteers.

THIRD INFANTRY.

REPORT OF BATTLES, ENGAGEMENTS, &amp;c.

HEAD QUARTERS, 3d REGT., N. H. VOLS., }
JAMES ISLAND, S. C., June 19, 1862. }

To Acting Brigadier General Robert Williams :

SIR:—I have the honor to present the following report. On the morning of the 16th instant, I received orders to form the six companies of my regiment remaining in camp,—four companies being on picket,—and fall in the rear of the Rhode Island 3d, which I did at three o'clock.

After the line had been formed a short time I received orders to march forward. When I came up with our pickets I was joined by the remaining four companies of my regiment. I soon received orders to again advance, which I did till I reached some wooden buildings near the enemy's earthworks, and as I had then got in advance of those I was ordered to support, I halted my command and waited for further orders. Orders soon came for me to move on, and support the advance. Thinking I had made some mistake, and that there was some of our forces in advance, I threw forward my two flank companies as skirmishers under cover of some shanties that were very near the earthworks, and gave them a fine opportunity to operate against the enemy; Company A, was commanded by Capt. Clark, and Company E, by 1st Lieut. Maxwell. I then moved the remainder of the regiment to within forty yards of the side of the earthwork, and opened fire, driving therefrom three guns, which appeared to me to be facing the southwest. I found there was no artillery facing the side I was on, and it would have been very easy for me to have gone into the fort, provided I could have crossed a stream between me and the earthwork, about twenty yards in width, with apparently four or five feet of water, and the mud very soft; the men therefore could not cross. After getting into this position, the enemy soon opened on me from a battery that was about two hundred yards in our rear, throwing grape into the ranks, from which we suffered severely. In a short time they opened fire with rifles and infantry; at the same time a battery about a mile north of us, opened on us with round shot and shell, one shot from which killed a captain and non-commissioned officer, yet the men stood all these fires, and obeyed orders promptly. There soon appeared on our left a body of the enemy forming in three battalions, in which form they marched to reënforce the earthwork in front of us. During this time I had informed the General of our position and of the above mentioned reënforcement. At this time the Rhode Island 3d made an attack on the force in my rear, materially assisting me in my position. Meanwhile the reënforcements of the enemy had come in range of our fire, and I opened fire on them with good effect, but they were so well covered that they succeeded in throwing a portion of the force into the fort, and there being well covered, their fire on us was very severe and detracted our fire from the reënforcement and gave them an opportunity to throw them all into the fort. Their number was so large we could not cope with them to any advantage; and by this time the other batteries, both in our rear and the one at the north of us, opened afresh on us, with more effect than ever. Some of my men by this time had fired over fifty rounds, and many of the guns were very foul; some even having to shoot away their rammer, being unable to draw it.

Finding at this time that I was far in advance of all our forces, and seeing some of the forces retiring from the field; and as it appeared of no advantage to hold my position any longer, I gave the order to retire, which the regiment did in good order, to the old buildings from which we started. I soon received orders to fall back in the rear of some of our forces, and in a short time after reaching that position, orders to return to camp. All my command, with one exception, behaved so well that it is hard to discriminate in favor of any few; but a number of cases coming under my personal observation I will take this opportunity to mention them. The field officers, Major Bedel, Acting Lieut. Colonel; Captain Plimpton, Acting Major, rendered me great assistance; coolly performing all their duties and encouraging officers and men by their example. Adjutant Libby and Sergeant Major Copp rendered me great assistance. The Adjutant was several times much exposed in carrying orders, but came out of the fight unscarred. Of the captains I would particularly mention, for meritorious conduct, Capt. Donohoe of Co. C, and Capt. Wilbur of Co. B, and Capt. Randlett of Co. F. His (Capt. Donohoe's) company was stationed on the left, and received the first fire of the enemy's reënforcements, which wounded his Lieut. and Orderly Sergeant and many of his men. Capt. Wilbur, with his company, was next in line, and much exposed to the enemy's fire. He was cool, and continually encouraging his men. Capt. Randlett's company was under a severe fire, during which the captain kept his men in order, and set them a good example. 1st Lieut. Handerson, commanding Co. G, was in position near Co. C, and handled his company finely, with the assistance of 2d Lieut. Cody detailed from Co. C, to assist him. Lieut. Cody was shot through the thigh, and Lieut. Handerson was shot in the arm. Capt. Dow, of Co. H, although he carried his company on to the field in good shape, behaved very imprudently while there, making remarks about the impossibility of our sustaining our position, and the impropriety of our remaining in that position; all this in the hearing of his men; discouraging the men, and taking their attention from the enemy in front of us.

Among the non-commissioned officers and privates who are worthy of special mention are Orderly Sergeants Libby, of Co. B; Donohoe, of Co. C; Hawkins, of Co. I; and Trickey, of Co. G, who came under my personal observation; also 2d Sergt. Campbell, of Co. K. Capt. Clark, of Co. A, reports that 1st Sergt. Houghton deserves mention for the faithful manner in which he performed his duty on that day; but my space will not allow me to mention all who are worthy of mention for their good conduct.

We went into the fight with 26 officers and 597 enlisted men, and 104 were killed and wounded. Surgeon Moulton was absent from the regiment from Sunday morning the 15th inst., till Wednesday morning the 18th, without my consent, and therefore the whole duty of the Hospital department devolved upon Asst. Surgeon B. F. Eaton, who faithfully performed his duties to the sick and wounded soldiers.

With great respect this report is Respectfully submitted,

JOHN H. JACKSON,

HEAD QUARTERS, }
HILTON HEAD, July 10, 1862. }

To His Excellency, the Governor of New Hampshire :

SIR:—I have the honor to enclose herewith the official report of Lieut. Colonel JOHN H. JACKSON, of the 3d New Hampshire Volunteers, concerning the part taken by his regiment in the battle of Secessionville, or on James Island, S. C., on the 16th of June, with the list of killed, wounded and missing of the regiment on that day. As no doubt your Excellency will have seen the official report of the commanding General before this reaches you, I shall not attempt to give you an account of the battle. The 3d Regiment was ordered to the position on the side of the marsh of which Colonel Jackson speaks, and was kept in that position as long as possible, for the purpose of keeping down the fire of the work and covering General Stevens' second advance. So well did they do this that the enemy could not man their guns on General Stevens' side, and he was enabled without loss to bring up his regiments to within four hundred yards of the work, ready for the assault, when the order was given to retire.

With deep regret for the many men who have fallen and with their families, I desire to express to your Excellency my admiration of the extreme bravery, discipline and soldierly conduct of the officers and men of the 3d Regiment. I do not believe it possible for men to have acted with more courage, and I desire particularly to call the attention of your Excellency to the marked gallantry of Lieut. Col. Jackson; Major Bedell; and Captain Plimpton. Their conduct was noticed even by the enemy, as it was afterwards stated at a flag of truce.

Surgeon Moulton's absence was, in the first place by my permission. His being absent at the time of the battle was caused by an accident, and I attach no blame whatever to him for it. I have always found him prompt and eagerly attentive to his duties.

With great respect

I am, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

ROBERT WILLIAMS,

Colonel 1st Mass. Cavalry, Commanding Post.

LIEUT. E. L. MOORE, A. A. A. G., 2d Brig. 1st Div. 10th A. C.

SIR:—In accordance with instructions received from Brigade Head Quarters, I have the honor to make the following report of the part taken in the affair of the past two days by the 3d N. H. Vols. We left camp about seven o'clock on the morning of the 9th, marched with the brigade to Chester Station on the Richmond and Petersburg railroad, arriving about twelve o'clock M.; marched thence down the railroad to Port Walthal Junction, arriving about 2 o'clock P. M., thence to Richmond turnpike, where the regiment was ordered to report to Brigadier General Terry, and by him posted at Brandon Bridge on a road from Richmond to Petersburg two and a half miles from Petersburg, where we arrived about an hour after dark with instructions to hold the position and allow no troops to advance across the bridge; to reconnoitre the position of the enemy, the condition of the bridge, the enemy's batteries, the depth of water in the river, &c. I marched the column to within about seven hundred yards of the bridge, formed a line of battle, and advanced with a line of skirmishers to within about a hundred and fifty yards of the bridge where I met the enemy advancing. I was afterwards informed by a man living near by that the enemy numbered two hundred and were advancing to capture a cavalry patrol that had previously looked the ground over; the enemy opened fire which was returned, when he opened with grape and canister from a work on the opposite side of the river, the firing lasting but a few minutes. It being quite dark and knowing very little of the position of the enemy or the ground, I did not try to push the enemy back, but posted my pickets for the night. While reconnoitering the next morning, the enemy opened with grape and canister firing a few rounds. This position was held until one P. M., 10th inst., when I was ordered to fall back; proceeded up the turnpike to Head Quarters of Division, and was ordered to deploy my regiment as skirmishers at the front, where I remained until about six o'clock P. M., when I was ordered to return to camp.

All the officers of my command behaved so well, it would be difficult to select any particular one, for especial praise; the men behaved well and underwent their fatiguing duties cheerfully.

The casualties were Private John Smith, of Co. D, wounded in hand (severe,) Patrick Mansfield, Co. I, in head (dangerous,) and Private John Kennedy, Co. A, a case of "sun stroke." In returning to camp, shots were accidentally fired by catching the triggers in the bushes, it being dark at the time, and the following named men were wounded; Privates James Ryan, Co. E, in leg (slight,) John L. Wing, Co. K, in finger (slight,) and John Wilson, Co. K, in hand (severe.)

I am, Sir, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

(Signed.)

CAPT. ADRIAN TERRY, Asst. Adjt. Gen., 1st Div. 10th A. C.:

CAPTAIN:—In accordance with instructions received this date from the Brevet Major General Commanding Division, I have the honor to submit the following report of the part taken by this command in operations North of James River, from August 14th to 17th, 1864.

The Regiment moved with column 2d brigade, 1st division, 10th army corps, at midnight August 13th, crossed the James about daylight 14th, participated in reconnoissance of that date. On morning of 15th recrossed the river to Jones' landing in column which again crossed below Deep Bottom; marched to Deep Run, on 16th about m., charged with 2d brigade, 1st division, the enemy's works at Flussels mills carrying his line, capturing a large number of prisoners; advanced by order of Col. J. R. Hawley, commanding brigade, about three hundred yards beyond the captured line; there met the enemy in force; made another desperate charge through open field under galling fire from the enemy, towards another angle of same line, as mentioned as taken. At this moment it was discovered as impracticable to advance on account of the force of the enemy and his secure position; as retreat was ordered, the command fell back to that portion of the line first taken; the enemy pursued and made three successive attempts to dislodge it, but were handsomely repulsed. After holding this position for more than an hour, orders were received to move to the rear. Thus ended the engagement.

Our losses in killed, wounded and missing, including 1 officer killed, and 9 wounded, was 93. Lieut. Col. Josiah I. Plimpton, commanding regiment, fell in the open field in the advanced position, at the moment orders were received to fall back. He was through the heart and expired instantly, while actively engaged in moving his command in order.

Of the conduct of the officers and men of this command during the above named operations I need not comment, as the General commanding the division was present, and did not fail to notice the gallantry of all.

I am, Captain,

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

JAMES F. RANDLETT,

LIEUT. E. LEWIS MOORE, A. A. A. Gen., 2d Brig. 1st Div. 10th A. C.:

LIEUTENANT:—In accordance with instructions from Brigade Head Quarters, I have the honor to make the following report of the part taken by my command in recent operations "north of the James."

On September 29th moved at 4, A. M., with 2d brigade in 1st division column from Deep Bottom towards New Market Road before the Heights. Was ordered by Col. J. C. Abbott, commanding brigade, to throw my regiment forward to join the 7th Connecticut volunteers skirmishing, and command the skirmish line. Advanced about two hundred yards across ravine and light woods; came to an opening from which I discovered the enemy's position to be in continual line of breastworks and rifle pits at foot of the hills, and running with New Market Road. Col. Abbott instructed me to advance my line as rapidly as possible reporting success to him, exercising my own discretion. When in full view of the enemy and his works five hundred yards across the opening, I advanced a light line and drew from the enemy the disposition of his forces; finding my line flanked on the left by works similar to those in my front, and discovering that he was reënforcing the flank, I ordered my men to lie down, the advantage of the rolling ground being such as to entirely protect them from his infantry, while his artillery played over us into the ravine. I then sent a messenger to Col. Abbott informing him of the disposition of my command, respectfully suggesting that a force be sent to relieve my left flank. I was informed that Gen. Terry had sent a detachment of colored troops to that duty. As soon as those troops advanced, I pushed forward my first line of skirmishers, and finding but a small force in my front, ordered my whole command to charge. The enemy discovering the success of the colored troops on my left, gave us their works without much struggle. Finding my way clear, I determined to gain the position on the heights before the enemy should discover the actual strength of my force. He had already started with his guns, leaving the 7th Connecticut Volunteers, commanded by Capt. Atwell, in charge of the works on the road. I advanced with the 3d New Hampshire and took possession of the heights. Immediately pushing out a few skirmishers, they captured a Mr Libby owner of the farm we occupied, (said to be of Libby Prison notoriety.) This gentleman was in his loaded wagon started for Richmond. From him and the negroes of the place captured, I learned that the enemy's battery consisted of eight guns. I judged from my own observations of the enemy, that his force was about six hundred infantry, two hundred cavalry and the battery. The cavalry at one time advanced as if to charge, but seeing the remainder of Col. Abbott's command advancing, retired. My own force was less than three hundred.

In this operation so remarkably successful, I am much indebted to Capt. Atwell and his command, 7th Connecticut volunteers, for the cheerful and gallant manner in which they obeyed my orders. As I am quite positive that had the enemy discovered my real force, or seen the least spirit other than determined bravery, they would not have given us the position. Occupying this position half an hour, I received orders to rejoin the brigade. Afternoon of same day marched with 1st division on reconnoissance, to within two miles of city of Richmond; returned to our entrenched lines same evening.

During the day the officers and men of my command, behaved in a manner creditable to themselves, and to my perfect gratification.

I remain,

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

JAMES F. RANDLETT,

Major 3d N. H. Vols., Commanding Regiment.

LIEUTENANT:—I have the honor to make the following report of the part taken by my command in reconnoissance of 1st division, 10th army corps, before Richmond, on the 1st day of October, 1864.

Left entrenched position at 9 1-2 o'clock A. M., marched up Darbytown Road to junction of Richmond Central Road; after proceeding about one and three-quarters miles on this road, my regiment was deployed as skirmishers, with 6th and 7th Connecticut and 7th New Hampshire Volunteers, under Col. Rockwell of 6th Connecticut Volunteers. Advanced to within sight of rebel capitol; met no infantry opposition to within seven hundred yards of its fortifications. The artillery fire was very heavy from every point of the enemy's front.

Losses of command, wounded 1; missing 1; total 2. In this day's duty the regiment was under command of Lieut. J. Homer Edgerly, whose conduct was reported by all to have been extremely praiseworthy. The command returned to our entrenchments at about ten o'clock, P. M.

I was absent from my command as "Division Officer of the Day," and by order of Major General D. B. Birney, Corps Commander, accompanied 10th Connecticut Volunteers, in a movement to the left of the division column, to divert the enemy's attention, which was very successful.

LIEUT. E. LEWIS MOORE, A. A. A. Gen. 2d Brig. 1st Div. 10th A. C.:

LIEUTENANT:—I have the honor to make the following report of the part taken by my command in the action of Oct. 7th, 1864.

Broke camp within entrenched line, Laurel Hill, about 8 1-2 o'clock A. M., moved towards right of our line in column of 2d Brigade, 1st Division, 10th A. C.; formed part of line of battle with that brigade on New Market Road; here learned the enemy were advancing driving our cavalry force. Col. J. C. Abbott, commanding brigade, ordered me to advance the right wing of my regiment as skirmishers to meet the enemy; advanced as directed; met the enemy in force about seven hundred yards from N. M. Road, in line of battle running parallel with the same. The right of my line was soon after connected with skirmishers from 3d Brigade; my left connected with a detachment of Gen. Kautz Cavalry. These cavalry skirmishers had been driven by the enemy and claimed position in the opening. I did not deem it prudent to advance further as the enemy's line of battle was within one hundred yards, his skirmishers being driven handsomely by my men, a few moments after gaining this position and I discovered from the bristling bayonets of the enemy, and his quiet yet exposed deportment, that he was determined to advance. At this critical moment my orderly reported to me that the cavalry had fallen back, leaving me no word, and my left flank entirely exposed. I immediately faced my command by left flank and covered the ground so unceremoniously left by the cavalry; the enemy advanced steadily at this point to within eighty yards of my line and were handsomely repulsed by my skirmishers. At this time my men began to complain their ammunition was getting short, which I reported to Col. Abbott, who informed me he could not replenish it, but gave me seventy-five men from the 7th Connecticut Volunteers armed the same as my own men (Spencer Repeating Carbines.) With these few men, not over one hundred and fifty in all, I succeeded in keeping the enemy back for more than half an hour, when he advanced in bayonet charge in two lines of battle. My men were confident they could repulse them, and as my orders had been "to hold them as long as possible," there was no chance for those on the left of the line to escape, and nobly they contested the ground with the formidable force within fifteen yards of my line, some of them destroying their arms before surrendering. Thirteen of these brave fellows fell into the enemy's hands, I trust unharmed prisoners. There was no possible chance for escape for our main line opened fire on the enemy before the left of my line began to give way. I attach no blame to any one for this, for had my men returned to the line it must have been with the enemy. I immediately joined my left wing which was in the main line of battle, 2d battalion, from the left of the brigade line. The enemy must have been punished severely, as on my left the distance was less than one hundred yards and the enemy stood a long time in full view in line of battle and received a terrific fire from the seven shooters. Those of my men who were secreted beneath logs when the enemy charged over them, captured thirty-one of the enemy as they fell back, one man capturing six prisoners.

Afternoon of the same day, advanced with division column in pursuit of enemy, but he would not receive battle; returned and took position on ground contested with the enemy.

Of the conduct of the men and officers of this skirmish line I make no comment, but I trust the importance of the repeating rifle or carbine for skirmishing will be fully appreciated, as I do not believe the same number of men armed with any other peice would have held the enemy in check for a moment.

My loss was in 3d N. H. Volunteers, 1 man killed, 11 wounded and 13 taken prisoners; total, 25.

I am,

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

JAMES F. RANDLETT.

LIEUT. E. LEWIS MOORE, A. A. A. Gen. 2d Brig. 1st Div. 10th A. C.:

LIEUTENANT:—I have the honor to report the following as the part taken by my command in reconnoissance of October 13th, 1864.

Left camp at four o'clock, A. M., marched in column 2d Brigade, 1st Division, 10th A. C.; on meeting enemy was ordered to deploy my command in rear right wing, brigade line, as reserve. Soon after was ordered to right of division line in rear of 1st Brigade, to communicate with Col. Pond commanding that brigade. Col. Pond ordered me to form column in rear of his command, which I did by deploying in column by wing right in front. After lying in this position for more than an hour, orders were received to charge the enemy's works in our front. Col. Pond's brigade reënforced by the 10th Connecticut Volunteers formed in battalion line in double column closed in mass. My command formed thirty yards in rear of battalion of direction; the line advanced steadily at command forward, for about two hundred yards, when the command to charge was given, we dashed forward about two hundred yards further; a yell given by the charging column seemed to inspire hope of success, but proved to give the concealed enemy the position of our forces and drew a terrific fire, under which Col. Pond's brigade retired in confusion. My command retained their position not a man leaving the ranks. Col. Pond soon rallied a portion of his brigade; orders were received to retire and I covered the retreating column.

I cannot refrain from comment on this charge after stating so much relating to the conduct of this brigade. It appears to me that our advance was made too far to the right, as nearly all the fire from the enemy came across from enemy to left of our flank. I do not think the position could have been carried with the force of our command, but I cannot refrain from stating that it is my belief that the ground was not thoroughly skirmished before the charge was made.

On retiring I was ordered to join the 2d Brigade, and with them returned to camp.

Of the conduct of my officers and men in this unhappy affair I am truly proud, as none but true soldiers would have stood with the demoralizing shock of the retiring force.

I am,

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

JAMES F. RANDLETT,

Major 3d N. H. Vols., Commanding Regiment.

LIEUT. FERDINAND DAVIS, A. A. A. General, 2d Brigade, 1st Division, 10th Army Corps:

LIEUTENANT:—I have the honor to forward the following report of the part taken by my command Oct. 27th and 28th, in skirmish on Darbytown and Charles City Roads.

Marched from camp at Laurel Hill at 3:45 o'clock on morning of the 27th in column 2d Brigade under command of Col. Abbott; reached Darbytown Road 5 1-2 o'clock; received orders to deploy my command in advance of 2d Brigade and move forward as skirmishers towards enemy's works, my left resting on Darbytown Road, my right connecting with skirmishers of (3d) Col. Plaisted's Brigade. Met the enemy's skirmishers in rifle pits before his works; succeeded in driving them from their position to behind their main line of outer defences of Richmond. My loss in this operation was three killed and three severely wounded. At 10 o'clock received orders to move to the right of division line, the division being right of 10th Corps; moved to this position by facing my line by right flank and passing in rear of skirmishers of 1st and 3d Brigades; there I was reënforced by 7th Connecticut Volunteers, Capt. Atwell commanding. In my new line the left of 7th Connecticut Volunteers connected with right of 67th Ohio Volunteers from 1st Brigade, the right of the 3d New Hampshire resting on Charles City Road. Received orders to advance towards enemy's works and ascertain his force and position. Assured that the line in advance of 1st Brigade would move forward at same time, I advanced through woods about one hundred yards; came to an opening; in attempting to cross the corn-field I found the enemy posted the same as I had encountered him on the left, in pits. The skirmishers of 1st Brigade failed to advance, and consequently a terrific fire from the enemy in our front and on the left flank, made it impossible for us to advance more than one hundred yards into the field without great sacrifice of men. My command laid down holding every pace of ground over which we had advanced; I then attempted to have the 1st Brigade line advance, but to no purpose. Finding it impracticable to advance the left of our line, for the reason that there were none to engage the enemy who gave us such heavy flank fire, I extended with my reserve my lines further to the right of Charles City Road; drove the enemy's skirmishers in the woods from my front, and succeeded in gaining a position where my fire flanked his pits and drove all before my regiment to behind his works, thus gaining a fine view of the Charles City Road and the line of works generally. During this advance a continual artillery and infantry fire played upon us, whose effect ceased as soon as his skirmishers were driven in. The distance was so short from the pits that their aim was almost certain, and although but eight men were hit by the enemy's fire, four were killed instantly.

I have to regret the loss of one valuable soldier on the morning of the 28th shot by our cavalry who fell back the evening previous, and on their advance in the morning new men did not know our position. My total loss 7 killed, 8 seriously wounded. At 2 o'clock P. M., 28th, I received orders to assemble my command and join Brigade on Darbytown Road, having been on skirmish line thirty-two hours.

Of the conduct of the officers and men of my command, I feel I am justly proud, each officer did his whole duty, each enlisted man stood nobly by his comrade, and although the night was cold and rainy, not a grumble or complaint at hardship or suffering was heard. My wounded were safely brought in, my dead carefully buried.

I am,

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

JAMES F. RANDLETT,

BEFORE RICHMOND VA., Nov. 18, 1864. }

BRIG. GEN. NATT HEAD, Adj't. Gen. New Hampshire, Concord N. H.:

GENERAL:—I have the honor to transmit herein a record of events of my command since Nov. 3d, 1864.

Received orders at 9 o'clock on the evening of 2d inst., to put my command in order for march immediately, two days rations "cooked or uncooked," all camp and garrison equipage and regimental teams to be taken along. My regiment was at this time on the picket line, were relieved and returned to camp at 2 o'clock on the morning of the 3d; at 4 o'clock two hours later, moved with column of 2d Brigade, 1st Division, 10th Army Corps, to Deep Bottom. The night had been cold and rainy, the march although short was rough on account of mud; about 5 o'clock, P. M., went on board transports, arrived at Fortress Monroe about 3 o'clock, P. M., of 4th inst.; there we were transferred to United States Steamer "United States." On this transport were four regiments: 13th Indiana; 7th Connecticut; 7th and 3d New Hampshire Volunteers. The accommodations for the men were insufficient and as a consequence they were literally packed, many being obliged to stand or sit up for want of room to lie down. On the morning of the 5th we got under way at day-light, arrived in New York Harbor at 1 o'clock, Sunday P. M.; at 9 o'clock disembarked at Fort Richmond, Staten Island, marched to the barrack streets, but as the rooms of the houses were taken up my command was ordered to bivouac in the streets; my men found a wood-pile near and soon had fires and hot coffee. At 4 o'clock on the morning of the 7th inst., to add to our comfort, a smart rain storm commenced; at 8 o'clock inspection; at 10 quarters were discovered for us inside Fort Richmond in the stone casemates. These being almost entirely open at the sides served only as protection from the rain, but were even colder than the street bivouac. At 1 o'clock I received orders to move immediately with one hundred men of my command on board transport Westfield, with Light Battery "M," Capt. Langdon, 1st U. S. Artillery, taking with me five thousand rounds extra ammunition; arrived at the dock; two days rations of coffee, hard bread and pork, were issued to the command. Judging from the order received that I was immediately to participate in active operations in preserving law and order in the City of New York, the purpose for which we had been ordered from our position before Richmond, I moved my command to meet the emergency not even taking time to direct my servant to take me rations or as much as a towel of my personal baggage. On board the Westfield we lay off Fort Hamilton until dark when we again crossed to Staten Island, taking on board the 112th New York, 13th Indiana and 11th Maine Volunteers, and were immediately ordered to the pier at foot of Forty-second street to wait further orders. All day of the 8th we lay at this point, my books, papers and regimental and all officers baggage had been left at Fort Richmond, and I found myself lying idle with nothing to do except to overawe with our presence those disposed to riot in the city, with the strictest orders not to leave for a moment my position without orders. It was a day of sore disappointment to us all who had anticipated the privilege of adding our votes to the loyal majorities in favor of and confidence in the present administration of our country. At 4 o'clock Brigadier General Hawley, commanding the forces from 10th Army Corps, came along side and proposed to take an officer on board his Flag Ship and send him to Fort Richmond for my election papers. I detailed Captain W. H. Trickey to go; we waited very patiently for his return until dark; but General Hawley was called in another direction; took Captain Trickey with him; the Captain returned to me about M. of the 9th inst. I have to regret very much that my men were not allowed to express their confidence in the Government, by their votes to sustain the present administration, but am happy to enclose the accompanying certificate from the officers of the command, relieving me from all responsibility of the denial. We remained on board the Westfield until P. M., of the 11th inst., when we debarked at Fort Richmond. On the 14th we embarked on board the "United States" again, for the army of the James, arrived at our old camp ground before Richmond on the eve of 17th, having been gone fifteen days.

Of this expedition I have only to state that we have never endured more of hardships before the enemy; we have no casualties to mourn, but hunger, cold and inconvenience generally characterized the whole expedition. I believe I am not disposed to grumble at sacrifices, but I do think it hard to live in New York Harbor three days on raw salt pork and hard bread; this was the extent of my feed and that of my command, and short at that.

I have not written the above as a complaint, such conduct would be unmilitary; but for the purpose that you may have a correct record of the history of the command.

I am, General, very truly,

Your friend and obedient servant,

JAMES F. RANDLETT,

Lieut. Col. 3d N. H. Vols., Commanding Regiment.

HEAD QUARTERS, 4th REG'T N. H. VOL., INFANTRY, }
BEAUFORT, S. C., October 24, 1862. }

BRIG. GEN'L. ANTHONY COLBY, Adj't Gen'l of New Hampshire:

GENERAL:—I have the honor to submit a report of the part taken by the Fourth Regiment New Hampshire Volunteers, in the action of the 22d of October, 1862.

On coming under fire, I was ordered to form close column by division, which I did, and the regiment remained in close column for some fifteen minutes, exposed to a very heavy fire of spherical case shot. We then dep'oyed on the left of the Forty-seventh Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers. The enemy having been driven from his first position, I was ordered to form column by company, in the woods on the right of the causeway, and be ready to charge the enemy. The woods proved so thick that we could not move in it, and the ground in front being utterly impassable I deployed my regiment on the edge of the woods. At about two o'clock, P. M., I received an order to drive the enemy from the position he then occupied. I deployed five companies on the left of the road, and four on the right, and advanced in line of battle. After sharp firing on the left for a few moments, the enemy retired. Finding the ground impassable in front I moved across the causeway by the flank; three companies passed and formed in line on the solid ground, while the fourth company (Co. G,) was ordered to halt and repair the bridge, (which the enemy had partially destroyed,) so that it should be passable for artillery. The artillery having passed over, I deployed the whole regiment as skirmishers, and we acted as the support of the artillery from this place, to the place where the artillery finally posted. After firing as skirmishers for a few minutes, at the most advanced post occupied by our forces, we were relieved by some other regiment, and I sent orders to have the regiment reformed in line. At this time I was temporarily disabled. Lieut. Col. Sleeper moved the regiment to the front on the left of the Sixth Regiment Connecticut Volunteers, where it remained for some half hour, when Lieut. Col. Sleeper was ordered into the road with the regiment, where it remained a few minutes, when it was again ordered into the woods at the left. At about five o'clock, Lieut. Col. Sleeper received the order to retire. I rejoined and assumed command of the regiment at the causeway. On passing the causeway the regiment took up a position in the woods on the right. Being ordered to act as rear guard, we moved (after the other regiments had passed,) to the ground used as a hospital. I caused all the scattered arms and accoutrements to be collected as we retired, and all other property I destroyed. Owing to the large number of wounded in front, which we carried, our march was very slow. Before we reached the shore, more than one half of my regiment were at work carrying the wounded. I cannot refrain from mentioning that in many instances we found wounded men by the roadside with only one or two men with them, the rest of the men detailed to carry them having deserted them. No wounded man was left behind. My regiment arrived in camp at four o'clock in the morning.

In conclusion I am proud to be able to say that there were no stragglers, and that no officer or soldier flinched while in face of the enemy.

I am, Sir,

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

LOUIS BELL,

Colonel Fourth New Hampshire Volunteers.

JULY, 1863.

The regiment moved from Folly Island, S. C., and established camp on Morris Island, S. C., July 20th, 1863.

SEPTEMBER, OCTOBER and NOVEMBER, 1864.

From the first until the twenty-fifth of September, the regiment was stationed in the trenches in front of Petersburg, Va. Occupying a position in range of Battery Clifton, a rebel work on the Appomattox. Fatigue duty severe; weather warm; but cases of sickness and casualties few in number. Moved to the north bank of the James and advanced towards Richmond from Deep Bottom. Engaged in frequent skirmishes, but no charge until September 29th, when an attack was ordered on Fort Gilmer, a strong earth work on the lines of the enemy defending Richmond on the north bank of the James. Our loss was severe for the number engaged. During the months of October and November the regiment was stationed in the trenches on the north bank of the James; picket duty performed continuously.

DECEMBER, 1864.

Position and duty unchanged until the seventh instant, when the regiment was ordered to prepare for the expedition against Fort Fisher, N. C. On the eighth embarked on transports, and remained on board until the twenty-fifth instant, when the regiment was landed three miles (on the coast) above Fort Fisher at three o'clock, P. M. Skirmished (successfully) with detachment of the enemy, stationed to oppose our landing. At night-fall marched to a point one mile distant from the fort, halted until eight, P. M., when all were ordered to embark. December thirtieth, reached former station on Chaffin's Farm, Va.

FIFTH INFANTRY.

[The history of this regiment for the first year of its existence, is thus given by its lamented Colonel, EDWARD E. CROSS.]

The regiment completed its muster on the evening of Oct. 26, 1861, and left Concord on the 28th, numbering 1010, officers and men. On the 31st, we reached Bladensburg, where we encamped. On the 3d of November, in the midst of a rain, with the roads in a very bad condition, we formed a portion of Howard's Brigade ordered to Lower Marlborough, Md. The distance about fifty miles, was made in two days. We marched back in two days, after remaining one day. No more severe march has been made by any regiment in the army of the Potomac.

On the 27th of November, the regiment marched across Long Bridge into Virginia, and was assigned, with the remainder of Howard's Brigade, to the Division of General Sumner. A great deal of hard labor was here expended in rendering habitable a bad location for a camp, but we afterwards had the satisfaction of having the neatest, most comfortable quarters in the division.

The regiment soon commenced doing picket and out-post duty at the front, and established the first line of pickets fronting the enemy at Fairfax Court House. In the intervals of picketing and scouting whenever the weather would allow—the men were thoroughly drilled, not only in regimental drill, but by brigade, also in the bayonet exercise. The commissioned officers were also drilled in the practical part of this duty. Schools were established by the Colonel and Lieutenant Colonel, for the theoretical instruction of officers and sergeants, during the winter evenings. A "common school" for the rest of the boys in the regiment as needed instruction in elementary branches, was also put in operation—the necessary books being donated by the Sanitary Commission.

All through the Winter my regiment furnished heavy details to build roads, repair bridges and cut timber. The pioneers were also instructed in making gabions, fascines and other engineering work. The good effect of this drill and instruction has since been apparent to officers and men, on many trying occasions.

Measles and mumps prevailed in my regiment to an extraordinary extent, but at no time up to the day of the battle of Fair Oaks, did the regiment fail to turn out more men for duty, than any other in the entire Division. All through the Winter we averaged from six hundred and fifty to eight hundred men for duty, daily. Several times when the regiment was out on duty, at the front, it was exposed to severe storms of rain and snow without tents, for five or six days at a time.

On the 1st day of March, while on picket, received orders to move up and join the remainder of Howard's Brigade then on a scout at the front. While on this expedition the regiment was called out in the night to meet the enemy. No less than seven minutes from the time the "long roll" commenced beating, the whole regiment was on the march.

On the 10th of March, my regiment under its commanding officer, formed the advance guard of Sumner's Division when it moved from "Camp California" on Manassas—Major W. Cook commanding my skirmish line. On the march to Warrenton Junction, the entire force were obliged to ford creeks and rivers, some waist-deep—crossing five of these fords in one day. Guard and picket duty was severe, the weather cold and rainy—the roads almost impassable. Often the men could not build fires—often the ground was so wet and muddy that they could not lie down. There were no tents, no wagons, no cooking utensils, but tin cups. We endured these hardships for thirty-one days; yet the men were cheerful, and we averaged seven hundred for duty, daily. There was hardly a man on the sick list, and no straggling during the severest marching.

On the 28th of March, Gen. Howard commanded a reconnoissance in force from Warrenton Junction to the Rappahannock River, eight miles—for the purpose of forcing the enemy to cross the river, and burn the railroad bridge. I had the honor again to command the advanced guard—Lieut. Col. Langley commanding the skirmish line. The enemy were driven in all day, the bridge and railroad depot burned, and the rebel forces shelled out of their position. Here the Fifth regiment first came under fire—the skirmish line from the enemy's riflemen, and the main body from shot and shell. The behavior of the regiment on this expedition and its important service, gained great praise from the commander of the forces.

Without returning to "Camp California" where our tents and regimental property was left, the regiment proceeded to Alexandria, and on the 4th of April, embarked for the Peninsula. The weather was cold and wet when we reached Ship Point, and the men were obliged to wade ashore from the vessel and camp on the water-soaked earth, with no tents. My regiment was at once set to work making "corduroy road" through a swamp, and building bridges. Our daily detail was about three hundred men for this purpose. Added to this hard labor in mud and water, the locality was very unhealthy. Our Brigade Commander here, as always, did all that he could for our comfort, and no pains were spared by the regimental officers to look out for the health of their men,—to this, may be attributed the fact that we had less men in the hospital at Ship Point, than any other regiment of the Brigade.

In building roads and bridges the men showed the usual good qualities, so much so as to be greatly complimented by the General over us. When the siege of Yorktown opened the Fifth was sent to join the Engineers Brigade, under General Woodbury. While with this brigade, we constructed twenty-five thousand gabions and a large number of fascines. The regiment also built a tower one hundred feet high and forty feet base, of heavy timber, for an observatory at General Headquarters. This labor was about completed when the enemy evacuated Yorktown.

The march of our regiment to Williamsburg, was one long to be remembered. We started just at dark in the midst of a severe rain. The road was horrible. Fifty thousand men with all their wagon and artillery had passed along that day. The track was bordered by thickets most of the way, and in the centre a sea of mud, in some places absolutely knee deep. The night was pitch dark, and the whole brigade plunged along in the most wretched condition imaginable,—halting towards morning in an old corn-field for rest. In a few days we marched back to Yorktown, and on the 11th of May, embarked for West Point, on the Pamunkey River. From this place we marched to the Chickahominy River, near the enemy. Here the regiment was at once put in fighting order.

On the 25th of May, I received orders to report to General Sumner with my whole regiment, for fatigue duty. We marched early in the morning, and I was informed by General Sumner that the work was to build a bridge, sufficiently strong for artillery and wagons—over the Chickahominy swamp and river. On reaching the locality, the labor seemed impossible. The swamp was flooded from one to four feet deep with water and nearly half a mile wide. On one border was the channel of the stream—over thirty yards wide and quite deep. Here, a Minnesota regiment had commenced work the day before, but had been ordered away. The swamp was a mass of huge trees, vines, brushwood and old wrecks of trees and shrubbery. The labor was vigorously begun, and with some assistance from small detachments of the Sixty-fourth and Sixty-ninth Regiments New York Volunteers, the bridge was built. It was supported by piers composed of heavy logs—was seventy rods in length. It was completed by sundown on the evening of May 30th,—just in time for Sumner's corps to cross the next day, in season for Sedgwick's Division to check the enemy. How much depended upon that bridge, to be known in history as the "Grape Vine Bridge," can readily be seen! In this great undertaking the officers and men labored together, often in water waist deep, with slimy mud and thick brush underneath and around them. Well may it be pronounced one of the most important and arduous labors of the Peninsula campaign!

Reaching the field of battle in the evening of the 30th of May, the Fifth was pushed ahead and formed the advance guard and skirmish line of the Army. During the night we discovered the enemy within three hundred yards of us, and took several prisoners. At daylight the commanding officer of the Regiment captured a rebel courier with important dispatches. The Fifth fired the first and last shot at the great battle of June 1st, and alone met and drove back a strong column of the enemy—fighting them at thirty yards range—and although outflanked by the greatly superior numbers of the rebels, caused them to break and retire in disorder. Our loss was severe, but we had the proud satisfaction of having performed our duty without flinching, and added another enduring laurel to the military glory of our State. The Colonel and Major of the Regiment being severely wounded, the command fell to Lieut-Col. Langley. After the battle of Fair Oaks, the Regiment was at once placed in the first line, constantly picketing and skirmishing — leaving quite a number of men, killed and wounded — until the movement to Harrison's Landing commenced. Nearly all the regimental property was secured, and the Regiment fell back with its Brigade, fighting at Savage Station, Peach Orchard, White Oak Swamp, Charles City, and Malvern Hill. It was the last Regiment that marched off the battle-field. Lieut-Col. Langley being sick most of the time on this march, Captain — afterwards Major Sturtevant, had command. Being in hospital at the time, it was not my fortune to be present with the Regiment during the retreat; but I have since heard from many sources, good accounts of the patience, courage, and excellent conduct of officers and men.

From Harrison's Landing the Regiment marched to Newport News, where I again assumed command, and we soon after sailed to Alexandria, landed, and marched to our old locality, "camp California." Nearly one year's active service — battles, sickness, hardship and the various incidents of warlike life had now reduced the Regiment to about three hundred and fifty men for duty, and these were worn and ragged, many of them barefooted and without overcoats or blankets. For protection from the inclemency of the weather, only the tattered remains of their shelter tents.

With only one day allowed for rest, we marched to Arlington Heights; and the next day about 2 o'clock, received orders to march without shelter tents or blankets, as rapidly as possible to the front, to reinforce Gen. Pope. We marched twenty-three miles with only one halt, and then laid down in a rain, on wet ground, to rest. More than twenty of the men had no shoes, and their feet were blistered and bleeding. The next day we were marched to the front, and formed the skirmish line in face of the enemy; which position we held without relief, until the entire army moved away, when we fell back and joined the main body at Fairfax Court House, being the last regiment that left Centreville. From this place we marched the same day to within a short distance of Chain Bridge, twenty-six miles, without a single straggler, even among the barefooted! The next day we marched into Maryland and camped at Tenallytown. By dint of hard efforts a few shoes and some clothing was here obtained, and on the 4th day of September we marched for Frederick, Maryland. The weather was very hot, the roads dusty. After passing through Frederick, we camped near the battle-ground of South Mountain, but were held in reserve during the battle.

On the 15th of September, Richardson's Division crossed the South Mountain in pursuit of the enemy. The Fifth New Hampshire was ordered to the front and deployed as skirmishers. In this position we drove in the cavalry of the enemy, and discovered the rebel line of battle beyond Antietam river. In the pursuit the Regiment captured over sixty prisoners. We might have taken more; but I could not spare men to pursue them. All the remainder of the day and until late at night, the Fifth engaged the enemy's sharpshooters; driving them from a strong position. We were not relieved until nearly exhausted. The next day four companies were sent to hold the enemy's riflemen in check, and prevent their burning an important bridge over the Antietam.— Other companies were sent to destroy obstructions in the rivers. On the 17th, the day of the great battle, the Fifth went into the fight with three hundred rifles and nineteen commissioned officers. The Regiment behaved nobly, and in the language of the official report, "was entitled to the sole credit of discovering and defeating the attempt of the enemy to turn the left flank of Richardson's Division. The large State colors of the Fourth North Carolina Regiment, which we captured in this fight, are now, by special permission of the War Department, in our own State. We remained on the field where we fought, assisted to carry off the wounded and bury the dead, gathered up over four hundred rifles and, through the whole, had no stragglers, nor did we leave behind a man able to work! My men entered the battle very ragged, more than forty of them without shirts, and I was compelled to equip thirty recruits from the bodies of the slain!

On reaching Bolivar Heights the Regiment was at once placed on active duty, and we formed a portion of the advance on Hancock's reconnoissance. It was soon, however, permitted a brief period of rest and supplied with much-needed clothing and equipments. The statistics of the Regiment for the year ending October 26, 1862, are as follows:

I have thus presented a brief sketch of my Regiment for its first year. I have no hesitation in saying that it has had less recruits, has performed more labor, and made more severe marches, than any regiment from the State, in the same time; and, to say the least, has fought as well. In whatever position placed—in battle, or on the march, enduring hunger, cold, or heat—the Regiment has never faltered, never failed to do its duty. A sense of obligation to my officers and men for their patience, courage and fortitude, constrains me to bear this testimony to their worth, as brave soldiers. It is my earnest wish that those who are left of us, may live to see the skies of our country no longer darkened with the clouds of war, but radiant and glorious in the sunshine of peace.

[In addition to the preceding sketch of the history of the regiment during the first year of its existence we insert the following reports, furnished by Major Larkin, which cover a few months at a subsequent period. It is matter of profound regret to the Adjutant General and will be, doubtless, to the people of New Hampshire that no fitting memorial of a regiment which has achieved a national reputation should be embodied in this report. But appeals to the present commander and those who have preceded him have failed to secure the necessary facts.]

In pursuance of orders from the war department the Fifth Regiment New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry reported for duty to the Major General commanding the army of the Potomac on the 31st day of May, 1864, and was assigned to the Second Army Corps. Early on the morning of the 1st day of June, the line of march was taken up, and in the afternoon of the same day, the regiment, commanded by Colonel Charles E. Hapgood and numbering twenty-seven commissioned officers and about five hundred and fifty enlisted men, reported for duty to Major General Hancock, commanding the Second Corps, then lying near Gaines' Farm, Va. By order of General Hancock the Fifth New Hampshire was assigned to the First Division, Brigadier General F. A. Barlow, and by him again assigned to the First Brigade of that Division.

About ten o'clock, in the evening of the 1st, this regiment moved with the rest of the corps toward Cold Harbor, arriving in the vicinity of that place in the forenoon of the 2d of June. In the afternoon, line of battle was formed and the regiment moved a short distance to the front awaiting further orders. Towards night breastworks were commenced and were strengthened as much as possible during the night. On the morning of the 3d of June, the regiment moved out from the breastworks and formed in line immediately in rear of the picket line, having on its right the Second New York Heavy Artillery, and on its left the One Hundred and Eighty-Third Pennsylvania Volunteers.

At the command to advance, the Fifth New Hampshire moved toward the enemy's breastworks on the double-quick without firing a shot. The rebels were driven from their entrenchments in front of the regiment leaving one gun and several prisoners in our possession. After pursuing the retreating foe a short distance the enemy's supports were encountered and opened a galling cross fire. Unavoidably in some disorder from charging over so great a distance, fired upon from the front and both flanks and failing of any support, the regiment withdrew to the position from which it had started, with an aggregate loss in killed, wounded and missing of two hundred and two officers and men.

From the 3d to the 12th of June, the Fifth Regiment remained in the breastworks at Cold Harbor, suffering numerous losses from the enemy's fire.

About nine o'clock, of the night of the 12th, the Fifth New Hampshire left their works at Cold Harbor and took up the line of march for the Chickahominy River. On the morning of the 13th, the regiment relieved a portion of the Sixth Corps as guard at Bottom's Bridge. After the passage of the Second Corps, the Fifth following in rear of the corps, crossed the river at Long Bridge, and arrived at Wilcox's Landing on the James River, about seven o'clock, on the night of the 13th. During the night of the 14th, the Fifth crossed the James arriving in front of Petersburg on the morning of the 16th of June. About 3 o'clock, P. M., the Fifth New Hampshire formed line of battle on the extreme right of the First Division and on the left of the Third Division. In the engagement which followed Colonel Charles E. Hapgood was wounded and the command of the Regiment devolved on Major J. E. Larkin. In the evening a line of rifle pits was thrown up.

During the charge made by a portion of the Ninth corps on the 17th, Major Larkin was ordered by his Brigade commander to move his regiment forward. In the execution of this order the Regiment moved out of its breastworks in line of battle and making a half wheel to the right occupied a rise of ground in front of the enemy's earth-works for two hours and a half, commanding the rebel works and expending 160 rounds of ammunition per man. While all did well, first Sergeant R. H. Chase, company C, seemed to his commander to merit special mention, for his bravery and coolness throughout the action. Three times through the heavy fire he carried communications to the Brigade commander and with his own hand brought cartridges from the breastworks to his regiment.

On the 18th instant the Fifth moved forward and took a position near the Petersburg and Norfolk railroad. In gaining the railroad six men were wounded on the skirmish line. The Regiment remained in the second line of battle till the night of the 20th of June.

On the 21st of June the Regiment moved to the left toward the Jerusalem plank road, crossed that road and proceeded toward the Petersburg and Weldon railroad. At night the Regiment went on picket. The next morning it was withdrawn and rejoining the Division marched to the right, in front of a line of works which had been thrown up the night before by a portion of the Division. After proceeding for a short distance, the Regiment countermarched and occupied the breastworks just in time to repel an attack from a rebel force in our front. On the 24th of June the Regiment moved to the second line, where it remained till July 9th. During the night of the 9th, the Fifth moved to the left and relieved a portion of the picket of the Sixth corps, where it remained till July 12th. At that date the Regiment was withdrawn from the picket line and moved some three miles further to the left, down the Jerusalem road to the cavalry supports. On the morning of July 13th, camped in rear of the Fifth corps, where we remained till July 26th, performing our part of the arduous fatigue duty required in the prosecution of the siege.

On the afternoon of July 26th, the Regiment took up line of march for Deep Bottom; crossed the James about 3 o'clock, A. M., of the 27th, and rested a short time on the North bank.—Line of battle was formed, the Twenty-Eighth Massachusetts Volunteers on the right, the One Hundred and Eighty-Third Pennsylvania Volunteers in the centre, the Fifth New Hampshire Volunteers on the left. The left wing of the Fifth was then deployed as skirmishers, the right wing being in reserve. The line moved upon the enemy's works, driving him out and capturing four Parrot guns and a number of small arms and prisoners.

On the night of July 29th, the Regiment left Deep Bottom and re-crossing the James, arrived in front of Petersburg the next day. During the affair on the 30th, the Regiment was held in reserve.

[The following order issued by General Hancock, will show his appreciation of the services of the Fifth New Hampshire, during the operations which have been above detailed.]

HEAD QUARTERS SECOND ARMY CORPS, }
 July 31, 1864. }

GENERAL ORDER, }
 No. 25. }

The Major General Commanding desires to express to the troops his gratification with their conduct during the late movement across the James river. While all the troops who kept their ranks and sustained the arduous march (he regrets to say there were many who did not) are deserving of praise, the following organizations seem to merit particular mention. The Fifth New Hampshire, Twenty-Eighth Massachusetts, One Hundred and Eighty-Third Pennsylvania, and Twenty-Sixth Michigan Volunteers, all under Colonel Lynch—One Hundred and Eighty-Third Pennsylvania Volunteers, all from General Miles' Brigade, constituting part of the skirmish line of Gen. Barlow's Division, for their gallantry in the capture of the enemy's Battery on the morning of the 27th, and the skirmish line of General DeTrobriand's Brigade—General Mott's Division, particularly the Ninetieth and One Hundred and Tenth Pennsylvania Volunteers for good conduct and bravery in their severe action on the right of the Battery, and the Twenty-Sixth Michigan Volunteers for gallantry in the reconnoissance of the 28th instant.

The spirit exhibited by the Command shows that they are determined to maintain the high reputation they have heretofore acquired.

The Major-General Commanding will not be unmindful of the services of individual officers and soldiers or organizations and will reward them to the extent of his power.

By order of MAJOR GENERAL HANCOCK,

(Signed)

FRANCIS A. WALKER,
Assistant Adjutant General.

This regiment which was recruited mainly in the western section of the State and rendezvoused at Keene, left for the seat of war 1024 strong, under the command of Colonel Converse, on the 25th of December, 1861. Soon after arriving at Washington the regiment was assigned to General Burnside's Division and proceeded to Hatteras Inlet, N. C. On the 8th of March, 1862, Colonel Converse resigned his command and Lieutenant Colonel (now General) Simon G. Griffin was soon after promoted to the Colonelcy. During the early part of its term of service the regiment suffered severely from sickness, and since it became acclimated and fitted to endure the hardships of camp and field, its losses at the hands of the enemy have been very heavy.

From the scanty materials which are deposited in this office a hasty and imperfect history of this regiment is compiled. It is regretted exceedingly that a command which has seen such service and so distinguished itself, should not have found a historian whose own reputation was identified with its fair fame and who could supplement the meagre materials at our command, by his personal experience.

On the 7th of April, 1862, four companies of the Sixth Regiment and two companies of the Ninth N. Y. Vols., under the command of Lieutenant Colonel S. G. Griffin, embarked on transports and proceeded to Elizabeth City, N. C., where they anchored for the night. The next morning they proceeded up the Pasquotank River to a point about six miles above the city, where they landed and broke up a rebel camp, capturing seventy-four prisoners and one hundred and fifty stand of arms. The expedition returned to camp April 8th, 1864.

On the 18th of April, the regiment under command of Lieutenant Colonel S. G. Griffin—acting in conjunction with other forces—embarked on transports and proceeded to a point about a mile and a-half below Elizabeth City where they landed. The next morning they marched about thirty miles to Camden, N. C., where a large body of the enemy was found entrenched. An engagement took place, resulting in the rout of the enemy. The regiment lost in this affair one killed, one missing and two wounded. It returned to camp on the 20th of April. The successful issue of this important expedition gave rise to the following congratulatory orders:

HEAD QUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF NORTH CAROLINA, }
Newbern, April 26, 1862. }

GENERAL ORDERS, }
No. 30. }

The General commanding desires to express his high appreciation of the excellent conduct of the forces under command of Brigadier General Reno, in the late demonstration upon Norfolk.

He congratulates them as well upon the manly fortitude with which they endured excessive heat, and extraordinary fatigue, on a forced march of forty miles in twenty-four hours, as upon the indomitable courage with which, notwithstanding their exhaustion, they attacked a large body of the enemy's best Artillery, Infantry and Cavalry in their own chosen position, achieving a complete victory.

It is therefore ordered as a deserved tribute to the perseverance, discipline and bravery exhibited by the officers and soldiers of the 21st Mass., 51st Penn., 9th N. Y., 89th N. Y., 6th N. H., and Marine Battery under Colonel Howard, on the 19th day of April, a day already memorable in the history of our Country that the above regiments inscribe upon their respective colors:

"CAMDEN, APRIL 19th, 1862."

The General Commanding desires especially to express his approbation of General Reno's strict observance of his orders, when the temptation to follow the retreating enemy was so great.

By command of MAJOR GENERAL BURNSIDE,

(Signed,)

LEWIS RICHMOND,

Assistant Adjutant General.

HEAD QUARTERS 2d DIVISION,
DEPARTMENT OF NORTH CAROLINA,
Newbern, April 30, 1862. }

GENERAL ORDERS, }
No. 42. }

Brigadier General Reno takes great pleasure in transmitting the congratulatory order of the Commanding General concerning the recent "BATTLE OF CAMDEN."

Seldom have soldiers been called upon to perform more arduous service, and never has such service been performed with more cheerfulness.

With such officers and soldiers, he believes that victory will always rest upon our banners, and the sacred cause for which we contend, will soon be brought to a triumphant close.

By order of I. L. RENO, BRIGADIER GENERAL,

(Signed,)

EDWARD M. NEIL,

Assistant Adjutant General.

There are in the Adjutant General's office no records whatever covering the period immediately after its transfer to Virginia, when the regiment participated in Pope's disastrous campaign and distinguished itself under McClellan in the pursuit and check of Lee's invading army. The part which the regiment took in General Burnside's brief but bloody Virginia campaign also passes unchronicled, as do its experiences on the march and in provost and guard duty in Kentucky and Tennessee, and its participation in the campaign which culminated in the capture of the capital of Mississippi. Lieut-Col. Bixby furnishes the following list of battles in which the regiment was engaged during this period, which we trust may serve as heads for some future discourse:

- August 29—30, 1862, second Bull Run, Va. Loss heavy.
- September 1, 1862, Chantilly, Va. Loss considerable.
- September 14, 1862, South Mountain, Maryland. Loss slight.
- September 17, 1862, Antietam, Maryland. Loss heavy.
- November —, 1862, Annisville, Virginia. Skirmish.
- November 17, 1862, White Sulphur Springs, Va. Skirmish.
- December 13, 1862, Fredericksburg, Virginia. Loss heavy.
- June 15—July 4, 1862, Vicksburg, Mississippi. Loss slight.
- July 8—15, 1862, Jackson, Mississippi. Loss slight.

Where the regiment was stationed or what service it rendered from the close of its Mississippi campaign, in the summer of 1862, to the beginning of the last successful assault on Richmond, in the spring of 1864, does not appear by any returns on file in this office.

It seems from the monthly regimental returns for May and June, 1864, that the regiment left Bristoe Station, Va., on the 4th of May, 1864, marched to Germania Ford and crossed the Rapidan, May 5th. The regiment was hotly engaged in the battle of the Wilderness, May 6th, charging the rebel entrenchments and capturing seven commissioned officers and one hundred and six enlisted men. From the 12th to the 18th of May, the regiment was engaged with heavy loss in the battles near Spottsylvania Court House; whence it marched to the North Anna river, via Bowling Green, and took part in the action at that place May 25th and 26th, incurring only slight loss, however. From this point the regiment marched to the Pamunkey river, and crossed near Hanover town May 28th, and engaged the enemy with slight loss near Totopotomoy Creek. The regiment was on the skirmish line from May 30th to June 1st. On the 2d day of June the regiment moved towards Cold Harbor and engaged the enemy on that and the following day near Bethesda Church, suffering heavy loss. From the 5th to the 13th of June, the regiment was on picket duty in the vicinity of Cold Harbor, when it again took up the line of march, crossing the Chickahominy River at Jones' Bridge and the James River, below Charles City, on the night of the 15th. On the 16th, the regiment arrived in front of Petersburg, and on the 17th engaged the enemy, carrying in conjunction with the other regiments of the Second Brigade 2d Division, Ninth Army Corps, the outer line of the rebel defences and capturing several guns with slight loss.

The regiment was among those which were needlessly slaughtered at the explosion of the Petersburg mine on the 30th of July, 1864, and was again engaged, with slight loss, in the fight for the Weldon Railroad on the 19th day of August. The sixth performed duty in the trenches near the Weldon Road, from September 1st, to September 9th, when it was withdrawn to the reserve camp near Parks Station, and performed fatigue duty to September 29th, availing themselves of other brief cessation from active service to perfect themselves in drill. It was moved to the front and participated in the engagements near Poplar Grove Church and Pegram House on the 30th of September and the 1st of October, with a loss of four officers and one hundred and nine enlisted men. The regiment was on picket duty near the Pegram House from October 3d to October 26th, 1864; when it participated, with slight loss, in a reconnoissance towards the South Side Road, returning to its old camp on the 28th, and soon after going into winter quarters.

HEADQUARTERS 7TH N. H. VOLUNTEERS, }
FEDERAL POINT, N. C. February 2d, 1865. }

BRIG. GEN. NATT HEAD, Adjutant General of New Hampshire.

SIR:—In accordance with your request I hereby transmit a brief history of the Seventh New Hampshire Volunteers, from the date of its organization January 1, 1865, for use in your next annual report. Your request finds me at the front, liable to be interrupted by various duties, and with the greater part of the earlier regimental records stored at Norfolk, and at present inaccessible to me. Therefore this record must be made chiefly from memory and from private notes. Hence there may occur some immaterial inaccuracies.

It is not impertinent to advert to the manner in which this regiment was raised. On the 2d day of September, 1861, I received authority from the War Department to raise a regiment of infantry in the State of New Hampshire. At that time and very soon after, the State authorities proceeded to organize four regiments of infantry, a battery, a company of sharpshooters, and a battalion of cavalry. The draft upon the State for men was therefore heavy, and the success of what was somewhat in the nature of an individual enterprise, was thought by many to be doubtful. The proposition was laid before the governor and council, and they were asked merely to pay to men enlisting in the regiment the bounty ($10.) which they were then paying to those enlisting in other regiments, and to give the enterprise their good will. This they readily decided to do. The headquarters of the regiment were established at Manchester, the circulars at once issued, and, notwithstanding the natural competition, by the 1st of November I had gathered eight hundred men in camp. It was understood at the outset that the governor and council would commission such officers as were designated by me, and I accordingly issued provisional commissions to recruiting officers, waiving my right to the coloneley only on the condition that it should be bestowed upon a graduate of West Point. The governor and council commissioned H. S. Putnam, then a First Lieutenant of Topographical Engineers, beyond all question the ablest and most accomplished soldier who has in the present war received a commission from New Hampshire as colonel. The enterprise was further strengthened by selecting the late Daniel Smith, Esq., of Dover, as major, and Andrew H. Young, Esq., of the same city, as quartermaster, and by a well considered distribution of the subaltern officers. From the commencement every dollar for the recruiting, the transportation, the rations, and the outfit of the regiment was paid directly by the United States. Thus a regiment, bearing on its rolls one thousand and four officers and men, with a most complete outfit and in an excellent state of discipline, moved from its camp on the 14th day of January, 1862, not having cost the State a single dollar, excepting the bounties paid the men. I deem it not unfitting that these facts should become a matter of record in your annual report.

From January 14th, 1862, the date when the regiment moved from Manchester, to June 17th, 1863, when it landed upon Folly Island, S. C., it saw but little field service. From January 14th until February 13th it remained in New York; from the latter date until June 16th it was on the passage to and at Tortugas; then at Beaufort until September 1st; then at St. Augustine and Fernandina, Fla., until June, 1863, when it again reached Hilton Head, and went into camp preparatory to the active movements upon Folly and Morris Islands. In all this time their duties had been confined to camp, garrison and fatigue duty, and to light picketing. But this was in many respects the most trying period in the whole three years of service. In camp in New Hampshire until mid-winter, then confined in the bad air and straightened limits of a building in New York City, then in the more confined limits of transports until they arrived within a tropical region, the men became weakened and susceptible to disease. Remaining there until the 16th of June, they were transferred to malarious regions, so that they reached St. Augustine in September, having lost by discharge and disease two hundred men. In that period, also, the regiment performed a very great amount of labor for the Government in policing and putting in order forts and garrisons, and in erecting piers, building boats, and doing other government work. In all that time also it was under a severe discipline, and constant drill and instruction.

The only approximation to active operation in which any part of the regiment participated, was the movement against Charleston in March, 1863, to which Col. Putnam with five companies was attached. But the troops did not disembark from the transports at Folly Island, and the five companies were returned to St. Augustine after an absence of two weeks.

At midnight on the 17th of June, 1863, the regiment landed upon Folly Island, S. C., and the next day marched nearly to its northern extremity and went into camp. The batteries were then being erected upon the northern point of that island, and until the 10th of July the regiment was either on guard or fatigue duty. On the morning of the 10th at daylight these batteries opened upon the enemy's works on Morris Island, and soon, Strong's column having secured a landing, the remaining troops passed over. This regiment passed over in the second column, and was at once moved to the northern part of Morris Island, relieved the force already there, threw out pickets, and when darkness came, threw up slight earth-works. The first unsuccessful assault on Wagner took place on the morning of the 11th, and that evening moving up still nearer to that work, the Seventh New Hampshire commenced what was afterwards the second parallel in that siege. On the 18th of July the second assault on Wagner was made. The details of that bloody onset are familiarly known. After a furious bombardment, which lasted during the entire day, Strong's brigade, just at twilight, advanced upon the works. It staggered back, leaving a few on and near the parapets; Putnam's brigade, in which was the Seventh New Hampshire, followed close upon Strong's, in the face of a most deadly fire. The attempt to take the work was, in less than an hour, seen to be a failure, and such officers and men as had gained the works were withdrawn. In this attack Col. Putnam, Capt. Brown, and Lieutenants Baker, Cate, Bennett and Bryant were killed. Capt. Leavitt was so severely wounded that he died within three days. Capt. House died the following October. Lieutenants Davis and Worcester died in a few days after the assault, while Lieutenants Ham and Taylor, both severely wounded, recovered and returned to duty. The loss to the regiment in this action was two hundred and twelve in killed, wounded and missing.

From this time for five months the regiment remained upon Morris Island, unintermittingly on duty, in the trenches, on picket and on fatigue. It was a long period of arduous service, and partly in the intense heat of summer.

On the 20th of December the regiment left Morris Island, and the next day landed at St. Helena and reported to Col. Joseph R. Hawley, into whose brigade it was incorporated. Here it remained until the 4th of February, 1864, when it again embarked in the expedition of Gen. Seymour to Florida. In the meantime it had received an accession of more than three hundred recruits, and had been armed with the Spencer repeating carbine, and thoroughly drilled, so that on the date above named it left St. Helena with six hundred and fifty men for duty. On the 8th it landed at Jacksonville, Fla. On the 9th it marched into the interior, and by the night of the 11th had reached Sanderson, a small station about fifty miles from Jacksonville, where the whole force of Gen. Seymour bivouacked. On the next day, by order of Gen. Seymour, I marched toward Lake City, to support, if necessary, a mounted regiment which had been previously sent out in that direction, and which was understood to be closely pressed by the enemy. After advancing about ten miles I fell in with the cavalry scouts of the enemy, who retired after a light skirmish, and after completing the purposes for which I was sent out, I returned to Sanderson the same night. The next day the whole force fell back about ten miles to a place called Barber's Plantation, where it remained until the 20th.

I am compelled here to allude to a matter upon which it is difficult to speak, after this lapse of time, without indignation. On my return to Sanderson on the night of the 12th, Gen. Seymour directed me to turn over enough of the carbines in my possession to arm a mounted regiment, which was in his force, and receive Springfield rifles in return. I protested, but in vain. It was to no purpose that I urged that more than three hundred of my men were recruits, and that since their arrival at my camp there had been barely time to instruct them in the use of the carbine, and that they were not drilled at all in the use of the rifle. The order was issued, and the left wing of the regiment was deprived of its carbines. The arms received in return were of the Springfield pattern, and their condition may be judged from the fact that forty-two of them were pronounced unserviceable by the inspector the day after they were turned over. The men were dispirited, the officers were annoyed and chagrined, and the whole effect of the proceeding could not have failed to have been embarrassing to any officer.

On the morning of the 20th of February, before day, the whole of Seymour's force moved again toward Lake City. After marching about fourteen miles, the enemy's skirmishers were met; and in two miles farther, they were found in force. A fierce battle ensued, closing only with the approaching night, and in the defeat of our troops. The Seventh New Hampshire was in the advance, and was led within two hundred yards of the enemy's line by flank and left in front. At that point they were brought into column and massed. The deployment had not commenced, before the enemy opened a very severe fire of artillery and musketry. The column faltered, and at last broke in a good deal of confusion. They were rallied again, however, and during the remainder of the battle did good service. It may be said with perfect truth that whatever may have been discreditable in this affair, is to be attributed to causes beyond the control of any person in the regiment. My loss in this engagement was in the aggregate two hundred and nine in killed, wounded and missing.

After the disastrous termination of the battle of Olustee, our forces commenced their retreat, and at about two o'clock, A. M., arrived again at Barber's, having marched thirty-two miles. Two days more brought the whole force in the immediate vicinity of Jacksonville, where my regiment remained until the 14th of April, almost constantly on duty. At the last date named the regiment sailed from Jacksonville, and touching at Hilton Head, reached Gloucester Point, Va., and disembarked seven days afterwards. After a little more than two days of preparation they again embarked, and landing at Bermuda Hundred, Va., on the morning of May 6th, at once advanced into the country. A halt was made about seven miles from Bermuda Landing at a place known as Ware Bottom Church, and the Seventh New Hampshire was thrown out as picket for the night. Near this place the present line at Bermuda Hundred was established. On the morning of May 9th, the Tenth and Eighteenth corps again advanced, reaching the Petersburg and Richmond railroad, cutting it, and passing the northern fortifications of Petersburg. The regiment bivouacked for the night on the railroad, but in the morning the enemy pressing down from Drury's Bluff, the brigade, in which was the Seventh New Hampshire, was moved forward to repel them. On account of the sudden illness of Col. Hawley commanding brigade, that command devolved upon me; leaving Lieut-Col. Henderson in command of the regiment. I sent the regiment to the extreme left of the line, upon a small elevation, with instructions to hold it as long as possible. Very soon a brigade of the enemy advanced and attempted a charge, but were met by a fire so steady and rapid that it recoiled again. Three times it attempted to charge, and each time were driven back, and the regiment held undisputed possession of the ground until it was withdrawn with the rest of the brigade. For its conduct on that day the regiment was complimented upon the field by the commanding general, (Terry,) and especial credit was awarded to Lieut-Col. Henderson, for his coolness and determination. At the close of this action, the regiment returned to camp near the Ware Bottom Church.

On the 12th, the advance was made upon Drury's Bluff. The next day the regiment supported the Third New Hampshire in the bloody assault made by them on the right of the enemy's works, and afterwards skirmished beyond the works up to other batteries. On the next day it advanced on the main works of the enemy, investing them, and was heavily engaged all day. The next day was Sunday, and the troops were allowed to rest. On Monday we again advanced, until the whole line retired, when halting from time to time to repel attacks of the enemy, it fell back upon its camp at Bermuda Hundred.

From this time until June 9th the regiment was on constant and severe duty, on what was then the disturbed and threatened front at Bermuda Hundred, and nearly every day under fire. On the above named date I marched across the Appomattox, thence towards Petersburg, being a part of the force commanded by Major General Gillmore on that day. The skirmishing was light, though the artillery fire of the enemy was considerable; but the attempt to assault the works being abandoned, the regiment returned to camp at Bermuda Hundred that night.

On the 16th June, having been myself temporarily assigned to duty elsewhere, and Lieut-Col. Henderson in command, the Seventh was engaged in a very spirited fight in front of Bermuda Hundred—an affair in which less than two brigades held in check nearly all day the main column of the enemy in its transit from the north to the south of the James. From this date followed picket and fatigue duty until August 15th, when the Seventh was in that force which crossed to Deep Bottom, first pressed upon New Market Heights, and afterwards assaulted and carried a part of the enemy's works at Deep Run. The Seventh was in this assault, and was one of the last to retire from the field, which had been nearly won. Here Lieut-Col. Henderson fell mortally wounded—an officer of the rarest qualities, admired and loved while living, and deeply mourned while dead.

On the 2<sup>d</sup>, the regiment again reached camp, and rested until the 24th, when it was moved across the Appomattox, into the intrenchments before Petersburg. There it remained until September 28th, in severe duty and under almost constant fire, when it was again a part of the column which advanced north of the James.

At this time I was again in command of the brigade, leaving Lieut-Col. Rollins in command of the regiment. On the 29th of September, the advance was made upon New Market Heights which were carried, and the troops continued to advance, first to Laurel Hill, then up the Darbytown Road, to within three miles of Richmond, thence Terry's division retiring, rested within intrenchments at Laurel Hill. On the 1st of October, Terry's division again advanced toward Richmond on the Darbytown Road, and the Seventh occupied the left of the line of skirmishers, which advanced within two miles of the rebel capital under a severe fire of artillery; and this is one of the five regiments which have at the present date advanced nearest to Richmond. Returning again that night, it rested until the 7th, when the enemy attacked furiously General Birney's right at Laurel Hill. In that attack the Seventh was in line with no intrenchments before them, and with the rest of the second brigade of Terry's division, withstood nearly the whole of the heavy onset of Field's (rebel) division, driving them back, after a severe fight, with heavy loss.

Then, again, was a rest until the 18th, when the Seventh again were engaged in the reconnoissance on the Darbytown Road, lasting during a day of sharp fighting. Again, there was another rest until October 27th, when it was again in another reconnoissance on the Darbytown Road, lasting until night of the 28th, the fighting being almost entirely on the skirmish line, when it returned to camp. Then in camp until November 3d, when it proceeded to New York with the force under General Butler, remaining until after election, when it again returned to camp, arriving November 17th, and went, apparently, into winter quarters.

LIEUT. E. LEWIS MOORE, A. A. A. General.

SIR:—I have the honor to submit the following report of the part taken by my regiment in the late expedition commencing on Thursday, May 12th, and closing on Monday, May 16th.

On Thursday, May 12th, under command of Lieut. Col. Henderson, the regiment marched to the place known as Purdy's, on the turnpike, and there bivouacked; at that place I joined it during the night. The next morning, May 13th, I marched towards Chester Station, passed it, crossed the railroad and proceeded in the direction of Chester Court House, thence, turning towards the right, again approached the railroad, and a rebel earthwork, which it was proposed to assault. By order of Col. Hawley, commanding the 2d brigade, Terry's division, I took position fronting the earthwork, in order to support a battery. While in that position, the assault on that work was commenced on my left, and I was ordered to support it. I accordingly moved in that direction, across a small stream, and passed up toward the earthwork and took position in the edge of the woods fronting it. I there met the Third Regiment N. H. Volunteers falling back. An assault having been made on the opposite side of the work, and the Seventh Connecticut Volunteers having come up on my left, an advance was made and it was ascertained that the works had been already evacuated.

I was ordered by Brigadier General Terry to proceed into a piece of wood, and from its edge obtain a flanking fire on a rebel battery posted in a field about six hundred yards from the earthwork. I at once proceeded skirmishing through the wood, and reached a point opposite where the battery was posted, and found that it had retired within an earthwork. I then sent forward skirmishers to examine the earthwork and ascertained that it contained three pieces of artillery supported by infantry. I then called in the skirmishers to the railroad, and remained until about 10, P. M., when I was relieved and returned within the entrenchments for the night.

The next day, May 14th, I occupied a portion of the front of the whole line of Terry's division which had been advanced about a mile to the eastward. This position was directly in front of a strong earthwork. During the afternoon the line was advanced within two hundred and fifty yards of the earthwork, and at that point I held a position on the left of the Seventh Connecticut Volunteers. The firing both from artillery and musketry was constant, and after dark, my position was assaulted by a heavy force and was handsomely repelled.

By order of Col. Hawley, having been relieved by the Third New Hampshire Volunteers, I withdrew, at about 8, P. M., to a field four or five hundred yards in the rear, where the command rested until daylight on the morning of the 16th. At that time heavy firing was heard on the extreme right of the 18th corps which gradually extended along the whole line to our front, and I received orders to form line of battle and advance toward the earthwork already spoken of. For about an hour I occupied a position in the edge of the woods fronting the work, when I was detached from the 2d brigade with orders to report to Major General Smith at the "Half-way House" on the turnpike. On the way thither I met General Smith, who ordered me to take a position in the woods in front of where I then was. I had hardly reached the position, when I was fired into from the rear by our own troops, and had one officer and three men wounded. I then moved to a point near the Half-way House, and was ordered by General Smith to take command of the Tenth New Hampshire Volunteers and a section of a battery, and hold the approach by the turnpike. Soon after, by order of General Smith the Tenth New Hampshire was withdrawn to the right, and it being reported by the officer commanding the skirmish line, that the enemy was forming a heavy line on my left, I reported the fact to General Terry, who very soon sent Colonel Plaisted, commanding the 3d brigade of his division, with two regiments to strengthen the position. I remained at the Half-way House, in the position which I first occupied, until about 3, P. M., when I withdrew by order of General Terry on the turnpike, and thence retired within the entrenchments.

Of the conduct of my command, both officers and men during this expedition, I desire to speak with more than ordinary emphasis. Although the command was in almost constant service for five days with unusual exposure, with short rations, and much of the time under severe fire, I know of few if any instances, of orders which were not obeyed with cheerfulness and alacrity. And in all cases when exposed to the fire of the enemy, the command behaved with the coolness and bravery becoming soldiers.

I have the honor to be,

With great respect,

Your obedient servant,

JOS. C. ABBOTT,

Colonel 7th New Hampshire Volunteers.

LIEUT. E. LEWIS MOORE, A. A. A. General.

SIR:—I have the honor to submit the following report of the part taken by my regiment in the reconnoissance of the 9th instant.

I moved from camp at about 10 o'clock, p. m., of the 8th inst., and occupying the right of Hawley's Brigade, marched towards the Appomattox. I reached and crossed the pontoon bridge at a little before 3, a. m., of the 9th, when a halt was ordered. At about 4, a. m., the march was resumed, on the road towards Petersburg. Other troops were in advance of me. Nothing worthy of note occurred until the column had advanced about five miles, when the cavalry which was in advance encountered the enemy's pickets. This was not far from 7 o'clock, a. m. By order of Colonel Hawley my regiment was deployed in line of battle, and proceeded by skirmishers from the Seventh Connecticut Volunteers, advanced across an open field. The enemy's skirmishers retired, and by order of Colonel Hawley, I returned my regiment to the road and proceeded through a belt of woods across the Petersburg and City Point Railroad down a slight ravine, and came into an open meadow which extended for half a mile on the right of the road, while on the left of the road was partly open field and partly wood. The road here took a southerly direction. I was first directed by Colonel Hawley to form a line of battle on each side of the road, and at right angles with it, which I did, but soon after passing about five hundred yards from the edge of the woods, I was ordered to halt. At the point where I halted there was thick woods on the left, and the meadow above mentioned on the right of the road. This position I occupied until about 12 o'clock, m. On the left of the road, at a distance of about five hundred yards was an earthwork from which spherical case shot and canister were occasionally thrown, but with little effect. At about 12, m., receiving the order to retire, I proceeded back on the road followed by the skirmishers. I halted a short time where the enemy's pickets were first encountered, and then with several halts returned to the Appomattox. I arrived at the bridge at about 7 o'clock, P. M. After a brief halt at this point, I crossed and returned to camp, where I arrived about 8 o'clock, P. M. My casualties in the reconnoissance were: wounded, two.

I am, Lieutenant,

Very respectfully,

CAPT. P. A. DAVIS, A. A. General 1st Division 10th A. C.

CAPTAIN:—I have the honor to submit the following report of the part taken by the Seventh New Hampshire Volunteers in the action of the 16th.

At about 7 o'clock, A. M., the regiment, together with the Third New Hampshire, proceeded to the works left by the enemy in the open field opposite batteries four and five. At about 8 o'clock, the regiment, by order of Brigadier General Foster, moved to the right and then advanced a considerable distance, forming line of battle along the edge of certain woods. Soon after the regiments were moved forward on the road leading from Bermuda Hundred to the Richmond and Petersburg Turnpike; advancing by the right flank along the road, the skirmishers of the enemy were encountered in the woods near a small shop or shed—a line of battle was formed, and considerable skirmishing ensued.

By order of Brigadier General Foster the regiment was moved back, first a distance of one hundred yards, and shortly after, still further back, beyond the ravine, the enemy's skirmishers following, and the enemy appearing in force, both in front and on the flanks. Remaining in this position some time, by order of General Foster the Third New Hampshire moved to the right and advanced to connect with the left of Colonel Howell's brigade, and the Seventh New Hampshire formed on the left of the Third New Hampshire, and proceeded to engage the enemy who appeared in front with a strong skirmish line, and indications of a large force behind it. After about an hour, the enemy appearing in force on the left flank, by order of General Foster the regiment was withdrawn a short distance to a line of rifle pits abandoned by the enemy, and after remaining here a short time, the regiment was withdrawn further to another abandoned line of the enemy's works, and from thence still further to the edge of a piece of woods, where a line of battle was formed. The right of the Seventh New Hampshire resting on the road, and joining the left of the Third New Hampshire. In this position the line was vigorously attacked by the enemy but the regiment held its ground. Skirmishing continued until sunset, at about which time, by order of General Foster, the regiment was moved to the rebel works, where it had been stationed early in the morning as a reserve for that portion of the picket line.

The regiment remained in this place till about 1 o'clock, A. M., to-day, when it was relieved and returned to camp.

I append hereto a list of casualties which occurred during the day.

I am, Captain,

Very respectfully,

HEAD QUARTERS 7TH N. H. VOLS., }

LIEUT. E. LEWIS MOORE, Acting Assistant Adjutant General.

SIR:—I have the honor to submit the following report of the part taken by the Seventh New Hampshire Volunteers in the movement on the north side of the James river, commencing August 13th and ending August 20th ultimo. At eleven o'clock, P. M., of August 13th, with twenty-one officers and three hundred and sixty men, I marched from camp at Bermuda Hundred and took the road to Deep Bottom. Owing to an understanding that the corps was to march to Bermuda Landing and there embark on transports, many men were reported for duty who were not able to endure a march or a campaign. In consequence there was an unusual amount of straggling, and I crossed the pontoon bridge at Deep Bottom with less than three hundred men. After passing over the pontoon bridge my regiment, occupying the right of Hawley's brigade, passed by the earthworks at Deep Bottom and formed in line of battle on the left of a road. At this time the Seventh Connecticut Volunteers formed on its left, and my line was a prolongation of that of Pond's brigade, which was on the right of the road. Soon after daylight our forces having pressed in the enemy's pickets, I advanced to an open field fronting a line of the enemy's earthworks, where by order of Col. Hawley I formed in double column en masse on the right of the brigade. Nearly this position I occupied until about 4, P. M., when I moved to the right about one thousand yards and rested in line of battle. This position I left at about 10, P. M., and marched to Deep Bottom, where I bivouacked for the night. At about 9 o'clock on the morning of the 15th I marched from Deep Bottom along the New Market road about three miles, and rested in line of battle in the rear of a piece of woods, my front being towards the west. At about 4, P. M., I moved about two thousand yards to the right and took position behind slight intrenchments during the night. On Tuesday, the 16th, I was detailed and entered upon duties as corps officer of the day, the command of the regiment thereby devolving on Lieut. Col. Henderson, but at the request of Col. Hawley I was present with the regiment and did in fact exercise the command during the day. At about 10, A. M. of the 16th, still occupying the right of Hawley's brigade, I moved about one thousand yards to the right by flank, and then advanced in line of battle, changing the point of direction gradually to the left, across a ravine, where the whole brigade was halted. The assault on the enemy's works having been commenced, and the outer works carried, I advanced to the line of those works. Upon reaching the works, by order of Gen. Terry, I passed beyond them, changed front to the right and advanced about one hundred yards, taking position so as to intercept a flank movement of the enemy from that direction. As the action progressed, finding that the brigades that had advanced were falling back, and that there were movements of the enemy on my left flank which promised to be serious, while there was very little in my front, I recrossed the intrenchments and took position on a line with it. This position I occupied during the remainder of the fight. While here portions of Hawley's brigade retired from the advanced position and took position on my right, while portions of other brigades occupied the line of works on my left. Nearly all the time while in this position my command sustained an annoying fire on the left flank, with some slight fire from the right. Two distinct charges were also made by the enemy in my front, which were handsomely repulsed. At length finding the extreme left of the line giving way and myself the ranking officer on the line, I became solicitous for orders. Accordingly I passed a short distance to the left, then through the slashing to the rear, with the design of finding either Gen. Terry or Gen. Birney. Not succeeding, I was returning by the same path when I found that the enemy were already occupying that portion of the intrenchments. Making a detour to the right, I reached the slashing, where, finding an aid of Col. Hawley, I sent the order for the line to retire. Thus my regiment was one of the very last to retire from the line of the rebel works. While at these works, Lieut. Col. Henderson fell, having been struck near the hip by a rifle ball. He died in about four hours. He was a most valuable and useful officer, and fell in the faithful performance of his duty. The regiment retired across the ravines, and with Hawley's brigade reformed near the intrenchments, which they occupied on the night of the 15th. Thence advancing again across one ravine in the direction of the enemy's works, my regiment took position, erected intrenchments, and remained until about 11 o'clock, P. M., of the 18th. During the time it did its share of picket and fatigue duty, and in repelling the attack made by the enemy on the works about dark of the 18th. Withdrawing from this position as above stated, I took position with Hawley's brigade about two miles to the south-east, on the Chickahominy road, where I remained until 5, P. M., of Saturday, the 20th. Having been detailed as corps officer of the day, I again marched to the point near where I rested on the night of the 15th, where my regiment was placed on picket, and in connection with the Fourth New Hampshire Volunteers and One Hundred and Fifteenth New York Volunteers, held the front of the 10th corps. At 10 o'clock, P. M., by order of Maj. Gen. Birney, I withdrew the picket, reformed the regiments, with my regiment in the rear covered by a detachment of the Fourth Massachusetts Cavalry, retired to the lower pontoon bridge, and crossed it, making a halt near Jones' landing until daylight. I reached my former camp at Bermuda Hundred early on Sunday morning, the 21st. It is gratifying to be able to speak in terms of commendation, both of officers and men, during this brief period of somewhat severe service. Upon the whole, I do not know that any regiment could be expected to perform its duties more faithfully, or with more alacrity under like circumstances. My loss during this movement, (a list of which is hereto appended,) was as follows: killed, one officer and two men. Wounded and missing: no officers and thirteen men.

I am sir,

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

(Signed,)

JOS. C. ABBOTT.

LIEUT. E. LEWIS MOORE, Acting Assistant Adjutant General.

SIR:—I have the honor to submit the following report of the part taken by the Seventh Regiment New Hampshire Volunteers in the recent actions north of the James River. Striking camp near Pitkin Station, at 3, P. M., on the 28th ult., the regiment marched to Deep Bottom, halting inside the fortifications at two, A. M., of the 29th. Moving out at daylight on the New Market road, the regiment occupying the left of the second brigade, Terry's division, line of battle was formed and the troops advanced upon the enemy's works at New Market Heights, which offered but slight resistance, their artillery being withdrawn as the skirmishers advanced. One man alone was wounded while the regiment was crossing a ravine and brook. Marching on toward Richmond, we halted during the forenoon just outside the enemy's second line, then abandoned by them near Laurel Hill. At about three, P. M., we were marched up the Darbytown Road to within about three miles of the city of Richmond, returning during the evening to the vicinity of Laurel Hill. The next day the regiment was moved about half a mile to the left, immediately outside the enemy's abandoned line, which had been temporarily altered and reversed. On the 1st of October the regiment took part in a reconnoissance toward Richmond, and being deployed as skirmishers, advanced under a sharp artillery fire to within about one and a half miles of the city, and within a few hundred yards of its defences, when I halted in a position partially concealed by woods, until ordered to fall back. I marched back inside the breastworks that night. The loss that day was six wounded and eleven missing. Nothing further of moment occurred until October 7th, when the enemy being reported as driving in the cavalry on the right, the brigade was moved to a point just beyond the fortified line, its left connecting with them. The enemy opened briskly with artillery which did but little injury to the regiment, most of their shots passing over or to our left.—Towards noon a line of battle advanced rapidly against us, but the fire of the line was so destructive as to stop them almost immediately after it was opened; many of the enemy came in and surrendered in preference to retreating. My horse being shot under me, injured my foot and leg in falling in such a manner as to oblige me to go to the rear, and the regiment remained in the command of the senior captain. The casualties during the engagement were three killed and fifteen wounded.

During the afternoon the regiment was moved out to a point about a mile distant, but being a part of a reserve, did not again encounter the enemy. They returned during the night to the position at which they had fought, and still remain there entrenching.

I am sir,

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

A. W. ROLLINS,

Lieutenant Colonel 7th New Hampshire Volunteers.

LIEUT. E. LEWIS MOORE, Acting Assistant Adjutant General.

SIR:—I have the honor to submit the following report of the part taken by my regiment in the movement of the 13th instant. My regiment was in line and reported to Brigadier General Hawley, commanding second brigade, at four o'clock, A. M. By his order I moved by the right flank to the sally-port on the right of the third brigade, and thence to the old rebel earth-work on the Darbytown or Central Road. The brigade was then formed in two lines at right angles with, and on the north side of the road, my regiment being in the second line and in double column in mass. Still in this order and relative position and with little delay, I advanced three or four hundred yards into the woods, my left resting near the north side of the above named road, when a halt was ordered. In this position I remained until about half-past three, P. M., during which time the skirmish line was developing, and the first brigade attempted to force the enemy's line, when I received orders from Brigadier General Hawley to retire. I then retired to a line about three hundred yards in front of the old rebel earth-works, and thence by order of General Hawley, moved with the brigade to the intrenchments from which I marched, arriving at sunset. While at a halt in the woods the fire of the enemy which reached me, was at times considerable, but fortunately only two of my men were struck at all, and they so little injured, as not to have been reported in the list of casualties.

I am, sir,

Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

JOS. C. ABBOTT,

Colonel 7th New Hampshire Volunteers.

[In conclusion, I subjoin Col. Abbott's complimentary order to the veteran soldiers of his regiment on the expiration of their original term of service.]

GENERAL ORDERS, }
 No. 65. }

OFFICERS AND SOLDIERS:—The term of the original members of this regiment having expired, they are about to be mustered out of the service of the United States. Companions in arms, for three years, that relation now ends; and you look back upon an experience as honorable as it is varied. Since that night when the first tap of the drum was heard in Camp Hale, you have traversed twenty degrees of latitude, and performed duty from New Hampshire to the Gulf of Mexico. This rent standard, these thinned ranks, these browned faces, are witnesses alike of the conflicts in which you have participated, and the hardships which you have endured. It is now your undisputed privilege to know that you have served your country when her safety was menaced, and that you have thereby contributed to the support of good government, of liberty, and the rights of men, you do now bequeath to history and tradition the story of Wagner, Olustee, Chester Hill, Drury's Bluff, Deep Run, New Market Heights, Richmond, Laurel Hill and the Darbytown Road, as well as all those skirmishes, and marches and bivouacks running from the 17th of June, 1863, down through an almost uninterrupted campaign to the present date.

To those officers and men who, having thus faithfully performed their duty for three years, now return to their homes, I bid God speed in their after journey of life. When you return to the duties and opportunities of citizenship I admonish you not to forget what, to each free man, to each commonwealth, to the continent, to letters, to the arts, to civilization, is involved in this great controversy of arms; to cherish still recollections of this old standard, of the number now faintly emblazoned upon it; of that gallant and intrepid spirit who led us to the tragedy of Wagner, and those who there fell with him; of others still who have fallen upon other fields, and whose bones now lie scattered in distant and remote places ; of the weary marches by day and by night, the flaming line and the ensanguined sword ; and, lastly, of us who remain, still following in the path which you have trod, until we may return, as you now do, to the pursuits of peace, but in a country which is at peace.

This is not the occasion to advert in detail to merits or deficiencies. It is rather proper for me to say that in those three years, I have witnessed in you so much of patience in hardship, so much of fidelity in duty, so much of cheerful obedience to authority, and so much of genuine bravery in the field, that I sink all of criticism and proffer to you unreserved thanks. Officers ! I thank you for the uniform courtesy of your official and social intercourse with me. Men ! I thank you for numberless acts of personal kindness, and for that confidence which has enabled me, through you, to serve our country without reproach.

It is thus that I address those of this regiment who now return to their homes. You who remain demand no word from me now, for before you is still that duty which no soldier can mistake, and that honor to which all can confidently aspire.

And upon all I invoke the aid of that God who rules in the affairs of men, and in whose trust these words of parting are uttered.

By order of the Colonel,

(Signed,)

JOHN GREEN,
First Lieutenant and Adjutant.

EIGHTH INFANTRY.

The Eighth Regiment of New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry, Col. Hawkes Fearing commanding, rendezvoused at Manchester, N. H., in the fall of 1861; the several companies going into camp, as fast as they were filled up, on the Fair Ground north of the city. The encampment was named "Camp Currier," in compliment to the Hon. Moody Currier, of Manchester, who was at that time a member of the Governor's Council, and distinguished for the public spirit and patriotism he displayed in raising and equipping for the field, the noble regiments of volunteers who have since so well sustained the honor of the State, in many a hard-fought campaign.

The organization being complete, the regiment was mustered into the service of the United States on the 23d of December, 1861; and, on the 24th of January following, left "Camp Currier," in the midst of a driving snow-storm, for Fort Independence, Boston Harbor, where, after being hospitably received and entertained in Faneuil Hall, by the authorities of the city of Boston, they arrived on the 25th of January, 1862. Three weeks were spent in drill, while waiting transportation to the south, until, on the 15th of February, 1862, the six left companies embarked on board the ship "E. Wilder Farley" for Ship Island, Mississippi, the rendezvous of General Butler's expedition, and were followed a few days after by the four remaining companies, under command of Lieut-Col. Lull, on board ship "Eliza and Ella." After experiencing the discomforts incident to a long voyage on crowded transports, both vessels arrived at Ship Island; the "Farley" arriving March 15th; but the "Eliza and Ella" having been obliged to touch at Nassau, N. P., for water, did not arrive until the 27th. The regiment being once more united, went into camp at the upper end of Ship Island, which uninviting locality lays, like a long, low, sand-bank, along the coast of Mississippi, separating the waters of Mississippi Sound from those of the Gulf.

Forts Jackson and St. Philip having fallen before the irresistible valor of the navy, under the gallant Farragut, it remained for the army to follow up and complete the victory, by the occupation of New Orleans. The larger part of General Butler's forces were conveyed from Ship Island, up the Mississippi river; the remainder were to approach the city by way of Lake Ponchartrain. The Eighth New Hampshire were of this latter force, and four companies of the regiment were the first to seize and occupy Forts Wood and Pike, by which the entrance to the Lake was defended,—the rebels retreating precipitately, on the approach of the expedition.

The summer of 1862, was spent at Camp Parapet, Louisiana, where, although decimated by disease and death occasioned by the malarious locality, and often called to arms by threatened attacks, no severer duty was performed than is usual in the routine of camp life. In October, 1862, the regiment formed a part of General Weitzel's expedition, the object of which was the expulsion of the rebels from, and the occupation of the district of Lafourche—one of the most productive and wealthy parts of Louisiana. The troops were conveyed up the Mississippi on river steamers, landing at Donaldsonville at the head of Bayou Lafourche. From this point, the Union troops moved down the Bayou the 8th with a squadron of cavalry and two pieces of artillery marching on the right bank of the stream, the remainder of the troops upon the left. With the exception of a night skirmish between the pickets of the Eighth and a scouting party of rebel cavalry, no opposition was met with, until, a little beyond the village of Labadieville, the enemy were discovered in force under General Morton, advantageously posted on both sides of the Bayou, sheltered by a hedge and ditch. Companies E and F of the Eighth, were deployed as skirmishers to ascertain the position of the enemy. Soon the sharp crack of their rifles told that they had discovered them, and that the action had commenced. Almost at the first fire, the gallant Captain Warren fell, the first sacrifice of the regiment upon the altar of liberty and Union. The position of the rebels being ascertained, Gen. Weitzel threw re-inforcements across the Bayou, and the line advanced upon the enemy, the Eighth in the van. A short but sharp conflict ensued, ending in a charge which scattered the rebels in confusion, many being killed and wounded, about three hundred taken prisoners, and one piece of artillery and a large number of small arms captured. Being in the advance, and the first to charge the enemy's batteries, the Eighth suffered more severely than all the other regiments engaged, losing sixteen killed and forty-six wounded—among the former being the brave Captain Kelliher, who fell at the head of his men in the charge. The colors were riddled with bullets and the staff shot off about four inches above the hand of the color sergeant, who, nevertheless, seized the remnant and bore it forward amid the enthusiastic shouts of the men. No further opposition was encountered, the enemy having evacuated the Lafourche country and crossed over Berwick Bay into Attakapas.

After a day's rest at Thibodeaux, the Eighth were sent with two squadrons of cavalry and a section of artillery, the whole being under the command of Colonel Fearing, to take possession of the New Orleans and Opelousas Railway. By a circuitous and tiresome march, through cypress swamps, heavily wooded and festooned with the sombre drapery of moss that characterizes Southern forests, the expedition reached Tigerville, Louisiana, capturing an immense quantity of sugar, that the rebels had been obliged to abandon upon the advance of our forces. On reconnoitering the railroad, it was found that a bridge, some one hundred and twenty feet long, across Bayou Bœuf, had been destroyed, while a mile of the track was covered with the ruins of engines and cars, burned to prevent their falling into our hands. Yankee skill and ingenuity were called into requisition, a detail was made from the regiment, the bridge rebuilt, the track relaid, an engine put in running order, and in one week trains were passing over the road, bringing stores and ammunition from New Orleans, ninety-three miles distant. During the winter of 1862-3, Lieut-Col. Lull was detached as Provost Judge of the Parish of Lafourche, with company B, as provost guard. In the spring of 1863, the regiment took part in General Banks' demonstration against Port Hudson, at the termination of which, the troops were rapidly conveyed to Brashear City, and the campaign through Central Louisiana, which terminated in the investment and capture of Port Hudson, commenced.

The enemy, under Gen. Dick Taylor, were first encountered in force, at Camp Bisland, on Bayou Teche, intrenched behind breastworks, mounting a number of heavy guns, and aided by an iron-clad gun-boat on the Bayou, and on the 12th and 15th of April, 1863, the battle of "Camp Bisland" was fought, resulting in the precipitate retreat of the rebels, a large number of whom were killed and wounded,—the capture of ten pieces of artillery, two colors, and two thousand prisoners, and the destruction of the gunboat and three transports. In this engagement, the regiment was advanced within two hundred yards of the works, sheltered by a shallow ditch from the ceaseless storm of ball, grape, and shell, that filled the air, not only from the enemy's works in front, but from our batteries in the rear. So close was the fire, that the bullets constantly struck the bayonets that projected above the edge of the ditch, and the lance that ornamented the flag-staff was carried away by a fragment of shell. While lying in the ditch, an order was given to storm the works—the regiment rose as one man, with an enthusiastic cheer, and prepared to face the storm of lead and iron that would have annihilated the gallant band before they could have reached the ditch of the fort, yet no one flinched and the attempt would have been made, had not the order been countermanded. The loss of the regiment in this engagement, was only two killed and nine wounded—their close proximity to the enemy, and the friendly shelter of the ditch, saving them from the effects of the terrible fire. During the toilsome march of two hundred and thirty miles to Alexandria, Louisiana, the regiment was frequently ordered to the front when a show of resistance was made, but no opposition was encountered save slight cavalry skirmishes. Much suffering was experienced from heat, dust, and want of water, but the regiment bore these hardships so cheerfully, as to excite frequent encomiums from the commanding general.

In the flank movement, by which General Banks transferred his forces from Red River to the east bank of Mississippi, preparatory to the attack on Port Hudson, the regiment was among the first to arrive at and invest that celebrated stronghold. The lines of investment being completed, reaching in a semi-circle, from the river above to the river below the place, on the 27th of May, 1863, a general advance was ordered, for the purpose of driving the enemy within his inner works. The regiment under command of the lamented Lieut-Col. Lull, (Colonel Fearing being in command of the second brigade, third division, nineteenth army corps,) were assigned a position on the right centre, in the second line of battle. The night previous to the attack, the regiment bivouacked in the woods, within rifle-shot of the concealed, but watchful enemy, and as morning dawned, a hasty breakfast of hard-bread and coffee was eaten, ammunition was distributed, and all prepared for the "imminent deadly fray." The order was given to advance—the regiment had not moved a hundred rods from their bivouac, before they were hotly engaged with the enemy, who, from behind trees, stumps, and log-breast-works, poured a deadly fire into the advancing lines; while, from their batteries beyond, showers of grape and huge shell were sent crashing through the woods, prostrating large trees like the passage of a whirlwind.

The first line of battle was broken and scattered, when the second brigade, to which the Eighth belonged was ordered to charge, and with a wild yell, the line swept forward, over the bodies of the fallen, driving the rebels in confusion from their outer works, through the tangled abattis, and broken ground in front of the fort, almost annihilating the Tenth Arkansas rebel regiment, who occupied the position. The slaughter was terrific, much of the fighting being hand to hand. Lieut-Col. Lull, while waving his sword and shouting "forward Eighth New Hampshire! steady men! steady!" fell mortally wounded by a minie ball, the color-sergeant was wounded, and one after another of the color-guard killed or disabled, until the only remaining corporal grasped the flag, splashed with the blood and brains of its defenders, and planted it on the exterior slope of the enemy's works, where, riddled by grape and canister, it remained until night ended the strife. Many of the men followed so closely upon the flying foe, as to get into the ditch of the works, unable either to advance or retreat, yet by their sharp fire, rendering it instantly fatal to any rebel, to raise his head above the parapet.

During the remainder of the day, the enemy's artillery was silenced by the sharpshooters of the Eighth New Hampshire, and Fourth Wisconsin—the cannoniers would repeatedly endeavor to approach their pieces, but as often were driven back, or fell dead or wounded, by the hail of bullets that was poured upon them from every stump, log or bush, that concealed a Union soldier. The loss of the regiment on this bloody day, was one hundred and twenty-four killed and wounded. During the siege, the regiment was almost constantly in the rifle-pits, and daily additions were made to the lists of killed and wounded.

On the 14th of June, 1863, another grand assault was ordered, and, as often before, the Eighth were placed in the front, being detailed in the storming party. The assault commenced at day-break, under cover of a terrific cannonade from nearly three hundred pieces of artillery. The storming column was formed behind a hedge, about eight hundred yards from the works, and separated from them by an uneven open field. Across this the stormers advanced, with the well-known "charging yell," until within about eighty yards of the works, when sheets of flame ran round the parapet, cannon on the front poured in their storm of canister, yet, though the dead and wounded fell thick on every hand, they advanced at "double-quick" until the rebels, thinking the day lost, began to break and retire from the works. Cheered by the hope of victory, part of the regiment scaled the parapet, and, had the supports came up, the place would have been ours; but the supports—mostly new troops, nine months' men—wavered, halted, and fell back, seeing which, the rebels returned to the breastworks, cut down or captured all who had entered, and, secure behind their defences, poured a murderous fire upon the remnant of the band of stormers who remained upon the field. Some escaped by crawling upon their hands and knees into ravines at the rear, while numerous instances occurred of men who had fallen badly wounded, being shot again and again, until the cessation of their movements told that death had ended their agonies. After the assault, the rebels, with fiendish cruelty, would neither succor the wounded, nor allow relief from our side to approach the field, firing on the stretcher-bearers, and refusing to receive a flag of truce until fifty hours after the battle, by which time the fierce heat of the summer sun and agonizing thirst had brought a death of torture to many, who, could they have been reached and cared for, would have ultimately recovered. The loss of the regiment in this charge was one hundred and thirty killed and wounded. On the capitulation of the place, the Eighth was one of six regiments, selected on account of their meritorious conduct during the siege, to receive the surrender. Accordingly on the 9th of July, 1863, the rebel army laid down their arms, in the presence of the victors, who, as the glorious "Stars and Stripes" rose over Port Hudson, forgetting the toil, hardships, and bloodshed by which the victory had been won, added their exultant shouts to the thunder of the cannon that proclaimed that the last obstacle to the navigation of the Mississippi was removed.

The next operation in which the regiment bore a part, was the expedition to Sabine Pass, Texas. Embarking on a transport steamer, Sept. 2d, 1863, the regiment joined the expeditionary fleet, and, after a voyage of two days, arrived off Sabine City, the point of attack, and on the following day had the mortification of seeing the gunboats repulsed, two of them falling into the hands of the enemy. After the return of this expedition, the regiment took part in a campaign in the interior of Louisiana, marching as far as Opelousas. In December, 1863, the regiment was ordered to Franklin, La., to be changed into cavalry, under the designation of "the Second New Hampshire Cavalry." While at this place, the regiment was mounted and armed with sabres, carbines and revolvers, and were constantly drilled in the evolutions of the cavalry tactics. On the 4th of January, 1864, a large proportion of the men reënlisted as veteran volunteers, under the provisions of General Orders 191 War Department, series of 1863, and soon after were ordered to New Orleans, and quartered in one of the large cotton presses of that city, where, after two months' drill, such proficiency had been attained in the use of the arms, management of the horses, and the cavalry tactics, as to merit the encomiums of many experienced cavalry officers. At the commencement of the Red River campaign, the regiment, with the rest of the cavalry division, about fifteen thousand strong, marched from New Orleans, through the interior of Louisiana, followed by the infantry, without encountering the enemy in force, to Alexandria, La., a distance of three hundred and eighty miles, where a junction was effected with Gen. A. J. Smith's troops, who had ascended the Red River. During that part of the route which lay within the Federal lines, the good order and discipline maintained were especially noticeable. Fences were untouched; hen-roosts and barn-yards—great temptations to hungry soldiers—remained intact, and the citizens made no complaints of being molested, either in their persons or property. From Alexandria, the cavalry pushed the enemy's rear-guard very closely, a skirmish taking place near Natchitoches, in which the rebels were driven, the Eighth (or as they were then called, the Second New Hampshire Cavalry,) charging through the streets of the town, killing and capturing a number of the enemy. While waiting at Natchitoches for the infantry to come up, the regiment went on a reconnoissance, pushing the enemy's rear-guard back on to the main body, and ascertaining their numbers and position. When the forward movement recommenced, the regiment was constantly at the front, and participated in numerous skirmishes with the enemy. At the disastrous battle of Sabine Cross Roads, April 8th, 1864, the regiment fired nearly the first shot, coming unexpectedly upon the enemy, and charging alone and unsupported upon three or four regiments of the enemy's cavalry, who broke and fled, unmasking two divisions of infantry, who immediately opened fire. Apparently bewildered by the very audacity of the attack, the enemy allowed the regiment to retire with little loss, when they might have fallen an easy prey to superior numbers. In the action that followed, a part of the regiment were dismounted and deployed as skirmishers in front of the infantry, and were nearly all captured by the enemy, Capt. D. W. King, whose horse was shot under him in the charge, and forty-seven enlisted men being taken prisoners, and carried off into wretched captivity in the famous "stockade," or prison pen, at Tyler, Texas. After the disastrous defeat that followed, the regiment formed line seven times, and, by their fire, covered the retreat of the broken and retreating infantry. When, after the battle of Pleasant Hill, Gen. Banks returned to Grand Ecore, the regiment suffered much from hunger, the train, with all the commissary stores of the brigade, having been captured. At Grand Ecore, long lines of rifle-pits and acres of abattis were constructed by the men of the Eighth, of their own accord, which, on being surveyed by the chief engineer of Gen. Banks' staff, met his approval and were adopted as part of the system of defences. On the march from Grand Ecore to Alexandria, the regiment participated in the battle of Cane River, in which the rebels were driven from the fords and a crossing effected in the face of the enemy. From this point to Alexandria, the regiment was the rear-guard of the whole army nearly all the time, and, from darkness, daily skirmishing with the enemy, holding them in check to allow the large wagon trains to proceed unmolested. While at Alexandria, the regiment, with the rest of the brigade to which it was attached, made two reconnoissances across Red River, in one instance bivouacking during the night almost within hearing distance of a rebel camp of several thousand men. On these scouts, a number of the enemy were killed or captured and much valuable information obtained, with a loss on our side of only two or three wounded. The march from Alexandria to Morganzia, La., on the Mississippi river, was the hardest and most exhausting, both to men and horses, ever experienced by the regiment. Skirmishing continually through the daytime, and marching on at night to overtake the army, the men had no sleep, save what could be snatched during the short halts on the road, when, dismounting, each man would loop his bridle-rein over his arm, and lay down in the road beside his horse, to rest until the bugle-note called him "to horse" to commence again the toilsome march. In one of the innumerable skirmishes that occupied each day of the march, Lieut. Cobbs of Company B, was captured by the enemy, dismounted and disarmed, but before he could be taken to the rear, the regiment charged the rebels with the intention of capturing him. Seeing that he was about to fall into our hands, he was inhumanly murdered in cold blood, a rebel officer shooting him with his own pistol. His body fell into our hands, and was buried on the banks of Red River, by his companions-in-arms, and a rude head-board carved with his name, rank, and regiment, and the emblems of the Masonic fraternity, of which he was a member, was erected to mark the spot. At Yellow Bayou, La., May 17th, 1864, the brigade, of which the regiment was a part, was surrounded by Polignac's and Taylor's divisions of the rebel army, numbering some six thousand men. The enemy's lines encircled the brigade in the form of a horse-shoe, while at the opening and between the brigade and the rest of the Union army, (which was six miles distant), a battery was planted that played directly upon the rear. Subjected to a cross fire from almost every side, the loss in the regiment and brigade was heavy, but the little band of horsemen retired stubbornly, presenting a bold front to the enemy, and actually cut its way out of the encircling lines of rebel infantry, within canister range of the enemy's artillery.

On the 18th of May, the enemy made a fierce assault upon our picket lines at Bayou de Glace, where the army had halted to bridge the Atchafalaya river. Gen. A. J. Smith's divisions of the Sixteenth and Seventeenth army corps, with the brigade of cavalry to which the Eighth belonged, were sent back to teach the rebels that they could not disturb us with impunity. The regiment was placed on the left flank in a thick growth of live oak and cypress timber, which, however, had no underbrush to impede the movements of cavalry. As the infantry advanced, the regiment charged the enemy, who were concealed behind the trees and under a heavy fire, broke and scattered two lines of battle, and forced back a third, punishing the enemy so severely that they did not again make their appearance during the remainder of the campaign. In this engagement, two hundred and fifty prisoners and two pieces of artillery were captured from the enemy. The loss of the regiment in the campaign was ninety-six killed, wounded and missing. While at Morganzia the regiment was ordered to New Orleans to proceed on veteran furlough. The reënlisted portion accordingly were sent north via the Mississippi river, starting upon the 11th, and arriving in Concord, N. H., on the 23d of July, where they met a warm reception at the hands of the State authorities, and were entertained at the expense of the State until the men were furloughed. After spending thirty days at home among their friends and relatives, from whom they had been separated for nearly three years, the veterans started for New Orleans on the 29th of August, and on their arrival at Camp Parapet, La., joined their comrades who had been left behind, and soon after were ordered to Natchez, Miss., where the regiment is now (December 15th, 1864), stationed.

Such is a brief statement of the part enacted by the Eighth Regiment of New Hampshire Volunteers during the past three years, in the sacred cause of maintaining the integrity of the Union, and crushing out armed rebellion against the Federal authority. Many of the best and bravest of the regiment have sealed with their blood their devotion to the cause of our common country. Their bodies moulder far from home amid the swamps and bayous of Louisiana, while those who survive, have, in nine general engagements, besides many nameless skirmishes, avenged their fallen comrades, and testified to their belief "that a country worth living in, is worth fighting for."

From carefully compiled statistics, it appears that one thousand four hundred and eighty-four men have been enrolled in the regiment since its organization. Of this number, six per cent. have been killed in action, sixteen per cent. have died of disease, twenty per cent. have been discharged for disability, resulting from wounds or disease, fifteen per cent. (nearly all substitutes), have deserted, and seven per cent. have been transferred to other regiments or the United States navy; making an aggregate loss of sixty-four per cent. About two hundred and eleven men now in the regiment have been wounded in action during the three years' service. The regiment has always maintained a most honorable reputation in the army and department in which it has served, and has received, from Generals Paine, McMillan and Lee, and Colonels Davis and Chrysler, former brigade commanders, letters of commendation couched in the most flattering terms.

The regiment has now been in the service three years, the term of service of the original members who did not reënlist expiring Dec. 23d, 1864. Judging of its future by its past career, no man need be ashamed to acknowledge having served in the regiment; and in future years, at home among the Granite hills of New Hampshire, each man will recall with pride the battles of Labadieville, Bisland, Port Hudson, Yellow Bayou, and Bayou de Glace, nor ever blush to say, "I was a member of the Eighth New Hampshire!"
